

Theology on the Web.org.uk

Making Biblical Scholarship Accessible

This document was supplied for free educational purposes. Unless it is in the public domain, it may not be sold for profit or hosted on a webserver without the permission of the copyright holder.

If you find it of help to you and would like to support the ministry of Theology on the Web, please consider using the links below:

Buy me a coffee

<https://www.buymeacoffee.com/theology>

PATREON

<https://patreon.com/theologyontheweb>

PayPal

<https://paypal.me/robbradshaw>

A GRAMMAR
OF THE VULGATE

Oxford University Press

London Edinburgh Glasgow Copenhagen

New York Toronto Melbourne Cape Town

Bombay Calcutta Madras Shanghai

Humphrey Milford Publisher to the UNIVERSITY

A GRAMMAR OF THE VULGATE

BEING

AN INTRODUCTION TO
THE STUDY OF THE LATINITY OF The Vulgate Bible

BY

W. E. PLATER
M.A., Rector of Halstock

AND

H. J. WHITE
D.D., Dean of Christ Church

OXFORD AT THE CLARENDON PRESS

1926

Omnis lingua confitebitur Deo.

Rom. xiv. 11.

Ama Scripturas, et amabit te sapientia.

Hieron. Ep. ad Demetriad. 20.

P R E F A C E

THE Vulgate Bible has of late become increasingly a subject of study, not only amongst members of the Roman Catholic Church, but amongst students of other denominations, and many whose interests are philological or literary rather than theological.

Amongst candidates for Holy Orders in the Church of England the decline in the study of Greek, sad though it is, has resulted in an increased demand for knowledge of the Vulgate. But its Latin, though simple and stately, presents constant pitfalls for those who approach it with no other knowledge of the language than that gained in the study of the classical authors. The grammar of the Vulgate is a thing, not indeed apart by itself, but belonging to the ages that produced it, and differing—sometimes widely—from the Latin Grammar taught in our Schools. We therefore make no apology for this book; we believe that for students it will supply a real need, and that for general readers it may unlock many a hard passage in the Bible and explain many a quaint phrase in the Prayer Book.

We are not aware that any similar work exists in English; but we gratefully acknowledge our obligations to Kaulen's Handbuch zur Vulgata,¹ which we have frequently consulted. At the same time we must claim that our own work is independent; in such a subject as this, resemblance does not imply plagiarism. All Latin

¹ Sprachliches Handbuch zur biblischen Vulgata: von Dr. Franz Kaulen (Mainz, 1870; second edition, Freiburg-in-Breisgau, 1904). Of equal value to us has been H. Roensch's Itala und Vulgata (Marburg and Leipzig, 1869).

Grammars run more or less on the same lines; and when the field of illustration is restricted to one book, the instances selected are bound to be much the same. But we have done our best to study the sacred text itself, assisted mainly by a Grammar of New Testament Greek; and the examples illustrating our rules have been obtained by wading through unnumbered columns of a Concordance; in the New Testament the Oxford critical edition of the Vulgate has doubtless given us many illustrations unknown to Kaulen.

We also owe much to the kindness of friends, especially Dr. E. A. Sonnenschein, Emeritus Professor of Latin and Greek in the University of Birmingham, and Mr. F. W. Hall, Fellow and Senior Tutor of St. John's College, Oxford; it was the latter who directed our attention to the epoch-making work of Loefstedt.¹

As to the share which each of us has had in the work:—Mr. Plater is responsible for the general design and for the greater part of the text, the Dean of Christ Church for a more or less rigid supervision of the whole, for the revision of the lists of instances, and for much of the matter in the foot-notes; but each has trespassed freely on the other's ground. Should reviewers award the book any praise, each will gladly appropriate it; should there be blame, each will gladly pass it on to his colleague. Of one thing we feel quite sure—that neither of us could have written the book without the help given by the other.

W. E. PLATER.

H. J. WHITE.

May 1926.

¹ Philologischer Kommentar zur Peregrinatio Aetheriae; von E. Löfstedt, 1911.

CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION	I
§§ 1-8. Latin Versions, 1-5. Origin and Composition of the Vulgate, 6-8.
I. THE FOREIGN ELEMENT—HEBREW	11
§§ 9-32. Proper Names, 10-13. Common Nouns, 14-16. Number, Gender, Case, 17-22. Adjectives, 23. Pronouns, 24. Verbs, 25-30. Repetition, 31-2.
II. THE FOREIGN ELEMENT—GREEK	28
§§ 33-54. General Influence, 33-6. Lexical (Nouns, Adjectives, Verbs), 37-42. Inflexional, 43. Syntactical, 44-54.
III. NATIVE ELEMENT—FORM OF WORDS	41
§§ 55-81. Characteristics of Popular Latin, 55-7. Orthography, 58-61. Lengthened Terminations, 62-5. Nouns, 66-8. Adjectives, 69-77. Verbs (derived, compound, in -ficare), 78-81.
IV. LEXICAL PECULIARITIES — MEANING OF WORDS	54
§§ 82-9. Nouns, 83. Adjectives, 84. Verbs, 85-6. Adverbs, Particles, 87-8. Tendency, 89.
V. INFLEXIONAL AND OTHER PECULIARITIES	65
§§ 90-102. Nouns, Adjectives, Verbs, 91-3. Other Irregularities: Adjectives, 94. Adverbs, 95. Pronouns, 96-102.
VI. SYNTAX—THE SIMPLE SENTENCE	75
§§ 103-31. Agreement, 105. Want of Article, 106. How supplied, 107. The Noun. Cases: Nominative, 108; Impersonal Verbs, 109. Accusative, 110; with Prepositions, 111. Dative, 112. Genitive, 113-14. Ablative, 115-16; with Prepositions, 117.

VII. SYNTAX OF THE VERB	103
§§ 118-31. Indicative Mood—Tenses of, 118-24. Imperative, 125. Subjunctive, 126. Infinitive, 127. Participles, 128. Gerund Noun, 129. Gerund Adjective (Gerundive), 130. Supines, 131.
VIII. SYNTAX—DOUBLE AND COMPLEX SENTENCES	117
§§ 132-44. Double Sentence, 132. Complex, 133-44. Noun- Clause, as Subject, 134. Object: Dependent Statement, 134; Question, 135; Exclamation, 136; Desire, 137. Adjective (or 'Qui')-Clause, 138. Adverb-Clause, 139-44: si , 140; cum , 141; dum , 142; other Conjunctions, 143; Unusual Subjunctive, 144.
CONCLUSION	135
INDEX OF SUBJECTS	139
INDEX OF GREEK WORDS	142
INDEX OF LATIN WORDS	143
INDEX OF PASSAGES OF SCRIPTURE	151

INTRODUCTION

§ 1. The title on the Cross, in its threefold language—the vernacular Aramaic, the current Greek, the official Latin—is at once an epitome of the Divine preparation in history for our Lord's Advent, and a prophecy of the extension of His Kingdom; a high-water mark of the world's past history, and a foreshadowing of its history for fifteen hundred years to come.¹

The Praeparatio Euangelica was threefold—religious, intellectual, social; the Hebrew religion, the Greek culture and speech, the Roman world-embracing Empire. The Hebrew deposit passed through the Greek medium into Latin hands. The Jew received the 'Oracles of God' as a trust for mankind; their translation, first into Greek and later into Latin, was needed before this purpose could be fulfilled.

The conquests of Alexander the Great had made Greek a universal language; and through the gradual labours of the Septuagint translators at Alexandria the Hebrew Scriptures (with later additions) were rendered into the vernacular or spoken Greek and thus made known throughout the world.

§ 2. But later a new and still mightier power arose—Rome, which, shortly before the coming of Christ, had assumed the form of an Empire and had become mistress of the known world. Latin, therefore, now became the language of official intercourse, of judicial proceedings, and of military life throughout the most distant provinces of the Empire.

¹ 'I say nothing of the Jews, the Greeks, and the Romans, peoples whom the Lord has dedicated to His faith by the title written on His cross', Jerome, Ep. ad Heliod. (lx. 4).

Even in the Greek Testament itself, in the records of the life and death of Christ, and of the travels and imprisonment of St. Paul, 'the Roman citizen', traces of the great power may be seen in the numerous technical Latin terms introduced into the Greek.

§ 3. At first, indeed, there was no need for a Latin version of the Scriptures, even at Rome; the prevailing language there was Greek. It was affected by the upper classes; and the commercial and lower classes, especially the Jews, spoke it in a debased form, as the language most easily understood. Hence the early Roman Church was Greek in its Scriptures, liturgy, and writings; not only St. Paul, but St. Ignatius (writing about A. D. 112) addressed it in Greek. Even in the middle of the third century Cornelius, its Bishop, wrote in Greek to Fabius of Corinth¹; and Eusebius mentions as something noticeable that letters, written by Cyprian of Carthage to the Asiatic Churches were in Latin.² Victor (Bp. of Rome, c. 189-199) is mentioned by Jerome³ as the first author of theological treatises in Latin.

But as Christianity spread to the remote provinces of the Empire, the new environment called for a version of the Scriptures in the spoken language of the people.

§ 4. The birthplace of Latin Christianity and, with it,

¹ The letter is given in Eusebius. H.E. vi. 43.

² Ibid.

³ De vir illustr. liii, 'Tertullianus presbyter, nunc demum primus post Victorem et Apollonium Latinorum ponitur.'

of the Latin Scriptures and Christian literature, was Africa. It is true that the dearth of non-Christian contemporary literature leaves it uncertain whether the somewhat florid style of the first Christian latinity, once distinguished as 'African', was not personal to the writers (e.g. Tertullian), or perhaps common in the provinces throughout the Western Empire—the style already censured by Cicero and Quintilian as Asiatic or Asianic, in contradistinction to Attic. But at all events the earliest Latin versions of the Scriptures originated in Africa. An African type of text—possibly in more than one form—was known to and quoted by Tertullian and Cyprian, both residents at Carthage; it was marked by rudeness and simplicity, and by a close and even slavish adherence to the Greek original.

As time went on there arose other translations; these 'Old Latin' versions,—i.e. versions which were made before the time of Jerome, or far away from his influence—have been divided by Westcott and Hort¹ into three classes:

- (1) African, agreeing generally with the type of text quoted by Cyprian (200–258).
- (2) European, current in Western Europe, and agreeing more or less with the quotations in the Latin version of Irenaeus.
- (3) Italian (i.e. connected with North Italy), a revision of the European, partly to give the latinity a smoother aspect, partly to bring the text into conformity with the customary type of Greek MSS.

It is only fair, however, to state that many modern scholars, following the example of Dr. F. C. Burkitt,² doubt the existence of the Italian family altogether.

¹ Introduction, p. 78.

² The Old Latin and the Itala, in the Cambridge Texts and Studies, iv (1896).

§ 5. All these versions were made at a time when the classical period—the so-called Golden and Silver Ages—of Latin literature had long passed away. But a living language is never stationary or bound to its own past. Side by side with the literary language, coexisting with it and finally prevailing over it, was the speech of everyday life, of the field and the camp, of the street, the workshop, and the home; this was referred to by Cicero and Quintilian as lingua uulgata or rustica, sermo quotidianus, plebeius, rusticus, uerbum castrense; and it is in this dialect that the Latin versions of the Scriptures are written.

This popular speech is interesting as showing the vitality of Latin; it forms a link between ancient and modern times. On the one hand it preserves archaic and obsolete words, current in Plautus and Terence, or in the ante-classical age, i. e. before 80 B. C.; on the other it forms the basis of the great Romance languages of modern Europe. These languages are not Classical Latin, corrupted by an intermixture of popular forms; they are the popular Latin alone, the products of the gradual development of the common Roman speech.

And still further; the popular Latin, as seen in the versions and in the ecclesiastical writers, is the source of our common speech, of our modern Christian vocabulary, and of our theological terminology.

With the exception of the Gothic and Slavonic, the Latin is the parent of all the versions of modern Europe,¹ and has had no small share in determining the combined dignity and simplicity of their style. Hebrew exists only as the original language of the Old Testament; Greek has produced no linguistic offspring, and remains as an unimportant vernacular, not a vehicle of new literature; Latin survives in its original form as an international literary language, but also lives again in a new form in modern Christendom. And further, while the Hebrew and Greek Scriptures, and even languages, were lost to the West for over a thousand years, the Latin Scriptures and the literature based on them remained all through that time the common possession of every scholar in Europe.

¹ Our own Authorized Version owes a great deal to the Vulgate; to give a few instances:—publican is from the Latin publicanus, not from the Greek τελώνης; Calvary in Lk. 23. 33 is from the 'locum qui dicitur Caluariae' of the Vulgate; charity in I Cor. 13 is from caritas not from ἀγάπη; be it far from thee in Mt. 16. 22 = the Vulgate absit a te rather than the Greek ἰλεώς σοι; the one fold of Joh. 10. 16 is a translation of the Vulgate unum ouile, not of the Greek μία ποίμνη (correctly translated one flock in the R.V.).

Again, the very rudeness and servile fidelity of the earlier Latin versions form a valuable witness to the text of the still earlier Greek and a powerful instrument for restoring the sacred text to its original purity. Scholars have of late years been paying increased attention to the 'Western Text', and its champions believe that in it we have something very near to the original form of the Scriptures; whether we accept their conclusions or not we must at any rate acknowledge its high importance; and its best witnesses are to be found amongst the Latin MSS.

§ 6. The modern Vulgate is a composite work, only some parts of which are due to Jerome. It may be arranged in six divisions, giving his share in an ascending scale.

- (1) OLD LATIN, wholly untouched by Jerome, as merely 'ecclesiastical', not 'canonical': Wisdom, Ecclesiasticus, I and II Maccabees, Baruch.
- (2) OLD LATIN, slightly revised, but to an extent hard to determine: Acts, Epistles, Apocalypse. Here Jerome left a good deal uncorrected; and in later MSS. the Vulgate and the Old Latin texts were often mixed, so that the traces of his revision were still further obscured.

- (3) Free and rapid translation from the CHALDEE, as Jerome calls it: Tobias (i. e. Tobit) and Judith. The former book was finished in one day, the latter in a single sitting (lucubratiuncula).
- (4) Translation from the SEPTUAGINT: the Psalter. The Psalter included in the Bible is this earlier or 'Gallican'; not the later translation made by Jerome direct from the Hebrew.
- (5) Revision and partial correction of the Old Latin from the most ancient Greek MSS. available: the Gospels.
- (6) Jerome's independent translation from the HEBREW, the first ever made: the Canonical Books of the Old Testament, with the exception of the Psalter.

As to the need and method of his revision of the Gospels, undertaken at the request of Pope Damasus, Jerome himself in his prefatory Epistle to that Pontiff speaks of the numerous Latin translations, and says with pardonable rhetorical exaggeration that there were almost as many types of text as there were MSS. 'tot sunt [exemplaria] paene quot codices'.¹ He goes on to speak of his pious but perilous task in seeking the truth from the fountain-head and collating the Latin text with the most ancient Greek manuscripts; he made no more alterations than were absolutely necessary to correct the sense. The Gospels appeared in A. D. 383.

§ 7. But it is the translation of the Old Testament from the Hebrew (whereas the previous Latin versions had been from the LXX translation of the Hebrew) which displays Jerome's skilful and masterly workmanship most conspicuously, and has laid the Church of all succeeding days under the deepest debt of 'remembrance and thankfulness' to him;¹ this task extended, with intervals, over fifteen years of his life, and involved laborious and often costly acquirement of the Hebrew tongue. The many differences between a Semitic and an Indo-European language, and the comparative absence in Hebrew of many things to which Latin is accustomed (e. g. connecting links between clauses, inflexion of nouns, conjugation and tenses of verbs), made Jerome's task one of supreme difficulty. Yet it was accomplished, especially in the narrative portions, with supreme success. Jerome's version is at once correct and natural, accurate and idiomatic. The force of the original is seized and brought out with the skill of the Hebrew student, and the Latin is written with the polished ease and sure touch of the cultivated and scholarly native, accustomed to its use from his earliest childhood.²

¹ The same expression in the Praefatio in Iosue.

Whenever there is any obscurity in the Latin, it is in almost every case the fault of the original, arising from the rareness of the expression or the obscurity of the text. On the whole the Vulgate Old Testament is a finer translation than even our own Authorized Version; where the two agree, the latter is, directly or indirectly, derived from the former; where they differ, the Vulgate is usually found on the side of later and fuller scholarship.

Jerome has the tantalizing habit of translating the same Hebrew word by different Latin equivalents; and he also renders proper names by their etymological signification¹—the custom of the LXX being often the exact opposite.

¹ See the prefatory letter of 'The translators to the reader' in our own A.V.

² 'paene ab ipsis incunabulis' (Praefatio in librum Iob).

As we might expect from a traveller, a long resident, and a writer on the topography of Palestine, Jerome has an eye for the natural features of the land, its fountains, rivers, torrent-beds,² its mountains, hills, valleys, plains, rocks, and deserts; he is aware of the different terms employed, and gives generally the appropriate Latin equivalent. In this and in many other ways he often gives a graphic touch which renders the narrative more lifelike.

§ 8. Lastly, a faithful and reverent translation of a sacred book, or collection of books, cannot fail to be affected in its vocabulary by the subject-matter and the ruling ideas of the original. The Old Testament is permeated by the thought of the all-pervading presence and activity³ of God—a God at once of righteousness and mercy. Hence the richness of the Hebrew vocabulary in words expressing the ideas of law, sin, and judgement; of repentance, prayer, sacrifice, and reconciliation; of a covenant, made, broken, and renewed; of communion established, forfeited, and restored. Words expressing all these ideas—in many cases passing first into the LXX—were bound to find a place in the Latin Old Testament.

¹ This made passages in the Old Testament much more intelligible in the Latin than they are in the English; e. g. I Sam. (I Reg.) 28. 28 'Saul returned from pursuing after David, and went against the Philistines: therefore they called that place Sela-hammahlekoth' is not very illuminating in the English; but the Vulgate 'Reuersus est ergo Saul desistens persequi Dauid, et perrexit in occursum Philistinorum: propter hoc uocauerunt locum illum, Petram diuidentem' is perfectly clear.

² Torrentis occurs about 120 times in the Vulgate Bible (only once in the N.T., i. e. Joh. 18. 1); torrent is not found once in our own A.V. Torrentis is the rushing, boiling stream; the Hebr. nachal includes the (sometimes dry) river-bed into which the torrentis flows: cf. I Kgs. (III Reg.) 15. 13 'combussit [simulacrum] in torrente Cedron'; ib. 17. 3, 4 'abscondere in torrente Carith—et ibi de torrente bibes.'

³ Hence the constant use of feri, from the first creative fiat at which light sprang into being, to the closing factum est of the last chapters of the Apocalypse. Factum est (uerbum Domini ad . . .) ushers in each successive Divine revelation to the prophets of Israel, each manifestation of the Divine mercy in Christ.

The same is true, in an even deeper sense, of the New Testament. The true meaning of the words can only be brought out by supplying 'of God', 'of Christ', as a context: such words as lex, uerbum, uoluntas, even christus; also discipulus, apostolus, etc., require to be so supplemented to express their full meaning.¹

All this involved a strain upon the resources of the Latin language; if even the wealth and splendour of Attic Greek were insufficient to set forth the unsearchable riches of Christ, how much more was this true of classical Latin? Cicero shrank from rendering σωτήρ by *saluator*²; it needed

¹ The influence of Christianity in raising words from an earthly to a heavenly meaning has been well described by Trench (Study of Words, pp. 57 ff.):—"The Gospel of Christ, as it is the redemption of man, so is it in a multitude of instances the redemption of his word, freeing it from the bondage of corruption, that it should no longer be subject to vanity, nor stand any more in the service of sin or of the world, but in the service of God and of His truth . . . There were "angels" before heaven had been opened, but these only earthly messengers; "martyrs" also, or witnesses, but these not unto blood, nor yet for God's highest truth; "apostles", but sent of men; "evangels", but not of the kingdom of Heaven; "advocates", but not "with the Father". Trench traces the same influence on the words humilitas, paradisus, regeneratio, sacramentum, and mysterium. On the other hand, he points out that the Emperor Tiberius caused the introduction of new words to express hitherto unknown forms of wickedness. He also mentions words which we owe to Christian Latin: deitas (Augustine; not in the Vulg., though diuinitas occurs in Rom. 1. 20), passio, compassio, longanimitas, resipiscentia (resipisco II Tim. 2. 26), soliloquium (coined by Augustine). It matters little who was the actual inventor; in such a movement as the first reception of the Christian faith these new words have 'a free spontaneous birth, seldom or never capable of being referred to one man more than another, because they belong to all'.

² As to saluator, Martianus Capella (V. 166) says 'Cicero soterem saluatorem noluit nominare'. Cicero's own words are 'Hoc (σωτήρ) quantum est? ita magnum ut Latine uno uerbo exprimi non possit' (Verr. 4. 63).

the Christian use to make it good Latin. And if Christus and Saluator have to be coined, so too a host of other words; in the Vulgate the Latin language is impressed into a new and holier service; it renders tribute no longer to Caesar but to Christ.

Augustine insists that the coming of the Saviour made the word good Latin: 'Christus Iesus, id est Christus Saluator; hoc est enim Latine Iesus. Nec quaerant grammatici quam sit Latinum, sed Christiani quam uerum. Salus enim Latinum nomen est; saluare et saluator non fuerunt haec Latine, antequam ueniret Saluator; quando ad Latinos uenit, et haec Latina fecit' (Serm. 299. 6).

So with redemptor; how poor is its classical use (= a contractor)! Only in the third century does it acquire a legal signification, and then it seems to denote a pettifogging lawyer (see Ulpian, Dig. I. 16. 9; though it is also used of one who releases a debtor by paying his debt (Ulpian, Dig. XVII. 1. 6). In the Vulgate New Test. it only occurs once (Act. 7. 35 = λυτρωτής), of Moses as a deliverer from bondage; but Jerome uses it frequently in the Old. Test. in the sense of a redeemer; he also in his 66 Ep. (ad Pammach.) uses the word of Christ ('Christus redemptio, idem redemptor ac pretium'), as does also Augustine (Serm. 130. 2). Even Χριστός can hardly have been intelligible when first used in the LXX; Liddell and Scott quote only φάρμακα χριστά, 'salves' from classical Greek.

I

THE FOREIGN ELEMENT

A. HEBREW

§ 9. If, in considering the latinity of the Vulgate, we set aside ordinary Latin—such Latin as might be expected from the pupil of the Roman Grammarian Donatus, and from one who reproached himself with being a ‘Ciceronian, not a Christian’¹—we have two elements in its formation; one native, the other foreign.

There is the native element of the popular or spoken Latin; and the foreign element—foreign as regards Latin, native as regards the Scriptures themselves—the influence of Hebrew and Greek. This foreign element may be considered first, and we will begin in historical order with Hebrew.

THE NOUN

§ 10. Transliteration of Hebrew proper names. Here the Vulgate mainly follows the LXX, which was the work of Jews acquainted with the traditional interpretation. The modern system of vocalization did not exist in a written form till long after Jerome’s time. The Hebrew alphabet consisted only of consonants, though certain weak consonants were used to represent vowels, particularly at the end of words. The pronunciation was handed down by oral tradition (Massorah), and it was centuries before this was reduced to a complete written system, purely phonetic in character; the new vowel signs were not regarded as part of the word, but were placed outside it, above or below.¹ Thus it is only in a restricted sense that we can speak of vowels and consonants in connexion with Hebrew; we mean thereby the vowels of the later Massoretic pointing, and the consonants of the original Hebrew alphabet, together with aleph and ayin, and the semi-vowels vav and yodh.

¹ Ep. 22 (ad Eustoch.); in 374 Jerome was ill of a fever, and dreamt he was summoned before the judgement seat of Christ; to his plea that he was a Christian the Judge returned the answer ‘Mentiris, Ciceronianus es, non Christianus; ubi enim thesaurus tuus, ibi et cor tuum’.

§ 11. Vowels. The Vulgate, following the LXX, differs frequently from the later pointing; there is a general tendency towards assimilation in vowel sounds, with an occasional preference for a; thus we have Gedeon, Booz; Badacer (= Bidkar), Bala (= Bilbah), Dalila, Gabaon, Galaad, Haber, Sisara.

Aleph is a mere emission of the breath; thus from initial aleph we have Adam, El, Ishbosheth, Fezebel, Hon (Num. 16. 1), Urias.

Ayin is represented by the rough breathing, as in Haber, Hebraeus,² by the smooth breathing, as in Abdenago, Obededom, or by g, as in Gomorrhah, gomer (homer).

Vav and Yodh are vocal, as u and i, or consonantal, as v

¹ Hence confusion was always possible, as in the case of Gen. 47. 31, quoted in Hebr. 11. 21; the variation here is between mittah (bed) and matteh (staff); Jerome rendered the word correctly, as bed, when translating Genesis, but the Vulg. of Hebr. 11. 21 is a translation of the LXX, which rendered it staff, and so we have adoravit fastigium virgae eius!

In Prov. 18. 17 there is a similar confusion between malach (messenger) and melech (king); the Vulgate has (correctly) nuntius, the LXX. βασιλεύς.

² Yet Shakespeare has 'an Ebrew Jew' (I Henr. IV, Act II, Sc. iv); the initial h is very variable in Latin words, see below, § 60.

and j respectively. The prevalent practice now is to print u and i throughout, thereby following the use of the MSS.; so Israhel, Isai (= Jesse), etc.¹

§ 12. Consonants. The simple consonants, b g l m n r, remain unchanged; p s t include ph sh th; but the Romans, like the Greeks, found it very hard to pronounce sh, and consequently rejected it as a barbarism;² thus we have Saul (Shaul), Kis (Kish), Isboseth (Ishbosheth).

Initial h (he) is often dropped; the Greek MSS. of the LXX were not furnished with breathings till after Jerome's time, and it is probably through the LXX, that he accepted Aggaeus (Αγγαίος), Alleluia (Αλληλουία), Osee (Ωσηε).

Final h, especially in the ending -iah, becomes s, also through the LXX, as in Abdias (Αβδίας) = Obadiah, Sophonias (Σοφονίας) = Zephaniah. The guttural ch (heth) either remains, as in Cham (Χαμ), or else becomes h as in Heua (Eve), or else is dropped, as in Mathusala (Μαθουσαλα = מַתְּשָׁלַח), Noe (Νωε = נֹחַ).

¹ Jerome of course is really Hieronymus, and Jeremiah would be spelt Hieremias in early MSS.; see below, § 60.

² Jerome (de nomin. Hebraicis; de Genesi, under S) writes: 'Siquidem apud Hebraeos tres sunt S litterae: una quae dicitur Samech ש, et simpliciter legitur, quasi per S nostram litteram describatur: alia sin שׁ, in qua stridor quidam non nostri sermonis interstrepit: tertia sade שׂ, quam nostrae aures penitus reformidant.' So in the famous case of shibboleth and sibboleth in Judg. 12. 6, the difference in the Hebrew is between שִׁבְוֹלֶת and שִׁבְוֹלֶת; the Vulgate rendered the former scibboleth and the latter sibboleth. The LXX. got out of the difficulty by translating שִׁבְוֹלֶת either as σύνθημα, a pass-word (so the A text) or στάχυς, an ear of corn, which is the real meaning of the word (so the B text); שִׁבְוֹלֶת they left untranslated, so that the verse ran simply καὶ εἶπαν αὐτῷ, Εἰπὸν δὲ σύνθημα (στάχυς). καὶ οὐ κατείσθηνεν τοῦ λαλῆσαι οὕτως, κτλ. Jerome added the Latin interpretation, so that the verse in the Vulg. runs 'Interrogabant eum: Dic ergo Scibboleth, quod interpretatur spica. Qui respondebat, Sibboleth: eadem littera spicam exprimere non ualens'; this is a good instance of Jerome's care in making the Bible intelligible to his readers.

Ts (tsadhe; generally represented by z in the E.V.) usually becomes s, as in Sedecias (Σεδεκίας), Segor (Σηγωρ = ציִגור), but t is known; and strangely enough both Tyre and Sidon in Hebrew commence with tsadhe.

Qoph becomes hard c, as in Cain, Cedar (= Kedar, E.V.)

Thus many distinctions in the original disappear in the translation; two or more letters in Hebrew have to be rendered by one in Latin, e.g. Amoz (אַמֹּז, beginning with aleph and ending with tsadhe) the father of Isaiah, and Amos (אַמֹּס, beginning with ayin and ending with samech) the prophet, both appear in the Vulgate as Amos.

The spelling of proper names varies to a surprising degree in different MSS.,¹ nor is any one MS. always consistent in spelling any one name. Consequently, the spelling adopted in the Oxford Critical Edition of the Vulgate, and based on the oldest MSS., differs frequently from that of the official Clementine edition; thus we get initial Hi instead of I (Hierusalem, Hiericho, etc.), and the absence of the diphthong in such names as Moses, Mattheus, etc. (see § 60).

§ 13. Declension of Hebrew Proper Names. Plurals (-im masc.; -oth fem.; -ayim is the dual termination) are simply taken over, as cherubim, succoth, mahanaim.

The usual declension is the 3rd, the ablative being treated as indeclinable and explained by prepositions; but some names in -es, as Herodes, Manasses, have the abl. in -e. Moses sometimes has gen. Mosi (Ex. 8. 13, Mt. 23. 2, I Cor. 9. 9, etc), but generally Mosis. Most names in -es have acc. in -en, after the Greek. Names in -as (see above § 12) become 1st; Adam has sometimes gen. *Adae*² (cf. Gen. 2. 20) but is more often indeclinable, the cases being expressed by prepositions. Abraham sometimes has gen. and dat. Abrahamae, but at other times is indeclinable. Hierusalem is indeclinable, but we have Hierusolyma, -mam, -mae; it is also treated as a neuter plur. so that we get Hierusolymis; here, as with many names, the Vulgate forms have come through the Greek.

¹ In the case of Rhoda (Act. 12. 13) no less than eight different ways of spelling the name have been enumerated.

² In the Latin version of the XXXIX Articles we have 'in imitatione Adami' Art. IX, and 'post lapsum Adae' Art. X.

§ 14. Common Nouns. The Hebrew is fond of using parts of the body (including the 'horn'!) in an extended and figurative sense; it also uses the soul (nephesh) to denote the person or individual; this use is followed in the Vulgate.

auris: reuelabit . . . aurem eorum (Job 36. 10; = uncover), cf. I Sam. (I Reg.) 9. 15,¹ brachium: used of God (with excelsus, extentum, sacrum, etc.), and of man (br. peccatorum, etc.); 'maledictus homo qui . . . ponit carnem brachium suum' Jer. 17. 5.

cervix: durae cervicis, indurare cervicem, etc.

cor: includes the understanding; indigens corde Prov. 11. 12, ponere cor (in) = to consider, mark Ps. 48. 13 (47. 14), Isa. 41. 22; non ascendent super cor (= come to mind) Isa. 65. 17, cf. Act 7. 23, I Cor. 2. 9; loquar ad cor eius (= speak comfortably) Hos. 2. 14, cf. Isa. 40. 2; in cor maris (= in the midst of the sea) Ps. 46. 2 (45. 3).

cornu: cornu salutis meae (= strength, power) Ps. 18. 2 (17. 3); common with words like exalted, broken, etc. Noteworthy is the expression 'in cornu filio olei' (= in a very fruitful hill) Isa. 5. 1 where the Vulgate translates literally the Hebrew 'a horn, the son of fatness'; this use of 'horn' for 'hill' is unique in the Old Testament. In Dan. and Apoc. it is used figuratively for a king.

¹ In Ps. 40. 6 (39. 7) 'mine ears hast thou opened', the Hebr. is literally 'ears hast thou digged (or pierced) for me', and Jerome in his Psalterium iuxta Hebraeos rendered it 'aures fodisti mihi'; the Vulgate has 'aures perfecisti mihi'; the LXX. however has σῶμα δὲ κατηρίσω μοι and so it is quoted in Hebr. 10. 5.

facies: with prepositions = before, against, etc.; 'a facie aquilonis' = from the N. Jer. 1. 13, cf. Gen. 1. 2, II Cor. 8. 24; confundere, auertere faciem = to shame a person by refusing his request, I Kgs. (III Reg.) 2. 16. 20.

manus: = action, power, etc., especially of God and His agents; figuratively we have 'de manu canis . . . inferi' Ps. 22. 20 (21. 21), 49. 15 (48. 16), 'in manus gladii' Ps. 63. 10 (62. 11); 'implere manum' = to consecrate, Jud. 17. 5, 12, I Kgs. (III Reg.) 13. 33.

oculus: used even of sightless things; 'in oculis solis . . . throni' II Sam. (II Reg.) 12. 11, Apoc. 1. 4 (conspectu).

os: 'exasperare os Domini' I Sam. (I Reg.) 12. 14; 'immutare os suum' (= to change his behaviour) I Sam. (I Reg.) 21. 13; 'usque ad os' (= from end to end) II Kgs. (IV Reg.) 21. 16, but see 10. 21 where the same Hebrew is translated 'a summo usque ad summum'; 'os gladii' (from its devouring) = the edge of the sword, very frequent.

pes: = haunt, resting-place; 'ubi sit pes eius' I Sam. (I Reg.) 23. 22; secus pedes Gamalihel Act. 22. 3.

uir: = quisque, each one; reuertatur uir in domum suam I Kgs. (III Reg.) 12. 24, cf. Ex. 11. 2, Isa. 3. 5, 14. 18, Jer. 31. 34, Zach. 3. 10, 14. 13.

anima: 'omnis anima quae ederit sanguinem' Lev. 7. 27: 'moriatur anima mea' (= let me die) Num. 23. 10; cf. Act. 2. 41. In Ps. 105 (104). 18 the Hebr. has 'his soul (i.e. he) came into iron', and so the A.V. 'he was laid in iron', and R.V. 'he was laid in chains of iron'; Jerome, in his translation of the Psalter from the Hebrew,¹ rendered 'in ferrum uenit anima eius', and the LXX σίδηρον διήλθεν ἡ ψυχὴ αὐτοῦ. But the Vulgate Psalter had 'ferrum pertransiit animam eius', whence came the oft-quoted Prayer Book form of the verse 'the iron entered into his soul'.

¹ A convenient edition of this Psalter is now obtainable; Psalterium iuxta Hebraeos Hieronymi, ed. J. M. Harden, S.P.C.K., 1922.

§ 15. Length or duration of Time is denoted in Hebrew by the use of 'days' or 'years'; the Vulgate frequently follows this use, e. g. 'in diebus meis' (= all my days, as long as I live), Ps. 116 (114). 2; 'post dies' (= after a while) I Kgs. (III Reg.) 17. 7; 'dies super dies regis adicies' (= prolong his life) Ps. 61. 6 (60. 7); 'longitudo dierum' (= long life) Ps. 91 (90). 16, 'in longitudinem dierum' (= for ever) Ps. 23 (22). 6. 'Post dies et annum' (= for days beyond a year R.V., many days and years A.V.) Isa. 32. 10; 'annos uitae adponent tibi' (= long life A.V.) Prov. 3. 2; 'heri et nudiustertius' (= formerly, heretofore) Gen. 31. 2 etc.

§ 16. Repetition: the Hebrew gives a precise number where we should use a general term; e. g. 'tribus uicibus' (= oftentimes A.V.) Job 33. 29; the Hebr. is 'two steps (yea) three', and the R.V. 'twice, yea thrice'. In Ps. 80. 5 (79. 6), however, the 'tripliciter' by which Jerome translated שְׁלֹשָׁה in his Psalt. iuxta Hebr., was already turned into the vague term 'in mensura' in the Vulg. Psalter and the LXX; the A.V. has 'in great measure', and R.V. 'in large measure'.

Other nouns are used in Hebrew out of their literal sense; we can give but a few examples here:

adepts: 'adepts frumenti' (= the finest wheat) Ps. 81 (80). 17, 147. 14.

angulus: 'anguli populorum' (= the chief men) Jud. 20. 2, cf. I Sam. (I Reg.) 14. 38, and 'in caput anguli' Ps. 118 (117). 22; so the corner stone (lapis angularis) was the chief stone Isa. 28. 16 etc.

funis and funiculus: the measuring line became the portion measured; so 'funes ceciderunt mihi in praeclaris' Ps. 16 (15). 6, cf. Jos. 17. 5; so joined with 'possessio, sors', etc.; cf. Mic. 2. 5.

mare: usually = the West (the Mediterranean), cf. 'mare et meridiem possidebit' Dt. 33. 23; but = the South 'ab aquilone et mari' Ps. 107 (106). 3, though some critics doubt the text here.

sermo, uerbum: = thing, matter; 'excepto sermone Uriae Hethaei' I Kgs. (III Reg.) 15. 5; 'quomodo palam factum est uerbum istud?' Ex. 2. 14; 'numquid non uerbum est?' (= is there not a cause?) I Sam. (I Reg.) 17. 29.

uia, semita: especially in plur., the ways or paths of the Lord; hence, the right way, the way for man to walk in; frequent in Pss., as 25 (24). 4, cf. I Sam. (I Reg.) 12. 23, Act. 13. 10. So in the N.T., especially Acts (2. 28, 9. 2 etc.), of the (Christian) Way.

rock: this term is frequently applied to Jehovah in Hebrew; the LXX rejected it as anthropomorphic, and petra is not once used of God in the whole Vulgate Psalter, though it occurs in Jerome's Psalterium iuxta Hebr.

§ 17. Hebraisms in number. In the poetical books many abstract nouns are used in the plur. in concrete sense, e. g. altitudines (Ps. 95 (94). 4 'altitudines montium' = the peaks of the mountains), benedictiones, misericordiae, salutes, etc. We cannot say that these are un-Latin, but only that their origin in each particular case is Hebrew.

But there are other plurals which are not really Latin at all, but are simply literal renderings of the Hebrew, e. g. carnes Lev. 4. 11, uir sanguinum II Sam. (II Reg.) 16. 7.

§ 18. Hebraisms in gender. Fem. for neut.: 'unam

petii a Domino, hanc requiram' Ps. 27 (26). 4; cf. 'pro hac' Ps. 32 (31). 6, and also Ps. 119 (118). 50, 56; it is as if res were understood in Latin; but the fem. is in each case found in the LXX.

§ 19. Hebraisms in case. Loose Nominative. A nom. is found out of construction, either at the beginning of a sentence (nominatiuus pendens), or in apposition to an oblique case. This is easy in Hebrew, because the Hebrew noun is practically uninflected. The irregularity is found, in the Latin Bible, mainly in the Apocalypse; e. g. for nom. pendens see Apoc. 3. 12 ('Qui uicerit, faciam illum'), 6. 4, 8, but also Mt. 10. 32, and in the Old Test. Ps. 11. 4 (10. 5), 18. 30 (17. 31);¹ for apposition Apoc. 2. 13 ('in diebus Antipas, testis meus fidelis'), cf. 7. 4, 5, 8. 9, and possibly II Cor. 13. 3. The Hebrew word for 'saying' is also used loosely, and so in the Vulg. we have 'dicens' treated as if indeclinable; so 'uidi alterum angelum . . . dicens' (Apoc. 14. 6, 7; cf. 11. 1).

§ 20. Qualitative Genitive. This is the Hebrew 'construct state', in which the former, not the latter, of two nouns is inflected ('man-of blood' not 'man of-blood'); the gen. then becomes equivalent to an adjective, e. g. 'son of peace' = a peaceful man; 'sons of disobedience' = disobedient men Eph. 2. 2. This construction is frequent in the Psalms, e. g. 'uirga directionis' = an upright sceptre Ps. 45. 6 (44. 7), cf. Hebr. 1. 8, 'brachium uirtutis' = a mighty arm Ps. 89. 10 (88. 11), 'mortuos saeculi' = those who have been long dead Ps. 143. 4 (142. 3); in the New Test. it has come in through the Greek, e. g. 'uas electionis' Act. 9. 15 (= σκευος ἐκλογῆς). It is frequent with the name of God, or the Evil One; so 'montes Dei' = goodly mountains Ps. 36. 6 (35. 7), cf. 80. 10 (79. 11); also 'filius Belial' = a worthless man, I Sam. (I Reg.) 25. 17, cf. 25, and I Sam. (I Reg.) 1. 16; 'filius mortis' = a man worthy of death, i. e. who ought to be executed, I Sam. (I Reg.) 20. 31, II Sam. (II Reg.) 12. 5; 'filii mortificationum' = those that are appointed to death Ps. 79 (78). 11; 'filius unius anni erat Saul cum regnare coepisset' I Sam. (I Reg.) 13. 1 literally means that Saul was one year old, which is impossible; but the number is not in the Hebrew, or the unrevised LXX; it was unknown or has dropped out; see the R.V. margin.

¹ In some cases, where the Hebrew has been literally rendered in the LXX, the Vulg. Latin has been corrected; in Act. 7. 40, however, the nom. pendens 'Moses enim hic . . . nescimus quid factum sit ei' (so almost all MSS.) has survived; but when Jerome later was translating Exodus from the Hebrew he turned the passage into correct Latin ('Mosi enim huic uiro . . . nescimus quid acciderit' (Exod. 32. 1, cf. 23).

The gen. is also used to heighten the meaning of the first word and raise it to a superlative; so 'caelum caeli', 'in saecula saeculorum', etc.

§ 21. The Hebrew Cognate Accusative is frequently translated by the abl., e. g. 'trepidauerunt timore' (= 'they feared a fear', Hebr.) Ps. 14 (13). 5, 53. 5 (52. 6), 'scrutantes scrutinio' (= a diligent search) Ps. 64. 6 (63. 7).

§ 22. Accusative and Ablative after Prepositions.

(1) In with acc. in factitive sense = as, for, to be (Hebr. בְּ); 'et sint in signa' (= for signs) Gen. 1. 14; with dare, ponere etc., 'dedi te in lucem gentium' Isa. 49. 6, 'posui te in lumen gentibus ut sis in salutem' Act. 13. 47, cf. Joel 1. 7.

(2) In with abl.:

(a) In almost the same sense, only more static; 'et erunt duo in carne una' Gen. 2. 24, I Cor. 6. 16.

(b) In instrumental or modal sense = with, by means of (Hebr. בְּ); 'interfecit in ea (maxilla) mille uiros' Jud. 15. 15, 16; the Greek there is ἐν, and we have, through the Greek, 'in gladio' Lk. 22. 49; 'seruite Domino in timore' Ps. 2. 11.

(c) In causal sense = for: 'in multiloquio suo' Mt. 6. 7; 'exprobramini in nomine Christi' I Pet. 4. 14; these have come through the Greek.

(3) a with abl., in comparison: 'minuisti eum paulo minus ab angelis' (= a little lower than) Ps. 8. 5 (7), Hebr. 2. 7; 'nomen melius a filiis' Isa. 56. 5; 'a te quid uolui' Ps. 73 (72). 25; and probably 'a fructu frumenti . . . multiplicati sunt' Ps. 4. 8, a highly elliptical sentence.

THE ADJECTIVE

§ 23. Cardinal for Ordinal (as in French with titles): 'dies unus' Gen. 1. 5; 'una sabbati' Lk. 24. 1 etc. (through the Greek).

Comparative followed by a: see above, § 22 (3).

Superlative expressed by inter or super: 'benedicta inter mulieres' Jud. 5. 24; Lk. 1. 42 (through the Greek).

Omnis . . . non or non . . . omnis = no, especially with caro: 'non inmutabit te omnis caro' Ecclus. 33. 21, cf. Mt. 24. 22, Rom. 3. 20, I Cor. 1. 29, Gal. 2. 16; 'non est pax uniuersae carni' Jer. 12. 12.

The expression 'to God' also becomes adjectival and = exceeding, very: e. g. 'gratus Deo' (ἀστέλιος τῷ Θεῷ) Act. 7. 20, 'potentia Deo' II Cor. 10. 4.

THE PRONOUN

§ 24. Redundant Demonstrative. The relative, being indeclinable in Hebrew, is followed by a redundant Demonstrative; and this is reproduced in the Vulgate: e. g. 'sermones quorum non audiantur uoces eorum' Ps. 19. 3 (18. 4), cf. 33 (32). 12, 'ciuitas cuius participatio eius in id ipsum' Ps. 122 (121). 3; in the N.T. through the Greek, Joh. 1. 27, cf. Apoc. 3. 12, 6. 4, 8; after a participle, 'uincenti dabo ei edere' Apoc. 2. 7.¹ See below, § 54.

The interrogative is sometimes equivalent to a wish; 'who will give?' = 'Oh, that some one would give!' So 'quis det talem eos habere mentem' Dt. 5. 29, 'quis dabit' Ps. 14 (13). 7, 53. 8 (52. 7).

ex hoc in illud (Hebr. from kind to kind) = all kinds of: so 'promptuaria . . . eructantia ex hoc in illud' (= affording all manner of store) Ps. 144 (143). 13.

THE VERB

§ 25. Verbs used in a special sense: examples are:

benedicere, to bless, then to say farewell to, then to have nothing to do with, to renounce; and so finally to curse! so 'benedic Deo et morere' Job 2. 9, cf. 1. 5, and I Kgs. (III Reg.) 21. 10, 13.

cadere = simply 'come before': 'si forto cadat oratio eorum in conspectu Domini' Jer. 36. 7.

debere = 'am I to' (Fr. 'dois-je?'): 'ire debeo in Ramoth Galaad?' I Kgs. (III Reg.) 22. 6, cf. II Kgs. (IV Reg.) 5. 13.

facere: 'cito fecerunt, obliti sunt' (= they soon forgot) Ps. 106 (105). 13; so Vulgate; but 'cito obliti sunt' Psalt. iuxta Hebr.

inueterare = render old, wear out, and so to enjoy to the end: 'opera manuum eorum inueterabunt' (= they shall long enjoy the work of their hands) Isa. 65. 22.

leuare: 'leuant animam suam ut reuertantur illuc' (= desire to return there) Jer. 22. 27.

mentiri: lie, then offer feigned, because forced, submission, and so to submit: Ps. 18. 44 (17. 46), 66. 2 (65. 3), 81 (80). 16.

¹ See R. H. Charles, Studies in the Apocalypse, Chap. III ('Hebraic style'), pp. 79-102.

uiuere: as an adjuration, in the phrase 'as the Lord (my soul) liveth, I know not'; 'uiuuit anima tua, rex, si noui' I Sam. (I Reg.) 17. 55, II Sam. (II Reg.) 12. 5; in the N.T. Rom. 14. 11 (quoting Isa. 45. 23 where, however, the phrase is different).

§ 26. Verbal constructions. (a) 'Infinitive absolute': this is prefixed in Hebrew to the finite verb to emphasize the certainty of an action or fact. This emphasis is expressed in Latin by prefixing:

(i) The present participle: e.g. 'plorans plorauit' Lam. 1. 2; 'benedicens benedicam' Hebr. 6. 14; exception in Gen. 22. 17.

(ii) The ablative of the cognate noun with modal force: e.g. 'morte moriatur' Ex. 21. 17, Mt. 15. 4, 'desiderio desiderauit' Lk. 22. 15 (through the Greek), cf. Mic. 2. 12.

(iii) The ablative of the gerund: 'praecipiendo praecipimus' Act. 5. 28.

§ 27. (b) Causative. The Hebrew hiphal (active), and hophal (passive)—the causative voice—is expressed in Latin by facere or dare: e.g. 'fecitque eam regnare' Esth. 2. 17, cf. Mt. 21. 7, Apoc. 3. 9, 'nec dabis sanctum tuum uidere corruptionem' Ps. 16 (15). 10, cf. Act. 2. 27, 13. 35; 'qui posuit fines tuos pacem' Ps. 147. 14; and by an unusual construction 'inluminet uultum suum super nos' Ps. 67 1 (66. 2); also by conlocare (= set, causative of sit) I Kgs. (III Reg.) 2. 24.

§ 28. (c) Repeated action: this is expressed in Hebrew by prefixing the verb 'to add'; it is reproduced literally in Latin, e.g. 'addidit Dominus ut appareret' I Sam. (I Reg.) 3. 21, and through the Greek 'addidit . . . mittere' Lk. 20. 11, 12; also 'adiecit . . . rursum uocare', 'adiecit . . . et uocauit' I Sam. (I Reg.) 3. 8, cf. Isa. 7. 10, Nah. 1. 15; 'adposuerunt adhuc peccare' (= sinned yet more) Ps. 78. 18

(77. 17), cf. Act. 12. 3. We similarly say in English, 'He added sin to sin'.

So also in the phrase translated into English as 'and more also' the Vulgate renders literally 'haec mihi faciat Dominus et haec addat' Ruth 1. 17, cf. I Kgs. (III Reg.) 19. 2; followed by si or nisi.

Under this head may be also noted the idiomatic use of magnificare and multiplicare to denote intensive or repeated action, chiefly (though not exclusively) on the part of God; the construction is with the Accus., the Infin., or ut with Subj.

magnificare: 'linguam nostram magnificabimus' (= with our tongue will we prevail) Ps. 12. 4 (11. 5), cf. Obad. (Abd.) 12; 'magnificans salutes' (= giving great salvation to) Ps. 18 (17). 51; 'magnificauit super me supplantationem' LXX ἐμεγάλυνεν ἐπ' ἐμὲ πτερνισμόν, Hebr. 'has made great against me (his) heel', P.B. 'laid great wait', Ps. 41. 9 (40. 10); 'magnificauit Dominus facere' (= hath done great things) Ps. 126. 3, 4 (125. 2, 3), 'm. D. ut faceret' Joel 2. 21.

multiplicare: 'multiplicasti misericordiam' Ps. 36. 7 (35. 8),¹ 'm. magnificentiam' Ps. 71. 19 (70. 21); 'm. locupletare (terram)' Ps. 65. 9 (64. 10); in pass. 'multiplicata est in eis ruina' Ps. 106 (105). 29.

Also 'multus est ad ignoscendum' (= he will abundantly pardon) Isa. 55. 7.

§ 29. Other verbs. The following verbal constructions, foreign to classical Latin, are more or less moulded on the Hebrew:

¹ So in the Sarum Missal, whence it has passed into our own Prayer Book, in the Collect for the 4th S. after Trinity; in that for the 11th S. after Trinity the 'multiplica super nos gratiam tuam' is rendered 'mercifully grant unto us such a measure of thy grace'.

- adhaerere post*: 'adhaesit anima mea post te' Ps. 63 (62). 9.
- admirari super*: 'admirabatur super doctrina' Mk. 11. 18,
cf. Mt. 7. 28, Ezek. 26. 16.
- aemulari in*: 'noli aemulari in malignantibus' Ps. 37 (36).
1, cf. 7.
- aestimare*: 'aestimati sumus sicut oues occisionis' Ps. 44 (43). 22.
- aspicere in*: 'aspice in me' Ps. 119 (118). 132.
- attendere ab*: 'attendite ab omni iniquo' Eccclus. 17. 11,
'att. a falsis prophetis' Mt. 7. 15 etc.
- attendere super*: 'att. uobis super hominibus istis' Act.
5. 35; also
- attendere ad, att. in, and att.* with dat., acc. (person and thing), and with ne.
- blasphemare in*: 'blasph. in Bel' Dan. 14. 8, 'blasph. in Spir.' Mk. 3. 29 (not a classical word).
- confidere super*: 'confisi super sanctum Israhel' Isa. 31. 1, 'conf. super baculum' Isa. 36. 6 (usual constr. with in and abl.).
- deficere in*: with acc. (= for want of); 'defecit in salutare tuum anima mea' Ps. 119 (118). 81, cf. 82, 123.
- formidare a*: 'cor tuum ne formidet a duabus caudis' Isa.
7. 4, cf. 31. 4, Jer. 1. 17.
- formidare super*: 'formidabunt super te' Ezek. 32. 10.
- iudicare de*: 'sancti de hoc mundo iudicabunt' I Cor. 6. 2,
cf. 5. 12, and Apoc. 19. 2; this is not through the Greek,
which has κρίνειν with the acc.
- misereri in*: 'in seruis suis miserebitur' Dt. 32. 36.
- misereri super*: 'misertus est Dominus super afflictione'
II Sam. (II Reg.) 24. 16, cf. Amos 7. 3, 6; 'miseror super turbam' Mk. 8. 2, cf. 6. 34, and Jonah 3. 10; also with dat. frequently, esp. in the phrase 'misertus est eis' Mt. 9. 36, cf. 17. 15 etc.

pauere a: 'a facie nominis mei pauebat' Mal. 2. 5.

pauere ad: 'pauebant ad Dominum' (shall come with fear unto the Lord R.V.) Hos. 3. 5.

pauere super: 'super quo pauet anima uestra' Ezek. 24. 21.

pertinere de: 'de nobis pertinebit' II Sam. (II Reg.) 18. 3; cf. Joh. 10. 13, 12. 6 (through the Greek).

respicere ad: 'respexit Dominus ad Abel' Gen. 4. 4.

timere a: 'timere a facie' Neh. (II Esdr.) 4. 14; 'a iudiciis . . . timui' Ps. 119 (118). 120.

uelle in: 'in mandatis eius uolet nimis' (= greatly delight in) Ps. 112 (111). 1.

§ 30. Indefinite subject. The 3rd Pers. Sing. is used in Hebrew with an indefinite subject, corresponding to the German man, and French on; this is literally reproduced in the Vulgate, though the sense is often best rendered by the English passive; thus 'propterea appellauit puteum illum' = wherefore the well was called' Gen. 16. 14, 'numquid Sion dicet (= it shall be said of Sion; so 'ad Sion dicetur' Psalt. iuxta Hebr.) Ps. 87 (86). 5; 'flens ascendet' (= with weeping they shall go up) Isa. 15. 5.

MISCELLANEOUS: PARTICLES, ETC.

§ 31. Emphasis is produced by repetition: 'seruabis pacem pacem' (= thou wilt keep him in perfect peace) Isa. 26. 3, cf. 'homo homo' (= every man) Ezek. 14. 4, 7; cf. also Ezek. 46. 14, 15, Ps. 68. 12 (67. 13) where the 'dilecti dilecti' translates the LXX τῶ ἀγαπητοῦ τοῦ ἀγαπητοῦ rather than the Hebr., which means 'they flee, they flee' (i. e. they flee apace). On the other hand Dt. 7. 22 בְּעָפְרָהּ בְּעָפְרָהּ (little by little) is paraphrased, not translated, by the Vulg. 'paulatim atque per partes'; cf. Ezek. 24. 6.

Repetition with et: 'pondus et pondus, mensura et men-surā' (= a double weight . . . measure) Prov. 20. 10, 'in corde et corde' (= with a double heart) Ps. 12. 2 (11. 3); 'generatio et generatio laudabit opera tua' (= one generation shall praise thy works unto another) Ps. 145 (144). 4; so frequently 'in generationem et generationem' (= unto many generations), 'in progenie et progenie' etc.¹

§ 32. Repetition with Prepositions: 'mensis ex mense et sabbatum ex sabbato' (= from one sabbath to another) Isa. 66. 23; 'cubiculum intra cubiculum' (= an inner chamber) I Kgs. (III Reg.) 22. 25.

ab . . . usque ad are also employed in the sense of 'both . . . and'; thus 'ab homine usque ad animantia' Gen. 6. 7, cf. Ps. 135 (134). 8; 'ab anima usque ad carnem' (= both soul and body) Isa. 10. 18.

si. In emphatic speech, especially in adjurations, si = a negative, si . . . non or nisi = an affirmative: thus 'semel iuravi in sancto meo, si David mentiar' (= I will not lie unto David) Ps. 89. 34 (88. 36), 'si introibunt in requiem meam' (= they shall not enter into my rest) Ps. 95 (94). 11, cf. Hebr. 4. 3; see also Ps. 132 (131). 3, 4, Mk. 8. 12. On the other hand 'si non . . . reddam tibi' (= I will surely requite thee) II Kgs. (IV Reg.) 9. 26, 'nisi domus multae desertae fuerint' (= of a truth many houses shall be deserted) Isa. 5. 9, cf. Jer. 49. 20. This si is not really a negative. The 'not' comes from a suppressed clause, 'if . . . (then my oath will be in vain', which in the case of God it cannot be).

¹ We still say 'for ever and ever' in the Doxology to the Lord's Prayer; but that Doxology, though in the Textus Receptus of Mt. 6. 13, and in our P. B., was never in the Vulgate.

II

THE FOREIGN ELEMENT

B. GREEK

§ 33. The influence of Greek on Latin began at an early age from the intercourse of the Romans with the Greek colonies in Southern Italy, known collectively as Magna Graecia; it was increased by the conquest of Greece soon after B. C. 200, and culminated with the time of Cicero and the Augustan age. Cicero derived his philosophy and oratory from the Greek models; Vergil wove his great epic from the mingled threads of the Iliad and the Odyssey.

The process still went on. Just as many of us now can remember the transition from clôture into 'closure', so in the old world many words which were written in foreign characters when Cicero 'spoke Greek', became completely naturalized and, by the time of Tertullian and the Old Latin Bible, were written in Roman letters. In the realm of literature 'Graecia capta ferum uictorem cepit'¹

Hence a vast number of Greek words—commercial, nautical, and general—became Latin long before the Christian era, and are by no means peculiar to Christian latinity; such words as mina, talentum, ancora, machina, purpura, theatrum, philosophia, belong to the early period of Greek influence.

¹ Horace, Epp. II. i. 156.

In the letters and treatises of Cicero the number was largely increased ; and in his age too, y and z were added to the Roman alphabet to represent the Greek letters v and ξ, as lyra, zona (previously spelt sona); also the compounds ch, th, ph, rh, as parochus, thesaurus, philosophus, rhetor ; though Jerome still (if we may trust the oldest MSS.) wrote fiata, caracter, etc.

§ 34. In the case of the Vulgate the influence of the Greek is the more direct and obvious in consequence of the almost slavish literalness with which, in the Psalms and the New Testament, the Old Latin—of which the Vulgate was but a revision—followed the Greek text ; in construction and the order of words it renders it exactly. Take for instance the following :

Ἐν τῷ ἐπιστρέψαι Κύριον τὴν αἰχμαλωσίαν Σιών ἐγενήθημεν

In conuertendo Dominus captiuitatem Sion facti sumus

ὡς παρακεκλημένοι· τότε ἐπλήσθη χαρᾶς τὸ στόμα ἡμῶν sicut consolati: tunc repletum est gaudio os nostrum

καὶ ἡ γλῶσσα ἡμῶν ἀγαλλιάσεως

et lingua nostra exsultatione (Ps. 126 [125]. 1, 2).

Παιδιά, ἐσχάτη ὥρα ἐστίν· καὶ καθὼς ἠκούσατε ὅτι

Filioli, nouissima hora est: et sicut audistis quia ἀντίχριστος ἔρχεται, καὶ νῦν ἀντίχριστοι πολλοὶ γεγόνασιν· antichristus uenit et nunc antichristi multi facti sunt:

ὅθεν γινώσκομεν ὅτι ἐσχάτη ὥρα ἐστίν.

unde scimus quia nouissima hora est (I Joh. 2. 18).

Similar instances are found in Mk. 14. 21; Act. 1. 1-5, 21-2; 3. 18 (impleuit . . . sic); 24. 16; Heb. 6. 16; II Pet. 2. 21, 3. 1; Jude 18, etc. Nearly all the features of the New Testament Vulgate Latin which look strange to the classical scholar may be explained by this fact; we seem almost driven to the conclusion that the earliest translations were interlinear, and that the translator did little more than write the corresponding Latin under each Greek word. Yet we must not think that the Greek order is entirely accidental or purposeless; it exists for the sake of simplicity and emphasis, and this twofold purpose is followed in the Latin.

§ 35. The same explanation covers irregularities such as ellipsis, anacolouthon, etc.

The most frequent ellipsis is that of the copulative verb to be; this is found in both Old and New Test., especially in proverbial or didactic sayings (Sapiential literature; Beatitudes), in ascriptions of praise, or in exclamatory sentences introduced by quam, ecce, etc.; so 'principium sapientiae timor Domini' Prov. 9. 10, 'beatus uir qui' Ps. 1. 1, 'beati mundo corde' Mt. 5. 6, 'ecce filius tuus' Joh. 19. 26, cf. 27; 'benedictio et claritas . . . Deo nostro Apoc. 7. 12.

A necessary and self-evident word is often implied, not expressed: e. g. 'prohibentium nubere, abstinere a cibus' (= forbidding to marry, commanding to abstain from meats) I Tim. 4. 3. So in the suspended sentence (aposiopesis), 'si fecerit fructum; sin autem in futurum succides eam' (= if it bear fruit, well; but) Lk. 13. 9, 'sicut rogavi te ut remaneres' (= as I besought thee to remain, so I do now) I Tim. 1. 3.

§ 36. Other irregularities are obvious literalisms from the Greek; e. g. the Greek construction of article-with-participle (he who lives, those who serve) occasionally produces a sentence which begins with a qui or cum clause, and ends with a participle. Thus 'hic est homo qui . . . ubique docens' (ὁ . . . διδάσκων) Act. 21. 28, 'his quidem qui . . . quaerentibus¹ (τοῖς μὲν . . . ζητοῦσιν) Rom. 2. 7, cf. Phil. 3. 3, and Jude 1; with simple participle 'cum legisset autem et interrogasset . . . et cognoscens' Act. 23. 34 (= ἀναγνοὺς δὲ καὶ ἐπερωτήσας . . . καὶ πυθόμενος).

Sometimes the literalisms are partial; e.g. 'potestatem conuertendi . . . et percutere' Apoc. 11. 6, where the Greek has the infin. in both cases. Occasionally irregular constructions in the Latin correspond to irregular constructions in the Greek, as 'nullam requiem habuit caro nostra, sed omnem tribulationem passi' (= οὐδεμίαν ἔσχηκεν ἀνεσιν ἡ σὰρξ ἡμῶν, ἀλλ' ἐν παντὶ θλιβόμενοι) II Cor. 7. 5, cf. 5. 6-8, Phil. 1. 29, 30, Col. 3. 16; 'dando leges meas . . . et in corde eorum superscribam eas' (= διδούς νόμους μου . . . καὶ ἐπὶ καρδίας αὐτῶν ἐπιγράψω αὐτοῦς) Hebr. 8 10.

LEXICAL INFLUENCE

§ 37. With most of our English biblical, ecclesiastical, and theological terms, the source is Greek but they have come to us through the Latin. The Vulgate contains many words—nouns, adjectives, verbs—derived from the Greek, including (1) words used in ordinary life, (2) technical terms used in a religious sense, in connexion with Jewish or Christian faith, institutions, or worship; most of these, especially those belonging to the last class, occur in the New Testament. In many cases the Greek word is found in the Vulgate but not in the corresponding passage of the LXX or Greek Testament.

NOUNS

§ 38. The following ordinary (i.e. non-theological) Greek words are taken over into the Vulgate:

¹ So the Oxford text; the Sixtine and Clementine editions have corrected to 'quaerunt'.

abyssus, agon, arrhabo (Gen. 38. 17, 18 ; but in N.T. pignus is employed), botrus, cataclysmus, cataractae, cathedra, cauma (Job 30. 30) cidaris (= κίδαρις, a mitre), colaphus, cophinus, crater, crypta (Jer. 43. 9), exedra (= a hall with seats ; but it is never used to translate ἐξέδρα, which is rendered gazophylacium ; see Ezek. 40. 44, etc.), gigas (sometimes = the Hebr. rephaim, the shades of the dead ; see Prov. 9. 18), grabattum (κράβαττον), horologium, hydria, latomus, lithostrotus, luter, melota, mitra, nauclerius, nomisma, palatha, papyrio, parapsis, peripsima, phalanx, probatica, ptisane, pytho, pythonissa, sagena, satrapa, sicera, sindon, sporta (= σπυρίς?), symphonia, telonium, trieris, tristega (plur. = τὰ τρίστεγα), zelotypia (= jealousy ; cf. Cic. Tusc. Disp. 4. 8. 18), zizania (plur. only).

§ 39. Greek religious terms : anathema, apostata, azyma, baptisma, charisma,¹ diabolus, encenia (Joh. 10. 22), ethnicus, extasis, gazophylacium, idolothytus, neophytus, parascue (Acc. -en), paracletus, pentecoste, phylacterium, proselytus, scenopegia, schisma, zelus.

ADJECTIVES

§ 40. These are not very numerous, but the following may be noted : acharis (ἄχαρις ; see Eccclus. 20. 21), eucharis (εὐχαρις ; ib. 6. 5), laicus (I Sam. = I Reg. 21. 4 ; but the LXX there is βέβηλος, not λαικός), pythonicus (Lev. 20. 27), in the Old Test. ; and diabolicus (Jac. 3. 15), discolus (I Pet. 2. 18), dithalassus (Act. 27. 41), pisticus (Joh. 12. 3), propheticus, typhonicus (Act. 27. 14).

¹ Christian latinity adopted charisma but not charis ; thus neither the Vulgate nor the English version brings out the connexion which exists in the Greek between χάρις and χάρισμα ; Tertullian rendered the latter word by donatium (de Resurr. 47, quoting Rom. 6. 23 ; cf. Adu. Marcionem V. 8, quoting Eph. 4. 8).

VERBS

§ 41. More frequent than adjectives: e.g. apostatare (Ecclus. 10. 14, 19. 2, the Gk. is ἀφισταμένου and ἀποστήσουσιν), cataplastare (Isa. 38. 21), also plasmare (Ps. 74 [73]. 17: but Gk. ἐποίησας), gyrare (intrans. and trans.; see Gen. 30. 32, II Sam. (II Reg.) 5. 23, Judith 13. 12, I Macc. 13. 20, Ecclus. 29. 25, 43. 13; the last is the only passage in which γυρόω occurs in the Greek), zelare (with perfect zelatus sum) = to be jealous over (with acc. 'zelatus est Dominus terram' Joel 2. 18; but also with prep. 'zelavi super iniquos' = 'I was envious at the wicked' Ps. 73 [72]. 3; in N.T. absolute, see Act. 17. 5, Jac. 4. 2).

§ 42. A special class of verbs consists of those derived from Greek verbs in -αζω and -ιζω; as anathematizare, baptizare, catechizare, colaphizare, euangelizare, iudaizare, prophetizare, sabbatizare, scandalizare, thesaurizare. Deponent: agonizari.¹

INFLEXIONAL INFLUENCE

§ 43. The Greek Accusative is common in Latin, especially in the poets. In the Vulgate it is most seen in proper names: Barraban, Barnaban, Caiaphan, Euphraten, Iohannen, Parasceuen, Pentecosten, Satanan, Tigrin. The Codex Amiatinus is fond of these terminations.

¹ Agonizari (or -are) does not occur in the Vulgate N.T., and only once in the O.T. ('pro iustitia agonizare pro anima tua' = 'strive for righteousness unto the death', Ecclus. 4. 33), but the Old Lat. Cod. Boernerianus of St. Paul's Epp. (G and g) has 'omnis enim qui agonizat uel in agone contendit' for πᾶς δὲ ὁ ἀγωνιζόμενος in I Cor. 9. 25. The Gk. ἀγωνίζομαι occurs seven times in the N.T., indeed eight if we adopt the reading of the older uncials in I Tim. 4. 10; Jerome allowed no less than five renderings of the verb in the Vulgate: contendere, decertare, in agone contendere, certare, sollicitus (= ἀγωνιζόμενος).

In 2nd Decl. we have charadrion Lev. 11. 19 (but -ium Dt. 14. 18) from charadrius (= χαραδριός, a bustard; though the Hebr. = a heron or ibis), epinicion, topazion.

In 3rd Decl. : aera, aethera, cete, etc.

Acc. plur. periscelidas Isa. 3. 20 (but -des Num. 31. 50), Macedonas Esth. 16. 14 (but -nes II Cor. 9. 2).

Genitive : Taneos Ps. 78 (77.) 12, 43, Isa. 19. 11, 13.

SYNTACTICAL INFLUENCE

§ 44. Agreement : (a) gender. The pronoun sometimes agrees not with its own substantive but with the underlying Greek; this is, however, not a Vulgate but an Old Latin characteristic; e. g. in such MSS. as d f we find illum with uerbum (i. e. λόγον); conversely 'si non potest hic calix transire nisi bibam illud Mt. 26. 42 (f) = ἐὰν μὴ αὐτὸ πίοω.

(b) number. A singular verb occurs after a neuter plural; 'ut manifestetur opera Dei' Joh. 9. 3 (many Vg. and O.L. MSS.); 'ita corrumpatur sensus uestri' II Cor. 11. 3 (T d e = φθαρῆ τὰ νοήματα ὑμῶν); 'animalis autem homo non percipit ea quae sunt spiritus Dei; stultitia est enim illi: et non potest intellegere, quia spiritaliter examinatur' I Cor. 2. 14 is a Vulgate reading (= ἐστίν and ἀνακρίνεται) but the singular verbs may have been influenced by the intervening stultitia.

(c) case. Accusative: the so-called 'Greek accusative' (in the syntactical sense) is frequent in Latin, especially in the poets, after 'to clothe', where the passive is really reflexive and = to put on oneself (a dress, etc.); so 'inutile ferrum cingitur' Verg. (Aen. II. 510 f.). Thus in Vg. 'induit eum stolam gloriae' Ecclus. 45. 9, cf. I Macc. 3. 3, 14. 9; 'calcia te galliculas tuas' Act. 12. 8; 'amicti stolas albas' Apoc. 7. 9 (but stolis 13); see also Joh. 21. 7, Eph. 6. 14,

I Thess. 5. 8, and compare 'expoliantes uos ueterem hominem' Col. 3. 9, with 'honorem Caesaris spoliarent' Caesar Bell. Gall. viii. 50. 4.

The 'accusative of respect' is also found: 'doluit pedes' I Kgs. (III Reg.) 15. 23 (= he was diseased in his feet); 'abluti corpus aqua munda' Hebr. 10. 22.

Genitive: found after comparative; 'maius horum aliud mandatum non est' Mk. 12. 31 (= μείζων τούτων ἄλλη ἐντολή οὐκ ἔστιν); see also Joh. 14. 12, Act. 17. 11, Hebr. 3. 3, 6. 16, III Joh. 4; Ecclus. 16. 6.

Genitive also found after adjectives; 'docibiles Dei' Joh. 6. 45 (= διδασκοὶ Θεοῦ) cf. I Cor. 2. 13, 'incessabiles delicti' II Pet. 2. 14.

Genitive absolute (instead of abl. abs.) is common in the Old Latin versions but very rare in the Vulgate; possible cases are 'accipietis uirtutem superuenientis spiritus sancti in uos' Act. 1. 8 (though the gen. here could be taken as dependent on uirtutem), 'inter se inuicem cogitationum accusantium aut etiam defendentium' Rom. 2. 15, 'crescentis fidei uestrae' II Cor. 10. 15.

§ 45. Place names. The prep. in is found with names of towns, especially when indeclinable; 'ut fugerem in Tharsis' Jon. 1. 3, 4. 2, 'in Azotum' I Macc. 10. 78, 'reuersus est in Hierusalem' 87; 'inuentus est in Azoto' Act. 8. 40, cf. Joh. 4. 46, I Thess. 2. 2.

ADJECTIVES

§ 46. Positive for Comparative, with quam = ἢ: 'bonum tibi est . . . quam' Mt. 18. 9 (= it is better . . . than), cf. Ps. 118 (117). 8, 9, Ecclus. 16. 4, 20. 1; so also 'bonum erat ei, si non esset natus homo ille' Mt. 26. 24.

VERBS

(Construction following the Greek.)

§ 47. (a) Verbs taking accusative.

benedicere, maledicere: 'benedicite Dominum', etc. Pss. constantly, and elsewhere; but it takes the dat. almost as frequently; maledicere nearly always with dat., but with acc. Ecclus. 21. 30, Act. 19. 9, 23. 4, 5, Jac. 3. 9.

commemorari: 'commemorati sunt Dominum' Wisd. (Sap.) 11. 14, 'neque comm. sunt semitas eius' Baruch 3. 23.

confundi: 'filius hominis confundetur eum' Mc. 8. 38 (= be ashamed of him).

inluminare: 'inluminare terram' Gen. 1. 15 (= to shed light upon); so 'inluminare omnes' Eph. 3. 9 (= to enlighten); but also with dat. 'inluminabit tibi Christus' Eph. 5. 14.

nocere: 'non eos nocebit' Mc. 16. 18, cf. Apoc. 11. 5, 'nihilque illum nocuit' Lk. 4. 35 (= did not hurt him at all).

petere: 'petenti te tribue' Lk. 6. 30, cf. Mt. 6. 8, 7. 11, Lk. 11. 11; Gr. αἰτεῖν τινά.

suadere: 'suade Hebraeam illam' Judith 12. 10, 'in conspectu eius suadebimus corda nostra' I Joh. 3. 19 (= πείσομεν τὴν καρδίαν ἡμῶν).

triumphare: '[Deus] triumphat nos' II Cor. 2. 14 (= leadeth us in triumph), cf. Col. 2. 15.

zelare: 'zelaueris facientes iniquitatem' Ps. 37 (36.) 1, cf. Joel 2. 18, Zach. 1. 14, 8. 2, Ecclus. 9. 16; with cognate acc., as Hebr., 'zelando zelum Dei' I Macc. 2. 54, cf. Judith 9. 3.

(b) Verbs taking genitive.

dominari: 'principes gentium dominantur eorum' Mt. 20. 25 (= κατακυριεύουσιν αὐτῶν; rule over them), cf. Lk. 22. 25, Rom. 14. 9; in the Old Test. Gen. 3. 16, Num.

16. 13, Dt. 15. 6, Jud. 8. 22, 23, Isa. 54. 5, Jer. 31. 32 etc.
implere:¹ 'implebo montes eius occisorum suorum' Ezek.

35. 8, 'impletae sunt nuptiae discumbentium' Mt. 22. 10.
regnare: 'regnabit Dominus illorum' Wisd. (Sap.) 3. 8.

(c) Verbs taking dative.

adorare: found with dat. in Old Latin, and once only in Vulgate, 'adorato Domino Deo tuo' Dt. 26. 10; προσκυνεῖν is used with dat. in LXX and N.T., but here the Greek is προσκυνήσεις ἐκεῖ ἔναντι κυρίου κ.τ.λ.

loqui: 1. ei² Mt. 12. 46, Joh. 12. 29; cf. Gen. 24. 7, 30, etc.; similarly dicere with dat. Ps. 45 1 (44. 2), 110 (109). 1, Mt. 5. 22, etc.

VOICE, MOOD, AND TENSE

§ 48. The freer personal use of the Passive in Greek with verbs which do not take an accusative is followed in the Vulgate: e. g. 'credita sunt illis eloquia Dei' Rom. 3. 2 (= ἐπιστεύθησαν, they were entrusted with), 'dispensatio mihi credita est' I Cor. 9. 17 (= πεπίστευμαι), 'creditum est mihi euangelium' Gal. 2. 7, cf. I Thess. 2. 4. In the Greek the passive verb takes an acc. of the object entrusted; in English two constructions, both personal, are used, either 'I was entrusted with', or 'the Gospel was entrusted to me'.

At other times the ordinary classical Impersonal construction is used: e. g. 'ubique ei contradicitur' Act. 28. 22 (= πανταχοῦ ἀντιλέγεται) 'responsum est Mosi' Hebr. 8. 5 (= κεχρημάτισται Μωσῆς), 'nobis nuntiatum est' Hebr. 4. 2 (= ἔσμεν εὐηγγελισμένοι).

¹ This gen. is found in the Classical poets; e. g. 'implentur ueteris Bacchi pinguisque ferinae', Verg. Aen. I. 215, 'quo me, Bacche, rapis tui plenum', Hor. Carm. III. 25. 1.

² In Plautus male loqui with dat. = to speak evil of.

§ 49. It is sometimes hard to tell whether a Greek verb is Middle or Passive: e. g. ἐν τῷ κρίνεσθαι σε Ps. 51. 4 (50. 6) the verb is most probably middle (= when thou comest into judgement; so R.V. in Rom. 3. 4), but the Vulg. takes it as passive ('cum iudicaris'), and so it is rendered in the quotation Rom. 3. 4; and the P. B. Psalter, and the A.V. at Rom. 3. 4 render 'when thou art judged'; but Jerome in his Psalt. iuxta Hebr. translated the Hebr. as active, 'cum iudicaueris', and our own A. and R.V. render it there 'when thou judgest'.

προεχόμεθα in Rom. 3. 9 is extremely difficult; the Vulg. renders 'praecellimus eos?'; but see the R.V. and marg. for other renderings.

INFINITIVE

§ 50. Here Greek is nearer than classical Latin to English idiom, and in following the Greek the Vulgate is leading the way to modern speech. The infinitive is used in various ways:

(a) Infinitive of purpose, instead of ut with the subjunctive: so 'uenimus adorare' Mt. 2. 2, cf. Act. 7. 43, 'respexit auferre' Lk. 1. 25: see also Mk. 5. 32, 13. 16, Lk. 21. 38, Joh. 21. 3 etc.; also found in early Latin.

(b) Infinitive after habere: 'non habent retribuere' Lk. 14. 14 (= οὐχ ἔχουσιν ἀνταποδοῦναι), cf. 12. 50, 'multa habeo uobis dicere' Joh. 16. 12, cf. III Joh. 13.

This is also used in practically a future sense in the Old Latin, e. g. 'omnes uos scandalizari habetis' Mk. 14. 27 d (= σκανδαλισθήσεσθε), 'ubi habebat uenire' Lk. 10. 1 d (= ἐμελλεν ἔρχεσθαι), cf. 19. 4; 'omnes homines resurgere habent' Athanasian Creed; the future in French and Italian has grown out of this; also in Spanish and Portuguese.

(c) Infinitive after *capere: 'non capit prophetam perire' Lk. 13. 33 (= οὐκ ἐνδέχεται; non est possibile); also after esse, e. g. 'non est Dominicam caenam manducare' I Cor. 11. 20 (= it is not possible).

(d) Infinitive with Adjective: 'potens est depositum . . . seruare' II Tim. 1. 12, 'dignus . . . accipere' Apoc. 4. 11, cf. 5. 2. This construction is not unclassical, especially in poetry, e. g. 'indocilis . . . pati' Hor. Odes, I. 1. 18, cf. 2. 43, 3. 25.

(e) Infinitive for the Gerund: 'potestatem dimittere' Lk. 5. 24 (= ἐξουσίαν ἀφιέναι); in Mt. 9. 6 and Mk. 2. 10 it is 'potestatem dimittendi'.

(f) Infinitive after Prohibitions: 'prohibiti sunt accipere' II Kgs. (IV Reg.) 12. 8, 'uetati sunt . . . loqui' Act. 16. 6 (= κωλυθέντες . . . λαλῆσαι).

PARTICIPLE

§ 51. The Vulgate follows the Greek in using the Present Participle instead of the Infinitive after verbs of ceasing and continuing: 'cum consummasset Iesus praecipiens' Mt. 11. 1, cf. Eph. 1. 15, Col. 1. 9, II Thess. 3. 13, 'perseuerabat pulsans' Act. 12. 16 (= ἐπέμενε κρούων); cessare is, however, frequently found with the Infinitive, especially in the Old Test., e. g. 'cessauerunt aedificare ciuitatē' Gen. 11. 8 etc.

§ 52. The Ablative Absolute is used loosely instead of the Participle, when the Subject is the same as the Subject or Object of the principal sentence: 'ascendente eo in nauiculam, secuti sunt eum discipuli eius' Mt. 8. 23, cf. 34, 9. 27, Act. 7. 21, 19. 30, II Cor. 4. 18; after tamquam II Cor. 5. 20; loosely appended after et quidem Hebr. 4. 3.

GERUND

§ 53. The Gerund with *in is frequently used to render the Greek Articular Infinitive with preposition. This is found in the Gallican Psalter, but was always altered by Jerome in his Psalt. iuxta Hebr.; e.g. 'in conuertendo inimicum meum retrorsum' Ps. 9. 4 (cum ceciderint inimici mei retrorsum Psalt. iuxta Hebr.), cf. 102. 22 (101. 23), 126 (125). 1, 142 (141). 4.

RELATIVE

§ 54. The Relative is frequently followed by a redundant Demonstrative: 'cuius non sum dignus . . . soluere corrigiam calciamentorum eius' Mk. 1. 7, 'quorum non audiantur uoces eorum' Ps. 19. 3 (18. 4); so 33 (32). 12, 40 (39). 5, 144 (143). 15, 146. 4 (145. 5); but in these cases the Greek itself is influenced by the Hebrew; see above, § 24.

These illustrations of Graecism might be indefinitely extended by further examples from the New Test., since the peculiarities of the Latin mainly arise from its strict adherence to the hebraistic and hellenistic Greek of the original; some features, however, are best treated later in their grammatical order.¹

¹ The many points of resemblance between Horace and Jerome (in the New Test.) are due to the fact that each was designedly following a Greek model. Horace freely, even proudly, acknowledged that his lute was tuned by the Lesbian Alcaeus, and that the strains he drew from it breathed 'the delicate spirit of the Grecian Muse'; see Odes, I. 32. 5; II. 16. 38; III. 30. 13; IV. 3. 12; Epist., I. 19. 21-34.

III

THE NATIVE ELEMENT: LEXICAL PECULIARITIES

A. FORM

§ 55. Christian latinity, though from one point of view the dawn of a new era, came in at a late stage in the history of the Latin language and literature. The language of Rome, like the city, was not built in a day. A living language cannot stand still; as time advances old forms lose, in current use, some of their original significance and force, or acquire a new meaning with the rise of new ideas. Especially in the language of religion and theology new and strengthened forms, new and loftier meanings are developed.

This new and popular element, while naturally most conspicuous in the Old Latin, is also found in the Vulgate, even in those parts which come direct from Jerome's hand. Jerome felt himself, at best, a reviser; the Ciceronian was held in check by the Christian—by reverence for the sacred text, and regard for its familiarity to the Christian reader. The desire to be intelligible was stronger than the desire to be scholarly.

The chief features of the popular style, as found in the Vulgate and, still more, in the uncorrected Old Latin, may be briefly indicated. The use of new and strengthened forms is seen in all the principal parts of speech. Thus:

§ 56. I. Nouns and Adjectives are lengthened by the use of new terminations; diminutives are freely employed; new Abstracts are used, especially Abstracts in the Plural, in a Concrete sense.

2. Verbs are found in fuller and stronger forms, produced by the use of new words or of new terminations. Prepositions are prefixed, sometimes doubled, forming new compounds.

3. Pronouns are added to strengthen the 3rd person, or to supply the lack of the Greek Definite Article.

4. Adverbs are used with the termination -ter instead of -e; or are combined with prepositions, so as to form an adverbial or prepositional phrase, anticipating the prepositions or adverbs of modern Romance languages.

5. Prepositions are prefixed to Nouns, to strengthen the meaning of the Case-form.

6. In Construction, the Infinitive replaces the classical Subjunctive, and the Present Participle is freely used, either independently, or with the copulative esse.

7. The use of Original Speech (Oratio recta) becomes more common, while, in Reported Speech (Oratio obliqua) the classical Acc. with Infin. gives way to the use of Conjunctions—quod, quia, or quoniam—followed frequently (even generally) by the Indicative.

In a word, we have the first stages of the process by which the synthetical forms of the old classical languages are broken up into the analytical forms of modern speech.¹

§ 57. The distinguishing features here enumerated fall under three heads: (a) Lexical, (b) Inflexional, (c) Syntactical. The Lexical is concerned with words, their form (including their spelling), and their meaning. The first question, therefore, is that as to the spelling of words in the Vulgate.

¹ See Roensch, Itala und Vulgata, pp. 271 ff.

ORTHOGRAPHY¹

§ 58. The spelling here adopted—at least as far as regards the New Test.—is that of the Oxford Critical Edition of the Vulgate N.T., which reproduces the forms found in the oldest MSS., especially the Codex Amiatinus (A); it must not be concluded, however, that this or any other ancient MS. is always consistent in its orthography; e. g. A has temptare in Gospels, Acts, and Apoc., temptare in the Epistles; F (Fuldensis) has cotidie in Acts 2. 46, cottidie in 47, etc., etc. The ‘rusticitas’ (as Tischendorf calls it) of these MSS. must not be judged by a Ciceronian standard, but must be considered on its own merits; only a brief summary can be given here; for fuller details the reader is referred to the authorities cited below.

The following deviations from customary spelling should be noted:

§ 59. Vowels. A: consparsio, parapsis. AE: caelum, caena (but cenaculum), maerere, paenitentia (but proelium). E: erugo, ingemescere, intellegere, neglegere. I: calciamentum, Ariopagus; abicere, enicere, etc.; Dionisius, hiems, lacrima. U: adulescens, epistula, lucusta, murra. Also, as alternative forms, clodus, intingere, pedagogus, scabillum, spiritalis, ungentum.

§ 60 Consonants.² Brabium, optuli; cotidie, simula-

¹ See the Editio Minor, Praef., pp. xi-xiii; Harden, Dictionary of the Vulg. N.T., Introd., pp. ix-xi; Psalt. iuxta Hebr., Introd., pp. xxvi-xxvii; Tischendorf, Nouum Testamentum Amiatinum, Prol., pp. xxvii-xxx.

² What is called betacism (the interchange of b and v) causes great confusion in verbs of the first conjugation; even the Sixtine and Clementine editions read mandauit in Mt. 4. 6, and donauit in Rom. 8. 32, though the Greek has the future in each case.

crum, sepulchrum ; caracter, clamys (but chaos, charisma) ; haut I Tim. 6. 7 ; orfanus, fiala ; didragma ; harena, harundo, holus (but osanna, umerus) ; milia, uilicus, loquella, sollicitus ; temptare ; mercennarius, praegnas (but quotiens) ; oportunus ; tus, turibulum, grabattum, littera, quattuor (but litus) ; sescenti ; zmaragdus.

In proper names note: Helias, Hieremias, Hiericho, Hierusalem ; Iohannes, Israhel, Nathanahel ; Sarra ; Tabita (but Tharsus) ; Zmyrna.

§ 61. Assimilation. The tendency of the later MSS. is towards assimilation ; the earlier the MS., as a rule, the more frequent are the unassimilated forms. Thus we have :

adf- (but afflictio) ; adl- (but alloqui) ; adp- (but apparere) ; ads- (but assiduus, aspicere) ; adt- (but attendere), etc.

conl- (but colligere) ; conn- (but commutare) ; comp- (but comprehendere, etc.) ; conr- (but corripere, corrumpere), etc. ex- (but exsuperare, exurgere).

inl- ; inm- (but immolare) ; inp- (but impedimentum, etc.).

Similarly, words are separated which in the Clementine Vulgate are written in one ; ante quam, bene facere, pater familias, etc. (but etsi, etiamsi).

FORM OF WORDS

Especially as seen in the lengthening of terminations.

Nouns

§ 62. Masculine: (a) Agents in -sor, -tor, thus (of God) circumspector Ecclus. 7. 12, conspcctor 36. 19, eleuator II Sam. (II Reg.) 22. 3, operator Job 36. 3, Prov. 22. 2, proeliator Isa. 42. 13, redditor Ecclus. 5. 4, susceptor Ps. 3. 4 etc. Also, of men, ascensor Ex. 15. 1 etc. (= rider ; the Classical term would be eques, which also occurs frequently in the Vulgate), belligerator I Macc. 15. 13, 16. 4, institor Job 28. 8 etc., malleator Gen. 4. 22, Job 41. 15, pollinctor Ezek. 39. 15, prospector Ecclus. 3. 34, 11. 32, repromissor Ecclus. 29. 21, 22, separator Zach. 9. 6 (= a stranger), somniator Gen. 37. 19 etc., subsannator Ecclus. 33. 6, susurrator Ecclus. 5. 17.

In the New Testament may be found acceptor, adnuntiator, adpetitor, consummator, discretor, intentator, praecessor, renumerator, seductor, etc.

Corresponding feminines in -trix; assistrix, habitatrix (Jer. 21. 13), doctrix, electrix, exasperatrix, inritatrix, etc.

(b) Abstracts in -or: albor Lev. 13. 16, 25, 39 (= whiteness), dulcor Ecclus. 11. 3, placor Ecclus. 4. 13, 39. 23, uiror Isa. 15. 6, 35. 7.

(c) Abstracts of 4th Declension in -us: apostolatus, bimatus (Mt. 2. 16), accubitus (also disc- and rec-), ducatus (Mt. 15. 14; also O.T.), incolatus Ps. 120. 4 (119. 5), mancipatus, nuptus, obductus, ornatus, etc.

§ 68. Feminine: Abstracts terminating in -io, -tas, -go, -antia, -ura etc.; a very large class: e. g.

(d) adbreuiatio, absconsio, contritio Isa. 59. 7, Rom. 3. 16 (= destruction), conculcatio, conflatio Jer. 51. 17 (= a molten image), custoditio, defunctio, deminoratio Ecclus. 22. 3 (= disgrace), demoratio, desponsatio, dormitatio, easio, exauditio, inconsummatio Wisd. (Sap.) 3. 16 (= incompleteness), increpatio, inspiratio, iussio, messio, praestolatio Job 17. 15 (= expectation).

In the New Testament, circumdatio, circumuentio, delibatio, discretio, ieiunatio, oboeditio, resolutio, subministratio, uilicatio.

(e) Abstracts in -tas: humilitas, maturitas, natiuitas, nimietas Wisd. (Sap.) 4. 4, religiositas Ecclus. 1. 17, 18, 26.

Peculiar to the New Testament are incredulitas, longanimitas, paternitas, etc.

(f) Abstracts in -do and -go: disertitudo Isa. 33. 19, grossitudo I Kgs. (III Reg.) 7. 26, Jer. 52. 21, inquietudo Judith 14. 9, nigredo Nah. 2. 10, pigredo Prov. 19. 15, pinguedo, putredo, salsugo.

(g) Abstracts in -antia and -entia: concupiscentia, extolentia Ecclus. 23. 5, 26. 12, fraudulentia, honorificentia Judith 15. 10, inoboedientia, sufferentia, sufficientia, sustentia.

(h) Abstracts in -ura; alligatura, assatura II Sam. (II Reg.) 6. 19, capillatura I Pet. 3. 3, combustura Lev. 13. 28, creatura, delatura, fixura Joh. 20. 25, laesura (= hurtfulness), ligatura, paratura II Chron. 5. 5, percussura, pressura, rasura.

§ 64. Neuter: (i) Instrumentals in -men, -mentum: genimen, linteamen, uitulamen Wisd. (Sap.) 4. 3.

adiuramentum Tob. 9. 5, adsumentum, deliramentum, exsecrumentum Ecclus. 15. 13, figmentum, indumentum, inquinamentum, odoramentum, operimentum, spiramentum Job 26. 4, tutamentum.

(k) Nouns in -arium, -erium, -orium: adiutorium, atramentarium, cellarium, cinctorium, cucumerarium, emunctorium, inproperium, libatorium I Macc. 1. 23, liciatorium, mutatorium, opertorium, propitiatorium, pulmentarium, reclinatorium, refrigerium, stratorium, sufflatorium.

(l) Other forms: cremium Ps. 102. 3 (101. 4), deambulacrum I Kgs. (III Reg.) 7. 2, fundibulum I Macc. 6. 51, gaudimonium Bar. 4. 34, sanctificium Ps. 78 (77). 69, uestibulum.

§ 65 (m). Diminutives in -ulus, -ellus, -illus, etc., and corresponding feminines and neuters: humerulus, lepusculus, leunculus, pinnaculum, regulus, renunculus, retiaculum, spiraculum; aratiuncula, auricula, casula, damula, decipula, facula, iuencula, laguncula (= a bottle), situla (= bucket), sorbitiuncula.

ascella, bucella, capsella, mamilla.

geniculum, olfactoriolum Isa. 3. 20 etc.

§ 66 (n). Adjectives used substantivally. In all languages adjectives tend to be thus used, their nouns being understood; so in English: General (officer), Cathedral (church), etc. Examples in the Vulgate are:

alba (vestmenta) Joh. 20. 12,¹ altilia (animalia) Mt. 22. 4, byssinum, collecta, conlactaneus, conflatile, ficulnea, magna, natale, obrizum, salutare, etc.

The same tendency is seen in Participles; adeptus, expectus become an adept, an expert. So at Rome the Praefectus urbi became a Praefectus; as Mommsen says, the participle became a substantive as the office became a substantive office.

§ 67. (o) Simple nouns not found in Classical Latin. Examples are:

burdo (a mule) II Kgs. (IV Reg.) 5. 17, camus (a bridle), catta (a cat or weasel) Bar. 6. 21, cochlea (a winding staircase), expensa (a levy), framea (a sword), grossus, lamia (the night monster), papilio (a tent),² quaternio, refrigerium, sanctuarium, sarabala (hose) Dan. 3. 94, semicinctium (an apron; it has been graecized into σιμικίνθιον Act. 19. 12).

§ 68. (p) Compound nouns. The Vulgate, and still more the Old-Latin versions, abound in compound nouns; some of them as old as Plautus, others of recent growth and occasionally of Christian coinage.

¹ So the 1st Sunday after Easter was called Dominica in albis, because the newly-baptized still wore their white robes.

² Whence the Italian padiglione, the French pavilion, and our own pavilion.

Of the former class are such words as : multi-, stulti-, uaniloquium, deliramentum, despoliator, stabilimentum, etc.; also adjectives, as condignus, uaniloquus, uersipellis. Of the latter class: consenior I Pet. 5. 1, inconsummatio, ineruditio, inmemoratio, inordinatio, muscipula, sanguisuga (horseleach) Prov. 30. 15.

Adjectives

§ 69. The Vulgate is rich in adjectives, especially verbals in -bilis, -atus, and -itus, and negatives in in. Examples are :

accensibilis Hebr. 12. 18, acceptabilis, contemtibilis, corruptibilis (φθαρτός), deprecabilis, desperabilis, docibilis, inmarcescibilis (ἀμάραντος), inaccessibleis, incessabilis (ἀκατάπαυστος) II Pet. 2. 14, inconfusibilis, incommunicabilis (ἀκοινωνητος) Wisd. (Sap.) 14. 21, incorruptibilis (ἀφθαρτος), incredibilis, indeclinabilis, inexterminabilis, inextinguibilis, ininterpretabilis, inportabilis, inrationabilis, inreprehensibilis, inscrutabilis, inuestigabilis (= οὐκ ἐγγνωστος Prov. 5. 6, = ἀνεξιχνίαστος Rom. 11. 33, Eph. 3. 8),¹ mensurabilis, motabilis (Gen. 1. 21; the active sense is un-Latin), odibilis, passibilis, penetrabilis, persuasibilis, rationabilis, reprehensibilis (κατεγνωσμένος), suadibilis, tractabilis, uenerabilis.

§ 70. Other adjectives in -lis are: hybernalis, originalis, pascualis, principalis, subiugalis, tornatilis.

§ 71. Verbals in -atus, -itus: ceruicatus Ecclus. 16. 11, cordatus, crapulatus, disciplinatus, linguatus, muratus (= walled) Num. 13. 20, murratus (mingled with myrrh), rubricatus, timoratus (= εὐλαβής) Lk. 2. 25, Act. 8. 2, uiratus (virtuous) Ecclus. 28. 19. In -itus: compeditus, ignitus, etc.

¹ See also below, § 74.

§ 72. Verbals in -arius, -orius, often used as nouns, denoting the follower of a trade or calling: administratorius Hebr. 1. 14, arcarius, auricularius (a secreto = a privy councillor) II Sam. (II Reg.) 23. 23, caementarius, focarius, plagiarius (kidnapper) I Tim. 1. 10, scenofactorius, stabularius.

§ 73. Terminations in -anus, -cius, -inus, -osus, etc.: hortulanus Joh. 20. 15, quadriduanus Joh. 11. 39, temporaneus, empticius, pellicius, subcinericius, morticius, serotinus, primitivus, linguosus, querulosus, tremebundus.

§ 74. Adjectives compounded with in- and re-. Negatives with in-: those terminating in -bilis have been given above (§ 69); others are: inaquosus, inconsummatus Wisd. (Sap.) 4. 5, indeficiens Ecclus. 24. 6, indisciplinatus, inlamentatus II Macc. 5. 10, inpaenitens Rom. 2. 5, insensatus: with re-; reprobus.

§ 75. Adjectives compounded with prepositions:

cum: coequalis, commendaticius II Cor. 3. 1, complacitus Ps. 77. 7 (76. 8 complacitior), concorporalis Eph. 3. 6, condignus, conducticius I Mac. 6. 29, configuratus, conformis Rom. 8. 29, coniugalis Ruth 1. 12, consanguineus.

per: perantiquus Jos. 9. 5, pergrandis Jos. 24. 26, perlucidus Apoc. 21. 21, permagnificus Esth. 2. 18, permodicus II Chron. 24. 24, perpaucus, persenilis Jos. 23. 1, perualidus Isa. 30. 14.

prae: praeclarus, praegrandis Ezek. 13. 11, praesagus Gen. 41. 11, praestabilis Joel. 2. 13, praeualidus Isa. 31. 1.

super: supergloriosus Dan. 3. 53, superlaudabilis ib., super-substantialis Mt. 6. 11, superuacuus.

§ 76. Adjectives compounded with other words: animae-

quus, falsiloquus Job 16. 9, longaeuus, longanimis, omnimodus Isa. 66. 11, primogenitus, pusillanimis, secundoprimum Lk. 6. 1, unanimitas, unicolor Gen. 30. 35, unicornis, unigenitus, unoculus Mt. 18. 9.

§ 77. Participles used as adjectives¹: benedictus, benedictus, circumornatus Ps. 144 (143). 12, compositus, conlectus I Pet. 5. 13, disalceatus, inargentatus Baruch 6. 7, 50, 56, 70, insensatus, placitus, sensatus, superadultus I Cor. 7. 36, timoratus.

Verbs

§ 78. (a) Simple: bullire Job 41. 22 (cf. It. bollire, Fr. bouillir), cudere Isa. 41. 7 (to strike), minare (cf. It. minare, Fr. mener), plicare, se tricare Ecclus. 32. 15 (to linger).

§ 79. (b) Derived:

(i) From nouns: aeruginare, angustiare, baiulare, buccinare Ps. 81. 3 (80. 4), compedire, crapulari Ps. 78 (77). 65, dulcorare Prov. 27. 9, hereditare, mensurare, meridiare Job 24. 11, plagare Zach. 13. 6 (= to smite), saginare, sagittare, scopare, sponsare, tribulare, triturare.

(ii) From adjectives: amaricare Apoc. 10. 9, 10, anxari, brcuiare, captiuare, decimare (to tithe), dementare Act. 8. 11, exossare Jer. 50. 17 (to break the bones), humiliare, ieiunare, inquietare, malignare, mediare Joh. 7. 14, naufragare I Tim.

¹ That is, used to express state not action, used as epithets not as predicative adjectives; of course all participles are adjectival in form; they 'take part' of the properties of the adjective. This may happen with all four participles: the present suffering, the future glory, a well-instructed man, holy and reverend is His name. The ill-instructed reader may fall into the trap of applying it in Acts 7. 22, where the A.V. tells us that Moses was learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians; but the Greek is ἐπαιδευθη and the Vulgate eruditus est; the R.V. removes all ambiguity by rendering was instructed.

1. 19, obuiare, onustare Judith 15. 7, pigritari Act. 9. 38, principari Mk. 10. 42, propitiari, similari Hebr. 2. 17, tristari, ueterare Hebr. 8. 13.

(iii) From comparatives: minorare.

(iv) From superlatives: pessimare, proximare.

(v) From adverbs: elongare, manicare (from mane) Lk. 21. 38.

§ 80. Verbs compounded with prepositions:

ab: abhorrescere II Mac. 6. 12, ablactare (to wean).

ad: adquare Gen. 29. 2, addecimare I Kgs. (III Reg.) 8. 15, adimplere, adleuiare, adpretiare, adpropiare, adproximare Ps. 32. 10 (31. 9), adunare.

circum: circumaedificare Lam. 3. 7, circumcingere Ecclus. 45. 9, circumfodere Isa. 34. 15, circumfulgere, circumlegere Act. 28. 13, circumuallare Isa. 29. 2.

cum: coadunare Joel 2. 16, coagulare, coambulare Wisd. (Sap.) 19. 20, coangustare, coaptare Ex. 36. 32, cohabitare, conlaborare, conluctari Ecclus. 51. 25, conmaculare, conmandere Prov. 30. 14, conmanducare Apoc. 16. 10 (= gnaw), conpati, conplantare Rom. 6. 5, conregnare II Tim. 2. 12, conresuscitare Eph. 2. 6, conuesci Act. 1. 4.

de: decaluare, decantare, decertare, decollare (= behead), deferuere Esth. 2. 1, defraudare, deglutire, dehonestare Prov. 25. 8, denigrare, despumare Jude 13, desternere Gen. 24. 32 (= ungird), deuiare, deuitare (= avoid).

dis-: diffamare, diffugere, disceptare, discooperire, discriminare Judith 10. 3.

e, ex: effugere, elucescere, elucidare Ecclus. 24. 31, excerebrare Isa. 66. 3, excolare Mt. 23. 24, excoriare Mic. 3. 3, exporrigere Ecclus. 14. 13, exsufflare.

in: incrassare, inebriari, infatuare, inhonorare, inlucescere, inminuere, inproperare, insufflare.

ob: obdulcare Judith 5. 15, obdurare, obfirmare, obmutescere, obstupescere, obtenebrare, obturare, obumbrare.

per: pereffluere Hebr. 2. 1 (= drift away), perlinire Wisd. (Sap.) 13. 14, permundare Mt. 3. 12, perstillare, pertransire, perurgere.

prae: praecellere, praecogitare Mk. 13. 11, praedestinare, praefinire, praeordinare.

praeter: praeterfluere, praetergredi, praetermittere.

pro: prolongare, propalare Hebr. 9. 8, propitiari, propurgare Ecclus. 7. 33, proscindere Isa. 28. 24, protestari.

re: reacdicare, reexpectare Isa. 28. 10, 13, refigurare Wisd. (Sap.) 19. 6, refocillare, regenerare I Pet. 1. 3, reinuitare Lk. 14. 12, remandare Isa. 28. 10, 13, repropitiare, respergere, retrudere Gen. 41. 10.

sub: subinferre II Pet. 1. 5, subintrare, sublimare, subnauigare Act. 27. 4, subneruare (= to hamstring), subsannare (= to laugh at), subsilire II Sam. (II Reg.) 6. 16.

super: superabundare, superaedificare, supercrescere, superextendere, supergaudere, superinpendere II Cor. 12. 15, superinduere II Cor. 5. 2, superlucrari Mt. 25. 20, superordinare Gal. 3. 15, superseminare Mt. 13. 25, superuestire II Cor. 5. 4.

supra: suprasedere Ecclus. 33. 6.

trans: transfigurare, transnauigare, transplantare, transuadari Ezech. 47. 5, transuertere.

Some of the verbs given above are, as may be seen, compounded with two prepositions: many other compound forms may be detected in the Old Latin MSS. Compounds otherwise formed, such as ualefacere, may be treated as two separate words.¹

§ 81. Verbs in -ficare. These verbs form a special class, and though they are found in both Testaments yet the examples with which we are most familiar occur more frequently in the New: e. g. castificare I Pet. 1. 22, clarificare, conuiuificare, gratificare, saluificare occur only in the New Testament; mirificare on the other hand is found only in the Old: aedificare, beatificare, fructificare, glorificare, honorificare, iustificare, laetificare, magnificare, mortificare, pacificare, sacrificare, sanctificare, significare, testificare, uiuificare occur in both.

¹ See the Praefatio to the Editio minor of the Vulgate N.T., p. xiii.

IV

LEXICAL PECULIARITIES (continued)

B. NEW AND UNUSUAL MEANINGS

§ 82. Here we reach the heart of the subject; not the form but the meaning of words. The deeper thoughts which underlay the original Hebrew and Greek demanded not only new words but a new use of old words, in order to express the higher ideals of the new faith and the new life. Even the Old Testament was translated into Latin by men who were living in the light of the New.

§ 83. Only a selection of new meanings and of references can be given here, in the order of the different parts of speech.

Nouns:

allocutio = satisfaction, comfort : Wisd. (Sap.) 3. 18, 8. 9, 19. 12.

ambitio = pomp : I Macc. 9. 37, Act. 25. 23.

animositas = wrath : Hebr. 11. 27.

argumentum = (1) token : Wisd. (Sap.) 5. 11, 19. 12 ; (2) a riddle, dark speech : Wisd. (Sap.) 8. 8.

articulus = point of time : Gen. 7. 13.

causa: sine causa = in vain : Gal. 3. 4.

conditio = creation : Ezek. 28. 15.¹

confessio = praise, thanksgiving ; cf. confiteri.

confusio = shame : Hebr. 12. 2, Jude 13.

¹ 'Idem est condere quod creare; quamquam in Latinae linguae consuetudine dicatur aliquando creare pro eo quod est gignere; sed graeca discernit. Hoc enim dicimus creaturam quod illi κτίσμα uel κτίων uocant; et cum sine ambiguitate loqui uolumus non dicimus creare sed condere', Aug. De fide et Symb. 5.

- conquisitio* = questioning : Act. 15. 7. consummatio = completion.
conuersatio = manner of life.
correptio = reproof, correction : Tit. 3. 10.
depositio = laying aside : I Pet. 3. 21, II Pet. 1. 14. detractio = slander : I Pet. 2. 1. In the New Test. only in Plur.
diffidentia = unbelief : Rom. 4. 20, Eph. 2. 2, 5. 6. eloquium = word (frequent in Pss.)
funiculus, funiculus = measuring-line, lot.
honestas = wealth : Eccclus. 11. 14.
incola = foreigner.
inflatio = swelling (insolence) : II Cor. 12. 20.
intentio = thought, purpose : Hebr. 4. 12.
iubilum = joyful shout : II Sam. (II Reg.) 6. 15.
iudicium = sentence : Jer. 26. 11.
iustitia = righteousness.
lacus = pit : Mk. 12. 1, Apoc. 14. 19.
libum = drink-offering.
lignum = tree : Jer. 11. 19 (but see the A. and R.V. there); of the cross : Act. 5. 30, 10. 39, 13. 29, Gal. 3. 13, I Pet.
 2. 24; of the stocks : Act. 16. 24; plur. = staves : Mc.
 14. 43, 48.
maleficus = sorcerer.
medietas = half.
opinio = rumour (ἀκοή) : Mt. 4. 24, 24. 6 (plur.)
oratio = prayer.
praeuaricatio = transgression (so praeuaricator = transgressor).
*querella*¹ : sine querella = blameless : Lk. 1. 6.

¹ In the A.V. of Col. 3. 13 'if any man have a quarrel against any', the 'quarrel' is a rendering of the Vulgate querella rather than of the Greek μωμφή (R.V. complaint).

redemptor = redeemer (Hebr. gō'ēl): Act. 7. 35 of Moses.

reditus = produce.

refectio = guest-chamber: Mk. 14. 14.

saeculum = time, past, present, or future; in saecula = for ever.

similitudo = by-word; parable (but also constantly in the sense of likeness).

stabulum = inn: Lk. 10. 34.

substantia: omnem substantiam = every living thing Gen. 7. 4 etc.; = goods, possessions: Lk. 8. 43, 15. 12 etc.

susceptor = helper (frequent in Pss.).

testamentum = covenant.

testimonium = witness, often used of the ark and of the tabernacle.

titulus = monument (in Old Test.) II Sam. (II Reg.) 18. 18.

traductio = reproof: Wisd. (Sap.) 2. 14 etc., and so the verb = to expose to reproach: Mt. 1. 19, Col. 2. 15.

uacuitas = leisure, indolence: Wisd. (Sap.) 13. 13.

uirga = rod, sceptre.

uirtus = power, army; 'Dominus uirtutum' = Lord of hosts (chiefly in Pss.); plur. = mighty works; also of a class of Angels: Eph. 1. 21, I Pet. 3. 22.

uisitatio = visitation by God: Lk. 19. 44, I Pet. 2. 12, 5. 6.

Abstract for concrete:

accubitus, discubitus, recubitus = seat.

captiuitas = captives: Eph. 4. 8; cf. Ps. 68. 18 (67. 19) etc.

desiderium = thing desired: Ps. 21 (20). 3, 78. 30 (77. 29).

indictio = men forming a levy: I Kgs. (III Reg.) 5. 13, 14.

obligatio = bond: Act. 8. 23.

sanctificatio = sanctuary: Ps. 114 (113). 2.

transmigratio = captives: Ezek. 3. 11, 15 etc.

Abstract nouns are constantly used in the Plural—especially in the Pss.—to denote concrete instances; cf. the 'negligences and ignorances' of our Litany. The 119th (118th) Psalm alone furnishes numerous examples: eloquia, iudicia, iustificaciones, iustitiae, miseraciones, misericordiae, testimonia.

§ 84. Adjectives:

aerius = sky-blue: Esth. 1. 6, 8. 15.

contrarius = on the way to: Ecclus. 23. 12 (15).

modicus = small, of time etc.¹; a word characteristic of popular Latin; pusillus is also used, but less frequently; paruus rarely (only once in the New Test., Act. 12. 18).

pacificus = a peace-offering (with uictima or hostia).

pinguis = fruitful: Num. 13. 21, Ps. 68. 15 (67. 16) etc.

rudis = undressed (of cloth): Mt. 9. 16, Mk. 2. 21.

saecularis = eternal (of times): II Tim. 1. 9, Tit. 1. 2; also = worldly, having to do with this world: I Cor. 6. 3, 4, Hebr. 9. 1.

singularis = alone: Mk. 4. 10 etc.²

uacuus: in uacuum = in vain (εἰς κενόν): II Cor. 6. 1, Gal. 2. 2; uacuum (sc. tempus) = leisure: I Cor. 16. 12.

§ 85. Verbs:

abire = go (simply): Mt. 12. 1 etc.

abnegare = reject, deny.

accipere = take (simply).

adhaerere, aedificare: used in figurative sense.

aemulari = desire: I Cor. 12. 31, 14. 1, 39.

colligere = entertain: Mt. 25. 35, 38, 43.

communicare = defile.

compungere: in pass. = to feel remorse: Act. 2. 37.

concutere = strike: Job. 1. 19, Lk. 3. 14.

¹ See Löfstedt, p. 71.

² In Ps. 80. 13 (79. 14) occurs the expression singularis ferus = the wild boar Ital. cinghiale, French sanglier).

deferre = respect, defer to : Dt. 28. 50.

dimittere = (1) dismiss : Lk. 2. 29 etc. ; (2) forgive Mt. 6. 12 etc. ; (3) leave behind : Gen. 42. 33 ; (4) permit : Mt. 3. 15.

dissimulare = forbear : I Sam. (I Reg.) 23. 13.

dormire = die : I Cor. 7. 39 etc.

emendare = chastise (παιδεύειν) : Lk. 23. 16.

eructare = utter : Pss., and Mt. 13. 35.

euacuare = bring to naught : Rom. 3. 3.

festinare = strive : Hebr. 4. 11.

intendere = look on, regard.

meditari = imagine (with acc.)

mittere = put (Fr. mettre) ; also = cast¹ : Mt. 22. 13.

nubere = marry (general).

opponere = take in pledge : Dt. 24. 6.

peregrinari (in) = take strangely, be surprised at : I Pet. 4. 12.

perire : be lost.

possidere = acquire : Gen. 4. 1, Lk. 18. 12.

praeterire = pass by : Mt. 24. 35, Lk. 10. 31.

regnare = become king : II Kgs. (IV Reg.) 12. 1.

retinere = keep in mind : II Thess. 2. 5.

silere = rest Lk. 23. 56 ; frequent in I Macc.

sustinere = wait for ; frequent in Pss.

uelle : intrans. = delight : Ps. 112 (111). 1 ; trans. desire : Mt. 27. 43.

uidere = beware : Mt. 18. 10.

§ 86. Verbs modified in meanings.

(a) Transitives used intransitively :

auertere : Ps. 89. 45 (88. 47) ; the pass. is also used in the same sense : Dt. 31. 20.

conuertere : Baruch 4. 28, I Macc. 1. 21, Act. 7. 42.

¹ So in Mt. 5. 29 ; but in 30 the Vg. has eat (Gr. plur. βληθῆ in 29 ; ἀπέληθη NBD min. in 30, and Jerome followed these MSS.), elongare = be far: Ps. 55. 7 (54. 8).

mediare: Joh. 7. 14.

prosperare: Ps. 118 (117). 25.

recordari (aduersum): Neh. (II Esdr.) 13. 29.

retardare: Ecclus. 16. 14, 51. 32.

(b) Intransitives as transitives:

complacere: Ps. 35 (34). 14.

emanare: Jac. 3. 11 (emanat . . . aquam).

germinare: Gen. 1. 11, 3. 18 etc.

pluere: Ex. 9. 18, 23, Lk. 17. 29 etc.

potare: Ps. 36. 8 (35. 9), Apoc. 14. 8 etc.

reclinare: Judg. 16. 19, Mt. 8. 20, Lk. 2. 7.

transmigrare: Lam. 4. 22.

tremere (sermone meos): Isa. 66. 2.

(c) Personal as impersonal:

capit = it is possible: Lk. 13. 33.

complacet = it is a pleasant thing to: Ps. 40. 16 (39. 14), Lk. 12. 32 etc.

(d) Impersonal as personal:

paenitere: Mk. 1. 15, Apoc. 2. 21 etc.

taedere: II Kgs. (IV Reg.) 10. 32, Mk. 14. 33.

(e) Active as deponent, i.e. used in passive form with active meaning:

certari: Ecclus. 11. 9.

murmurari: Ex. 16. 8, Num. 14. 2.

obscurari = hide: Ps. 139. 11 (138. 12).

(f) Deponent used in active form:

gratificare: Eph. 1. 6.

lamentare: Mt. 11. 17, Lk. 7. 32.

(g) Deponent with passive meaning:

admirari = be admired: Ecclus. 24. 3.

consolari: II Sam. (II Reg.) 13. 39, Ps. 77. 2 (76. 3) etc.

demoliri: Ezek. 6. 6, Joel 1. 17, 2. 8.

interpretari: frequent in the phrase 'quod (qui) interpretatur' etc.

metiri = be measured: Jer. 33. 22, Amos 7. 17, Mt. 7. 2 (cf. remet. Mk. 4. 24, Lk. 6. 38); in Apoc. 21. 17 the best MSS. read 'mensus est murus', though the Sixtine and Clementine editions have 'mensus est murum' and the Greek is ἐμέτρησεν τὸ τεῖχος.

promereri = be favourably impressed: Hebr. 13. 16.

testificari: Rom. 3. 21 (testificata = μαρτυρουμένη).

(h) Passive with middle or reflexive meaning¹:

confundi = be ashamed of: Mk. 8. 38.

glorificari = exalt oneself: Ex. 14. 4, 17, 18, Ezek. 28. 22, I Macc. 3. 14.

laudari: frequent in Pss. in the sense of 'boast oneself, glory', see Pss. 10. 3 (9. 25), 34. 2 (33. 3), 44 (43). 9, 63 (62). 12, 64. 10 (63. 11), 105 (104). 3, 106 (105). 5.

magnificari = exalt oneself: Ps. 20. 5 (19. 6), Ezek. 38. 23, Dan. 11. 36.

saluari: Act. 2. 40.

§ 87. Adverbs:

adhuc = yet, still: adhuc ex utero (while still in) Lk. 1. 15; so in comparison, adhuc excellentiorem uiam (still more excellent) I Cor. 12. 31, cf. Ps. 92. 13 (91. 15), Hebr. 7. 15; see also Mt. 26. 65, Mk. 14. 63, Apoc. 22. 11; with negative = not yet: II Chr. 20. 33, Prov. 8. 26, Mk. 11. 2, Hebr. 11. 7; = no longer: I Tim. 5. 23.

¹ This use is quite natural, as the passive was originally a reflexive. It is found in Vergil: 'Libyae uertuntur ad oras', Aen. i. 158, 'implentur ueteris Bacchi', ib. 215, 'inutile ferrum cingitur', ii. 511. So obliuiscor, reminiscor, etc., and the 'semi-deponents'; compare the Italian non mi ricordo, the French je m'en souviens, or the English boast themselves (Ps. 49. 6), remember themselves (Ps. 22. 27 P. B.).

- alioquin* = otherwise : Mt. 6. 1, I Cor. 5. 10, 7. 14, Hebr. 9. 17.
- aliquando* = ποτέ: 'tandem aliquando' Rom. 1. 10, Phil. 4. 10; with negative : II Pet. 1. 21.
- amplius* = further, besides : Eccl. 3. 9, Joel 2. 27.
- ante* : ' paulo ante ' Wisd. (Sap.) 15. 8, II Mac. 3. 30, 6. 29, 9. 10; ' ante et retro ' Apoc. 4. 6.
- deinde* : of succession in order (= ἐπειτα) : I Cor. 15. 46, I Thess. 4. 17.
- forsitan, forte* = ἄν : Ps. 81 (80). 15, 119 (118). 92, Mt. 11. 23.
- hic* = herein : Apoc. 13. 10.
- iam nunc* (with futuri sunt) : Gen. 41. 35 and frequently.
- ibi* for eo, and ubi for quo, after verbs of motion; ueniens ibi : II Macc. 2. 5, cf. Neh. (II Esdr.) 13. 9; ubi for quo is not found in the Vulg. but often in the Old Lat. MS. d.
- igitur* = in questions; quid igitur lex? Gal. 3. 19.
- illic* = ibi; hic aut illic : Mt. 24. 23.
- ita* = yes, verily : Lk. 11. 51, 12. 5, Philem. 20; non ita = no : Act. 16. 37 (οὐ γάρ, no indeed).
- itaque* : Mt. 12. 12; idcirco is also very common.
- mane* = to-morrow : I Sam. (I Reg.) 9. 19; thence pop. Lat. demane, Ital. dimani, domani, Fr. demain.
- neqnon* = also : I Chr. 1. 22, II Chr. 35. 9.
- ne omnino* = not at all : Act. 4. 18, cf. ne ultra, 17.
- nimis ualde* = very, exceedingly (so in early Latin) : Ezek. 9. 9, 37. 10.
- non . . . neque* = not even; ita ut non caperet neque ad ianuam : Mk. 2. 2, cf. 3. 20, I Cor. 5. 11; neque ad horam : Gal. 2. 5.
- paulominus* = almost (minimum abfuit quin) : Pss. 94 (93). 17, 119 (118). 87.
- prout* = according as : Tob. 1. 19, Mk. 4. 33, Act. 2. 45.

quemadmodum: in O.T., chiefly in Pss. and Wisd.; in N.T.

it sometimes = how: so Lk. 8. 47, 21. 14, 22. 4, 23. 55, Act. 15. 14.

quomodo = even as: II Pet. 1. 3.

sic . . . sic = one way . . . another way: I Cor. 7. 7.

sicut . . . et = as . . . so: Mt. 6. 10, Act. 7. 51.

simul = altogether: Gen. 46. 7, Ex. 36. 30.

tunc: 'ille tunc mundus' = ὁ τότε κόσμος: II Pet. 3. 6.

usque = even, with words denoting time, place, and repetition:

(a) time: usque nunc, adhuc (= hitherto), modo, in hodiernum diem; usque dum: Lk. 12. 50.

(b) place: usque huc, in atrium: Mk. 14. 54; foras ciuitatem: Act. 21. 5.

(c) repetition: usque septies: Mt. 18. 21. Quousque? and usquequo? are frequent; usquequaque (= utterly): four times in Ps. 119 (118).

§ 88. Conjunctions and additional particles.

dummodo = provided that: only twice in the Vulgate, Gen. 19. 8 (d. uiris istis nihil mali faciatis), and Act. 20. 24 (d. consummem cursum meum = ὡς τελεῖωσαι), see R.V. mg.

enim: resumptive; placuit e. eis: Rom. 15. 27; quid enim? (= τί γάρ): Phil. 1. 18.

ergo: with other particles (quia, quoniam, si): Hebr. 2. 14, 4. 6, 12. 8, I Joh. 4. 19; in questions: Mt. 13. 27, 26. 54, Joh. 18. 37, Gal. 3. 21.

et = also; propterea et: Lk. 11. 49, cf. 12. 41; et quidem = yes, indeed: Rom. 10. 18; exclamatory = why! Act. 8. 31 (πῶς γάρ).

etenim = for, yea: frequent in Pss., e. g. 37 (36). 25, 84. 3 (83. 4), Joh. 13. 13.

etiam = yea, even so: Mt. 13. 51, Lk. 10. 21, Act. 5. 8, Apoc. 22. 20.

non = nay: Joh. 1. 21, II Cor. 1. 18, 19, Jac. 5. 12.

numquid = num in questions: Mt. 12. 23, Rom. 9. 20, I Cor. 11. 22.

nusquam = in no way, not indeed; II Macc. 11. 4, n. recogitans dei potestatem; Hebr. 2. 16, n. enim angelos apprehendit.

puta: ut puta (εἰ τύχοι): I Cor. 14. 10, 15. 37.

putas, putasne: introducing questions; putasne uiuent ossa ista? Ezek. 37. 3; quis putas (ἄρα) maior est? Mt. 18. 1 and frequently.

quidem . . . autem (μέν . . . δέ): II Tim. 4. 4.

quidnam = whatever: Act. 5. 24 etc.

quippini = yea rather: Lk. 11. 28 (see the note on this passage in the Editio maior of the Oxford Vulgate).

quod with other particles:

eo quod (ὅτι): Gen. 3. 10, Isa. 53. 11, 12 and frequently.

iuxta quod (καθότι): Act. 2. 24.

propter quod (διότι, οὗ ἕνεκεν): Lk. 4. 18, Act. 8. 11, 18. 10.

quoniam quidem = since: Lk. 1. 1, Rom. 3. 30, II Cor. 5. 19.

saltem with negative = ne . . . quidem: Jos. 10. 28, II Sam. (II Reg.) 13. 30.

sed = yea: II Cor. 7. 11; sed et = yea, and: Joel 1. 20, Dan. 6. 22, Lk. 24. 22; et si . . . sed (εἰ καὶ . . . ἀλλά) = even though . . . yet: II Cor. 5. 16; sed neque = yea . . . not: Dan. 2. 10; so often in old Latin.¹

siquidem = since: Lk. 6. 33; s. sunt dii multi (ἄσπερ): I Cor. 8. 5.

utique = yea, indeed: Ps. 58. 1 (57. 2); in apodosis, si . . . dedissem u.: Ps. 51. 16 (50. 18); in answer to a question uero = but ; autem . . . uero (= δὲ . . . δέ) : Act. 3. 15.

¹ See Löfstedt, p. 179.

= etiam, but stronger, = yea : Mt. 9. 28 ; non utique = not indeed : I Cor. 5. 10.

uerumtamen = nevertheless : very frequent in O.T. and in S. Luke ; cf. Phil. 3. 8 (= ἀλλὰ μενοῦνγε).

[For prepositions and subordinating conjunctions see under Syntax, §§ 111, 117, 140 ff.]

§ 89. Most of the meanings noticed above represent a stage on the way to modern speech. Still we must beware of assuming that words in this stage bear the same meanings as now : such words as gratificare (Eph. 1. 6), malitia, praeoccupatus (Gal. 6. 1), pupillus, scandalizare do not represent what the average Englishman would expect ; and there are many others. This caution extends even to cases in which the corresponding English word is found in our A.V., such as convenient, conversation, honest, injurious, mansion, mortify, offence, prevent, virtue. The age of the A.V. and of Shakespeare was, indeed, the classical age of English ; but the English language, like the Latin of the first Christian centuries, could never stand still.

V

INFLEXIONAL PECULIARITIES

§ 90. Little need be said with respect to inflexional peculiarities, i. e. irregularities chiefly in declension and conjugation; especially as these occur chiefly in the Old Latin versions (above all in d) and were, as a rule, silently corrected by Jerome in his revision of the New Testament. Still, as Augustine,¹ when addressing the unlearned, was contented for the sake of clearness to use the 'barbarian' ossum in place of os (which though magis Latinum was minus apertum), we must not be surprised to find some grammatical irregularities in the Vulgate itself.

Nouns.

§ 91. (a) Variations in Declension.

First for third: collyridam II Sam. (II Reg.) 6. 19; craterarum Isa. 22. 24; hebdomadarum² Dan. 10. 2; Heliadum I Macc. 8. 9; lampadarum Ezek. 1. 13.

Second for third: ossum (Old Lat., as above); pauos I Kgs. (III Reg.) 10. 22; praesepio Lk. 2. 7, 12, 16, 13, 15.

Third for second: diaconibus Phil. 1. 1, -nes I Tim. 3. 12 (-ni SC).

First for second: tribulas I Chron. 20. 3, 21. 23.

Second for first; margaritum Prov. 25. 12.

¹ Aug. de doct. Christ. III. 3 (on Ps. 139 [138]. 15).

² The use of hebdomas for a week is derived from the Hebrew through the LXX.

Second for fourth : tonitruo Isa. 29. 6, tonitruorum Apoc. 19. 6 (D S C).

(b) Variation in number.

Sing. for Plur. (the classical form) : altare, scala, sertum.

Plur. for Sing. : see Hebraisms and Abstracts (§§ 17, 83).

Adjectives.

§ 92. (a) Irregular comparison :¹
complacitior Ps. 77. 7 (76. 8) ; necessarius I Cor. 12. 22.

(b) Numerals :

uno as dat. Ex. 27. 14.

(c) Possessive :

meus as voc. Deus meus, meus Deus frequently.

(d) Indefinite :

alterae as dat. generationi alterae Joel 1. 3.

infidele as abl. cum infidele (so the best MSS.) II Cor. 6. 15.

mare as abl. in mare Mk. 5. 13 and possibly 1. 16 (see the notes to these passages in the Editio maior of the Vulg.).

§ 93.

Verbs.

odi is conjugated throughout as if from odire : thus we have odiet, odient, odibunt (Prov. 1. 22), odiui, odite, odiens, etc.

compounds of -eo have perfect in -iui, so exiui Mt. 12. 44, Mk. 11. 11 etc. ; exies Mt. 5. 26, exiet Mt. 2. 6.

conjugations are confused : e.g. second and third, attendent and -entur Ezek. 44. 20, Nah. 1. 12, lambuerunt, etc.

Jud. 7. 5, 6, 7 ; third and fourth, liniunt Ezek. 13. 11, 15, liniri Lev. 14. 42, accersire Act. 10. 22.

other irregularities : uetati sunt Act. 16. 6 ; absconsus

¹ See also below, § 94.

Ecclus. 1. 39, 4. 21, 16. 22, 27. 19; absconsus is very common in the Old Latin; orditus Isa. 25. 7; frixus II Sam. (II Reg.) 6. 19, 17. 28, I Chron. 16. 3; prendiderunt, etc. Ioh. 21. 3, 10; metibor Ps. 60. 6 (59. 8).

Here for convenience may be noted other irregularities, not inflexional, in the use of Adjectives, Adverbs, and Pronouns, which cannot easily be grouped under any other heading.

§ 94.

Adjectives.

- (a) Irregular Comparison by the use of Adverbs, magis, plus, nimis: magna erit plus quam Hag. 2. 10, plus impia quam Ezek. 5. 6, magis pluris estis Mt. 6. 26.
- (b) Double comparison: beatius est magis dare Act. 20. 35, multo magis melius Phil. 1. 23, plus magis Mk. 6. 51, utilius est illi si . . . quam ut Lk. 17. 2; quam = rather than, ita gaudium erit . . . quam Lk. 15. 7.
- (c) The Comparative is used to imply some excess of the positive quality (this is quite classical): fac citius Joh. 13. 27, quasi superstitiosiores Act. 17. 22, sicut tu melius nosti Act. 25. 10; minus sapiens (= παραφρονῶν) II Cor. 11. 23; firmiores (δυνατοί) Rom. 15. 1.
- (d) Superlative expressed by multum, or nimis, with positive: inclitus multum II Chron. 18. 1, multum misericors Ps. 103 (102). 8, iustus multum Eccl. 7. 17, pulchra nimis Gen. 12. 14.
- (e) Interchange of degrees. Positive for superlative: mandatum magnum Mt. 22. 36, quam celeriter (= ὡς τάχι-στῶν) Act. 17. 15. Comparative for superlative: maior his I Cor. 13. 13, minor est in regno caelorum Mt. 11. 11. Superlative for positive: very frequent, especially with optimus, pessimus, maximus, minimus; so caris-simus (= ἀγαπητός) Mk. 9. 7 and constantly, dilectissimus Rom. 16. 8, Heb. 6. 9, Jac. 1. 16, 2. 5, nequissimus (= πονηρός) Wisd. (Sap.) 3. 12, Eph. 6. 16, pacatissimum (= εἰρηνικόν) Hebr. 12. 11; and, following the Greek, optimus (= κράτιστος) Lk. 1. 3, Act. 23. 26, 24. 3, 26. 25. Superlative for comparative: minimum est omnibus seminibus Mt. 13. 32, plurimam (πλείονα) hostiam quam Cain Hebr. 11. 4. Primus is used naturally for the first of two Joh. 19. 32, Hebr. 10. 9.

(f) Correlatives: unus . . . et unus Mt. 24. 40, 27. 38; but also unus . . . et alius and unus . . . et alter; in altero quidem . . . in altero autem Hebr. 10. 33; quis . . . alius I Cor. 3. 4.

(g) Numerals: unus for quidam (see § 107); unus . . . non (= not one), unus = primus, etc. (see Hebraisms, § 23); octauus Noe (= Noah and seven others) II Pet. 2. 5.

§ 95. Adverbs. Unusual connexion.

(a) With nouns: de terra procul, Isa. 13. 5, in tempore uespere Isa. 17. 14; diluculo ualde surgens Mk. 1. 35.

(b) With verbs: deterius habebat Mk. 5. 26, melius habuerit (= κομψότερον ἔσχε) Joh. 4. 52. Such adverbs as bene, iuxta, longe are often used predicatively with the copulative verb 'to be' e.g. ut bene sit tibi Eph. 6. 3; or with factum est, as factum est uespere Gen. 1. 8, f. e. sero Mt. 20. 8.

(c) With prepositions: Adverbial or prepositional phrases are a special feature of the popular Latin; such phrases are:— a longe Tob. 11. 6, a modo, ab ante, ab intus Ps. 45. 13 (44. 14) Mk. 7. 23; a deorsum usque sursum Ex. 26.

24; de deorsum Joh. 8. 23; a summo usque deorsum Mt. 27. 51.

¹ de foris, de intus, de retro, de super, de sursum, etc.; de mane Ruth 2. 7, e contra, in palam, in semel (Hebr. 10. 10), in super, etc.; uisa . . . turba de retro et ab ante Bar. 6. 5.

(d) Adverbs used as prepositions.

foras: f. castra Lev. 16. 27, f. Hierusalem II Kgs. (IV Reg.) 23. 6, f. portam Ezek. 47. 2, Act. 16. 13, f. ciuitatem Act. 21. 5.

foris: f. Hierusalem II Kgs. (IV Reg.) 23. 4, Neh. (II Esdr.) 13. 20 and often, f. templum Apoc. 11. 2. The distinction between foras and foris is not always observed.

intus: quod intus est calicis Mt. 23. 26.

retro: r. me Mk. 8. 33, r. Satanan I Tim. 5. 15.

² secus (= iuxta): s. mare, s. uiam, etc., Mk. 1. 16, Lk. 8. 5 and often.

subtus: s. me II Sam. (II Reg.) 22. 37, subtus altare, etc. Apoc. 6. 9 and often.

Pronouns—including Adjectival Forms.

§ 96. (a) Personal. The Reflexive Pronoun and Adjective (se and suis).

The Gen. is sometimes used instead of a Possessive, as, de medio tui, Ex. 23. 25; in praesentia mei, Phil. 2. 12; but, in absentia mea (Gk. in both = μου).

The Reflexive se may refer to the Subject of the main verb: respondit autem Paulus, annuente sibi praeside dicere, ¹ In this popular use we see the origin of the French dedans, dehors, dessous, dessus, derrière, etc.

² See the note on secus as a preposition by Professor F. C. Burkitt in the Journal of Theol. Studies for Jan. 1908 (vol. ix, p. 297).

when the governor had beckoned to him to speak ($\alpha\upsilon\tau\hat{\rho}\hat{\omega}$), Act. 24. 10.

Occasionally the ordinary 3rd Pers. Pronoun occurs where we should expect the Reflexive :

coepit illis dicere quae essent ei euentura ($\alpha\upsilon\tau\hat{\rho}\hat{\omega}$), Mk. 10. 32; this is so with some Impersonal Verbs; as in Mt. 16. 21, oporteret eum.

In place of se, especially inter se, the popular Lat. uses inuicem, even with a Preposition :

ut possent inuic. copulari, be coupled together, Ex. 26. 4; dixerunt . . . ad inuic., Joh. 16. 17 (but inter uos, 19); idipsum inuic. sentientes, Rom. 12. 16. Cf. 16. 16; Joh. 15. 17.

With Preposition, ab, ad, in, pro; locuti sunt ad inuic., Gen. 42. 21; murmurare in inuic., Joh. 6. 43; orate pro inuic., Jac. 5. 16.

Inter se, however, is sometimes found; quando inter se dicuntur, Prologue Ecclus.; diuersae inter se, Dan. 7. 3; cf. Mk. 1. 27; 9. 34; Lk. 22. 23; so, rixati sunt aduersum se, II Sam. (II Reg.) 14. 6.

The two forms are sometimes found together, inuicem being added to complete the sense; ita ut ad se inuic. . . . accedere non ualerent, Ex. 14. 20; so a, contra se, sibi, inuic.

Other substitutes, expressing reciprocal relationship, are alterutrum (chiefly in N.T.), mutuo, pariter :

ut quid nocetis alterutrum? Act. 7. 26; dicebant ad alt., Mk. 4. 40; sapere in alt. Rom. 15. 5; mutuo loquebantur, Gen. 37. 19; caesi sunt mutuo, II Kgs. (IV Reg.) 3. 23; secum pariter dormientes, Tob. 8. 15.

The Demonstrative Adj. alius, and the Numeral Adj. alter, are used in the same sense:

alius alium per inuidiam occidit, Wisd. (Sap.) 14. 24; percussit alter alterum (of two brothers), II Sam. (II Reg.) 14. 6 (see above); alter ad alterum, dixerunt, Num. 14. 4; dicebant, Judith 11. 18; clamabant, Isa. 6. 3; dixit, Dan. 13. 12.

§ 97. Suus. Suus is used for the Gen. eius, eorum, and vice versa:

ne reueraris proximum tuum in casu suo, Ecclus. 4. 27; dispersit superbos mente cordis sui, in the imagination of their heart (αὐτῶν), Lk. 1. 51. Conversely, eius for *suam*¹; orabat Dominum . . . ut dirigeret uiam eius . . . Judith 12. 8.

Used objectively; per hostiam suam, by the sacrifice of himself, Heb. 9. 26.

Suus, of course, includes 'their' = 'their own':

leuauerunt uocem suam II Sam. (II Reg.) 13. 36, Act. 14. 11, 22. 22; quaestiones quasdam de sua superstitione Act. 25. 19.

is: is qui foris est noster homo = our outward man, II Cor. 4. 16; in eo . . . in quo (ἐν ᾧ) = in that, Hebr. 2. 18.

§ 98. (b) Possessive. The possessive adjective (as suus above) is used instead of the objective Genitive, which is the classical form (as 'quonam nostri tibi cura recessit?') Verg. Aen. II. 595 = 'whither has thy regard for me departed?'); thus we have honor meus Mal. 1. 6 = 'the honour due to me', terror uester Gen. 9. 2 = 'the fear of you', in meam commemorationem Lk. 22. 19, I Cor. 11. 25 = 'in remembrance of me', ad antecessores meos apostolos Gal. 1. 17 (= τοὺς πρὸ ἐμοῦ ἀποστόλους); cf. also Rom. 11. 31, 15. 4, I Cor. 15. 31.

¹ The well-known passage in Hebr. 11. 21 is a case in point; it is said there that Jacob, when dying, blessed Joseph, 'et adorauit fastigium uirgae eius' (καὶ προσεκύνησεν ἐπὶ τὸ ἄκρον τῆς βάβδου αὐτοῦ). In strict grammar this should mean Joseph's staff, and many patristic commentators, both Greek and Latin, so understand it; but there is little doubt that the reference really is to Jacob's own staff, on which he leant, and that 'uirgae eius' is for 'uirgae suae'; Beza was correct in rendering 'adorauit super extremo baculo suo'; see also p. 12, n. 1.

The gen. is sometimes added in apposition: salutatio mea manu Pauli I Cor. 16. 21, Col. 4. 18, II Thess. 3. 17; conseruus tuus et fratrum tuorum Apoc. 19. 10.

§ 99. (c) Demonstrative. The use of the demonstrative is greatly extended to replace, or (in the case of ipse) to strengthen the 3rd Pers. pronoun and to supply the want of the definite article (see below, § 106).

Iste has lost all sense of reproach (thus in isto nomine I Pet. 4. 16); hic, ille, ipse are often used as = 'he'.

Thus in the Acts we have is, ille, iste, hic used promiscuously, and often of the same person; see Act. 9. 15, 16, Ps. 95 (94). 10, Apoc. 22. 20.

Iipse is used emphatically, e. g. ipse fecit nos, et non ipsi nos Ps. 100 (99). 3, see also Mt. 17. 5, Joh. 8. 28, Rom. 12. 16, II Thess. 3. 9.

Iipse is used for idem (possibly from a confusion between δ αὐτός and αὐτός δ), e. g. ex ipso ore procedit benedictio et maledictio Jac. 3. 10, cf. Hebr. 13. 8; in the same way id ipsum; so id ipsum . . . improperabant ei = they cast upon him the same reproach Mt. 27. 44, cf. Rom. 12. 16, I Cor. 12. 25; with a preposition, in id ipsum = together, I Cor. 7. 5, Hebr. 4. 11; and adverbially Act. 2. 47, cf. Ps. 4. 9, and especially ciuitas cuius participatio eius in id ipsum = a city which is compact together Ps. 122 (121). 3.

Hic: Plur. for sing.: haec quidam fuistis = such some of you were I Cor. 6. 11, maiorem horum non habeo gratiam III Joh. 4, cf. Joh. 15. 17.

Adverbially: in hoc (acc.) = for this purpose I Joh. 3. 8, in hoc (abl.) = hereby I Joh. 2. 3, 3. 16.

Huiusmodi: in New Test. with a noun understood; tolle de terra huiusmodi Act. 22. 22.

in Old Test. huiuscemodi, with noun expressed.

Alius* and alter. The ordinary classical use is varied in several ways; thus we have unus and unus, Mt. 24. 40, 27. 38; unus and alius I Kgs. (III Reg.) 22. 20; unus and alter II Sam. (II Reg.) 12. 1, Lk. 18. 10 etc.; in II Chron. 18. 19 we have cumque diceret unus hoc modo et alter alio, alter being used loosely; alius and alius Ecclus. 14. 19, aliis atque aliis uasis = in various kinds of vessels Esth. 1. 7; see above § 94.

§ 100. (d) Relative. For use of qui see Syntax §§ 105, 138; for Relative with redundant Demonstrative following, see §§ 23 and 99; qui as abl. Act. 6. 10, spiritui qui loquebatur.

§ 101. (e) Interrogative. Quid and ut quid = why? (as the Gk. τί; ivarí); frequent in Pss., from the LXX; but also in the New Test., e. g. quid statis . . . otiosi? Mt. 20. 6, cf. 26. 10, ut quid perditio haec (εἰς τί;) Mt. 26. 8, cf. 27. 46, Mk. 15. 34, I Cor. 10. 29, 15. 29, 30. These are used adverbially.

§ 102. (f) Indefinite. Aliquis for quis (after si, ne etc.): ne alicui dicerent Lk. 8. 56, cf. Amos 3. 4, Apoc. 21. 27; conversely infirmatur quis in uobis? Jac. 5. 14, cf. Act. 26. 31.

¹ Nullus, nullum for nemo, nihil: nullus te prohibere poterit Gen. 23. 6, cf. Num. 24. 9, Jud. 3. 25; hoc genus in nullo potest exire Mk. 9. 29.

¹ Jerome himself was fond of nullus, when quoting; e. g. in I Cor. 2. 8 the Vulg. has quam nemo, but Jerome quotes quam nullus (v. 328, 699, 993, vii. 262 in Vallarsi's ed.), and v. 15 a nemine Vulg. but a nullo Jerome (vii. 462).

Quis, quid, for uter, utrum (= whether of two): quis ex duobus Mt. 21. 31, quid est facilius, dicere . . . aut dicere Mt. 9. 5; cf. Act. 1. 24.

Uir for each, every man (a Hebraism, see § 14); but unusquisque is also used.

Uterque (in plur.) for ambo; donavit utrisque Lk. 7. 42, super utrosque Ecclus. 40. 23. But this is also found in Cicero, etc.

VI

SYNTACTICAL PECULIARITIES

SYNTAX OF THE SIMPLE SENTENCE

§ 103. Sentences are of three kinds: (1) Simple, (2) Double or Multiple, (3) Complex. Of the two latter Hebrew prefers the Double sentence, with its clauses combined co-ordinately; Greek and Latin prefer the Complex sentence, with a dependent clause introduced subordinately by one of the conjunctions in which both these languages abound.

THE SIMPLE SENTENCE

§ 104. We deal first with the Simple sentence, in which the two chief relations between words are those of Agreement and Government.

AGREEMENT.

§ 105. Passing over the three Concords, we need consider only Agreement according to SENSE—rational or logical agreement—a form found especially with collective nouns, such as multitudo, populus, turba, natio, etc. Here the verb is found in the plur., the accompanying adjective or pronoun in the masc.; thus:

'plurima . . . turba strauerunt' Mt. 21. 8 (so also the Gk.); 'misereor turbae quia . . . perseuerant . . . et dimittere eos ieiunos nolo' Mt. 15. 32; 'multitudo militiae caelestis, laudantium Deum' Lk. 2. 13; 'concurrit omnis populus . . . stupentes' Act. 3. 11; 'inuenit Tobiam . . . et exsiliens osculati sunt se inuicem' Tob. 9. 8 ; 'turba haec . . . maledicti sunt' Joh. 7. 49.

Similar variations are :

(i) The Attraction of the Relative ; found in the Old Latin, as¹ 'de omnibus malis quibus (quae Vulg.) fecit Herodes' Lk. 3. 19 df.

(ii) Inverse attraction, where the Antecedent is drawn into the case of the Relative (cf. 'urbem quam statuo uestra est' Verg. Aen. i. 573) ; 'quem ego decollauit Iohannem hic a mortuis resurrexit' Mk. 6. 16, cf. Joh. 14. 24, I Cor. 10. 16 (calicem codd. plur.), I Joh. 2. 17 ; 'omni . . . cui multum datum est' Lk. 12. 48 ; lapidem quem reprobauerunt aedificantes' Ps. 118 (117). 22 ; so quoted in Mt. 21. 42, Mk. 12. 10 (but lapis in I Pet. 2. 7).

(iii) Attraction of the Relative to the Predicate in its own clause : 'semini tuo qui est Christus' Gal. 3. 16, cf. Eph. 6. 17 ; this, however, is quite normal. In 'eius qui in me loquitur Christus' II Cor. 13. 3 Christus is apparently attracted into the case of the relative qui.

(iv) Attraction of the Copula to the Predicate : 'byssinum enim iustificationes sunt sanctorum' Apoc. 19. 8 (Gr. ἐστὶ with neutr.) ;² 'membra uestra templum est Spiritus sancti' I Cor. 6. 19.

THE ARTICLE

§ 106. Latin, as is well known, has no Article, Definite or Indefinite ; lux may = light, the light, or a light, according to the context. The want is especially felt in a translation from, or into, languages which possess one or both, and it is the cause of many defects and ambiguities in our own A.V., the English of which, as we have often pointed out, is greatly affected by the Vulgate. Strangely enough, the Douay Version, though made directly from the Vulgate, often reproduces the article more fully and faithfully.

¹ These are really complex sentences ; but it is more convenient to group together all deviations from the 'Three Concords'.

² So in A.V. 'the wages of sin is death', Rom. 6. 13 (Gr. and Lat. lack the verb).

Among passages in the original having the article we find: Gen. 19. 1 'the two angels' R.V. and Douay, following the Hebr.; but A.V. 'two angels', and Vulg. 'duo angeli'; Gen. 35. 8 'the oak' R.V. following the Hebr., but A.V. and Douay 'an oak', and Vulg. 'quercum'; II Sam. (II Reg.) 18. 10 'an oak' A.V., R.V., and Douay, Vulg. 'quercu'.

In the N.T. Mt. 1. 23 ἡ παρθένος, Joh. 13. 5 τὸν νιπτῆρα; 16. 13 πᾶσαν τὴν ἀλήθειαν = 'all the truth' R.V., but 'all truth' A.V. and Douay; Act. 2. 42 τῇ κλάσει τοῦ ἄρτου καὶ ταῖς προευχαῖς = 'in breaking of bread and in prayers' A.V., 'in . . . the breaking of bread, and in prayers' Douay, 'in the breaking of bread and the prayers' R.V.;¹ 10. 47, τὸ ὕδωρ = 'water' A.V. and Douay, 'the water' R.V.; 28. 4, ἡ δίκη = 'vengeance' A.V. and Douay and Vulg. 'ultio'; R.V. correctly has 'Justice' (personified); I Cor. 10. 13, τὴν ἔκβασιν = 'a way to escape' A.V., 'issue' Douay, 'the way of escape' R.V.; Apoc. 7. 14, τῆς θλίψεως τῆς μεγάλης = 'great tribulation' A.V. and Douay, 'the great tribulation' R.V.

The same confusion arises between the Greek πᾶς, πολὺς, Χριστός, Πνεῦμα, used with or without the Article.

πᾶς with art.: Lk. 2. 10, παντὶ τῷ λαῷ = 'to all people' A.V., possibly from Vulg. 'omni populo', but 'to all the people' R.V. and Douay; πᾶς without art. = 'every': so ¹ The Vulg. 'in communicatione fractionis panis', and the Douay 'in the communication of the breaking', etc. both deviate from the Greek.

Lk. 4. 13 πάντα πειρασμόν = 'every temptation' R.V., but A.V. and Douay 'all the temptation'; Eph. 3. 15 πᾶσα πατριὰ = 'every family' R.V., 'all paternity' Douay and 'omnis paternitas' Vulg., 'the whole family' A.V.

πολύς, plur. οἱ πολλοί = 'the many': so Mt. 24. 12 R.V., but 'many' A.V. and Douay; Rom. 5. 15, 19, 'the many' R.V., 'many' A.V. and Douay, 'multi' Vulg.; II Cor. 2. 17, 'the many' R.V., 'many' A.V. and Douay, 'plurimi' Vulg.

ὁ Χριστός, the title, occurs frequently in the Acts,¹ as in the Gospels; in the Pauline Epistles the article, as a rule, is dropped, and the title becomes a name; but this distinction cannot be preserved in the Latin.

Nor can that between τὸ Πνεῦμα, the (personal) Spirit, and πνεῦμα, the spirit as an influence.

Nor can a title, such as 'the Magdalene', 'of Kerioth', 'the brother' (I Cor. 1. 1) be fully expressed in the Latin.

Nor can the Greek 'praepositive article', which distinguishes the subject from the predicate; thus 'sempiternum habet sacerdotium' in Hebr. 7. 24 does not fully represent the 'hath his priesthood unchangeable', ἀπαράβατον ἔχει τὴν ἱερωσύνην, of the Greek. In Joh. 1. 1 Θεὸς ἦν ὁ λόγος is unambiguous, but 'Deus erat uerbum' could mean 'God was the word'.

§ 107. Hence in popular Latin an attempt was made to supply this deficiency by the use of hic, ille, or ipse, to express the definite Article, and also, partly, the pronoun of the 3rd Person. We have, in fact, the beginning of the process by which ille was split up so as to form, in Italian and French, both the definite art. and the 3rd Personal pronoun. Ille especially reproduces the original Demonstrative sense of the Greek Article.

¹ Harnack finds in this fact a sign of early date for the book; see Die Apostelgeschichte, p. 220 (Leipzig, 1908).

Definite Article reproduced by ille: Joh. 14. 22, οὐχ ὁ Ἰσκαριώτης = non ille Scarioth; 20. 3, 4, ὁ ἄλλος μαθητής = ille alius discipulus; Gal. 2. 13, τῇ ὑποκρίσει = illa simulatione; Hebr. 3. 15, ἐν τῷ παραπικρασμῷ = in illa exacerbatione; II Pet. 2. 22, τὸ τῆς ἀληθοῦς παροιμίας = illud ueri prouerbii.

Reproduced by hic: In the Old Testament in the phrase 'ex hoc nunc' = ἀπὸ τοῦ νῦν, see Pss. 115 (113) 18, 121 (120.) 8, 131. 4. (130. 3). In the New Testament ὁ κόσμος is frequently rendered 'hic mundus', cf. Joh. 9. 39 etc.; it is very frequent in the Old Latin.

Reproduced by ipse: Gen. 24. 24, τῷ Ναχώρ (Hebr. נָחֹר) = ipsi Nachor; in the titles to the Psalms τῷ Δαυεὶδ is often rendered 'ipsi David'! see also above § 90.

Indefinite Article: unus is employed = τις, 'a' 'an', thus leading up to the modern Italian and French; see above, § 94.

So Lk. 9. 19, 'propheta unus' = προφήτης τις;¹ Dan. 6. 17, 'allatusque est lapis unus' = 'a stone was brought'; II Chron. 18. 33, 'unus e populo' = 'a certain man'; I Kgs. (III Reg.) 20. 28, 'unus uir Dei' = 'a man of God'; 39 'uir unus' = 'a man'; I Sam. (I Reg.) 17. 49 'unum lapidem' = 'a stone'.

Frequently in the New Testament the Latin numeral is a literal translation of the Greek, though there also it only has the force of an indefinite article; so Mt. 8. 19 'unus scriba' = εἰς γραμματεὺς, 'a scribe'; 21. 19 'fici arborem unam' = συκῆν μίαν, 'a fig tree'; cf. 26. 69, Mk. 12. 42, Apoc. 9. 13, 19. 17 etc.

¹ But I Sam. (I Reg.) 1. 1 'uir unus' is deceptive; the LXX. is ἀνθρωπός τις, but Jerome was probably translating direct from the Hebr. אִישׁ אֶחָד; in Hebrew, no less than in Hellenistic Greek, the numeral was frequently used for the indefinite article; see Davidson, Introductory Hebrew Grammar § 11.

GOVERNMENT. THE NOUN.

The Nominative.

§ 108. (i) Suspended Nominative (Nominatiuus pendens). This loose construction, which is, indeed, common in later Latin, may be partly due to the Hebrews; see above, § 19.

A similar use of the nominative is found after ecce (ἰδοῦ): so 'ecce uox de caelis' Mt. 3. 17, 'ecce ego et pueri mei' Hebr. 2. 13, from Isa. 8. 18.

§ 109. (ii) Impersonal Verbs. Verbs used only in the 3rd Pers. sing., and without a nominative, are called Impersonal (see § 136 infra).

They are in use (1) to denote natural phenomena (rain, lightning, thunder). These are used personally, for if the Greeks originally said Ζεὺς, Θεός, ὕει, and the Romans spoke of 'Iuppiter tonans',¹ or 'pluuius', much more did the Chosen People refer such phenomena to the direct action of God. Thus we get the full expression 'pluit Dominus', etc., frequently (Gen. 2. 5, 19. 24, Ex. 9. 23 etc.), as also 'intonuit Dominus' (I Sam. [I Reg.] 7. 10, Ps. 18. 13 [17. 14], 29 [28.] 3, Ecclus. 46. 20), and the appeal to God 'Fulgura coruscationem' Ps. 144 (143). 6; but also the impersonal verb 'pluit' Lk. 17. 29, Jac. 5. 17, Apoc. 11. 6, and in the Old Test.

(2) to denote mental emotions.

paenitet: often used in Old Test. of God; p. me, p. eum, etc., followed by quod with subj. or used absolutely; not with gen. Used impersonally in New Test. (p. me Lk. 17. 4, II Cor. 7. 8, cf. Hebr. 7. 21), but sometimes personally (paenitemini Mk. 1. 15, Act 3. 19, paeniterent Lk. 10. 13, paeniteri Apoc. 2. 21).

¹ 'Caelo tonantem credidimus Iouem Regnare', Hor. Od. iii. 5. 1.

piget: only once in the Vulgate Bible, Eccclus. 7. 39 'non te pigeat uisitare infirmum'.

pudet: also only once, Isa. 54. 4 'neque erubesces: non enim te pudebit'.

taedet: used normally, Job 9. 21 'taedebit me uitae meae', cf. Eccl. 2. 17, and Job 10. 1; II Cor. 1. 8 'ita ut taederet nos etiam uiuere' (τοῦ ζῆν); used personally 'caepit taedere' Num. 21. 4, II Kgs. (IV Reg.) 10. 32, cf. Mk. 14. 33.

(3) to denote duty, interest, etc.

oportet: chiefly found in New Test. (= δεῖ, ὀφείλει), and used normally; in the Old Test. notice II Sam. (II Reg.) 4. 10 'cui oportebat mercedem dare pro nuntio' = which was the fitting reward for his tidings ('which was the reward I gave him for his tidings' R.V.)

debet: is rarer, and is used as often personally as impersonally; Ps. 65. 1 (64. 2) 'te debet hymnus', cf. 93 (92). 5; Tit. 2. 1 'quae decent sanam doctrinam'. Dedebet is not found.

interest: only Gal. 2. 6 'nihil mea int.' Refert is not found.

libet: only Gen. 16. 6 of Hagar 'utere ea ut libet', and Prov. 26. 2 'passer quo libet uadens'.

licet: frequent and normal; absolutely or with Dat.

For accidit, contingit, fit etc. see § 134 (a) below.

The Accusative.

§ 110. (1) After verbs usually intransitive (generally a Graecism): Mt. 5. 6 'qui esuriunt et sitiunt iustitiam'; similarly after confundi, erubescere, etc., see above § 47; after audio (=hear of) Eph. 1. 15, Col. 1. 4, Philem. 5, Jac. 5. 11.

(2) The Cognate Object (usually with epithet) akin in meaning to the verb: 'pastores . . . custodientes uigilias noctis' Lk. 2. 6: 'iustum iudicium iudicate' Joh. 7. 24; 'certa bonum certamen' I Tim. 6. 2; 'timorem eorum ne timueritis' (τὸν φόβον αὐτῶν μὴ φοβηθῆτε); 'captiuam duxit captiuitatem' Eph. 4. 8, from Ps. 68. 18 (67. 19); 'cantate Domino canticum nouum' Ps. 98 (97). 1.

(3) Double accusative (person and thing), after verbs of teaching and asking; a normal construction: 'ille uos docebit omnia' Joh. 14. 26 etc.; 'quem si petierit filius suus panem' Mt. 7. 9.

So also celare: 'hunc celauit me pater meus sermonem . . . ?' I Sam. (I Reg.), 20. 2.

and traducere: 'Berzellai . . . traduxit regem Iordanem' II Sam. (II Reg.) 19. 31.

(4) Accusative with Infinitive. This ordinary construction is noticeable only from its rarity; it is usually replaced by quod, quia, or quoniam: but we have 'dicunt eum uiuere' Lk. 24. 23; 'aestimantes eum mortuum esse' Act. 14. 19, cf. Rom. 2. 19, I Cor. 7. 10, 11, Phil. 3. 13, I Tim. 2. 8; with esse understood but not expressed, 'miserunt insidiatores qui se iustos simularent' Lk. 20. 20; future infinitive, 'testes inuoco hodie caelum et terram cito perituros uos esse de terra' Dt. 4. 26.

(5) 'Greek Accusative (with verbs of clothing); see § 44 c. Similarly the accusative of Respect: 'aspersi corda' (ἐπραντισμένοι τὰς καρδίας) Hebr. 10. 22.

(6) Other uses:

absolutely: 'inluminatos oculos' Eph. 1. 18.

loosely: 'testificor coram Deo, et Christo Iesu qui iudicaturus est uiuos ac mortuos, et aduentum ipsius, et regnum eius' II Tim. 4. 1.

§ 111. (7) Accusative with prepositions.

a. Prepositions taking only the Acc.

ad (1) = to: 'facie ad faciem' Ex. 33. 11, Dt. 5. 4, Jud. 6. 22, I Cor. 13. 12; 'os ad os' (Num. 12. 8) II Joh. 13, III Ioh. 14; 'clamare ad Dominum' Ps. 3. 4 (5) and often; 'dicere ad' (instead of dat.) Isa. 18. 4, 21. 16, 29. 22, Joh. 4. 15 etc.; 'factus est sermo Domini ad' I Kgs. (III Reg.) 12. 22, Jerem. 13. 3, Ezek. 6. 1 and often; also 'factum est uerbum Domini ad' Ezek. 1. 3 and often; 'non respondit ei ad ullum uerbum' (πρὸς οὐδὲ ἐν ῥῆμα) Mt. 27. 14.

with usque: 'usque ad Daudid', etc. Mt. 1. 17; 'usque ad tempus' Lk. 4. 13, Act. 13. 11.

(2) = towards: 'patientes . . . ad omnes' I Thess. 5. 14; 'inimici . . . ad inuicem' Lk. 23. 12; 'ad aquilonem' = on the north, II Kgs. (IV Reg.) 16. 14; 'ad uesperam' Gen. 8. 11 and often.

(3) = against: 'tamquam ad latronem existis' Mt. 26. 55.

(4) = at, in the neighbourhood of: 'ad mamillas' Apoc. 1. 13; 'ad radicem' Mt. 3. 10; 'ad manus . . . trahentes' (χειραγωγούντες) Act. 9. 8, cf. 'ad manum deductores' cod. d Act. 13. 11.

(5) = according to (a standard; κατά): 'ad imaginem nostram' Gen. 1. 26, 27; 'ad oculum seruiantes' Eph. 6. 6; 'ad duritiam cordis' (in consideration of; πρὸς) Mt. 19. 8.

(6) = for (purpose), esp. with gerund; cf. § 129 (1): 'ad bellandum' Dt. 3. 1, 20. 9, Jos. 14. 11, Jud. 5. 14, etc.; 'ad concupiscendum eam' Mt. 5. 28; 'ad non parcendum corpori . . . ad saturitatem carnis' Col. 2. 23; 'ad consummationem sanctorum' Eph. 4. 12; 'ad hoc' (for this very purpose; εἰς τοῦτο) Act. 9. 21.

- (7) = apud: 'claritatem ad turbas' Wisd. (Sap.) 8. 10; 'ad meipsum' (within me) Ps. 42. 6 (41. 7); cf. Prov. 30. 10.
- aduersum, aduersus* = towards, against: so I Macc. 3. 52, 58, Eph. 6. 12; = κατά with gen. Act. 6. 13, Rom. 8. 33, I Cor. 15. 15; = ἐναντίον Act. 28. 17.
- ante* = before, used more frequently of place than of time, especially in the Hebraisms ante faciem, ante oculos, ante uultum, etc. Gen. 30. 38, Ex. 34. 11, I Kgs. (III Reg.) 18. 15 etc.; also 'sic placuit ante te', etc., Mt. 11. 26, Lk. 10. 21; 'ante Deum' I Thess. 3. 13.
- Of time: 'ante unum et alterum diem' (= in time past) Dt. 4. 42; 'ante annos quattuordecim' (fourteen years ago; πρὸ ἐτῶν δεκατεσσάρων) II Cor. 12. 2.
- apud* = in the presence of; in the opinion of (esp. of God), so the French chez, auprès de:
 'opto apud Deum' (Gk. dat.) Act. 26. 29; 'iudicari apud iniquos et non apud sanctos' I Cor. 6. 1; 'apud se ponat' (lay by at home) I Cor. 16. 2; 'testamenta saeculi posita sunt apud illum' Ecclus. 44. 19; 'prudentes apud uosmet ipsos' (in your own opinion; παρ' ἑαυτοῖς) Rom. 12. 16.
- cata* = κατά: 'cata mane mane' (morning by morning; τὸ πρῶτῳ) Ezek. 46. 14, 15. This Graecism is often found in the titles to the Gospels in Old Latin MSS. (cata Marcum, cata Lucanum, etc.).
- circa, circum, circiter* = around, about, concerned with: 'circa uiam', 'circa mare' (by) Mk. 4. 4, 15; 'circa domos' (κατ' οἶκον) Act. 2. 46, 5. 42; 'circa mediam noctem' (κατά with acc.) Act. 27. 27, 'circa ortum diei' Judith 10. 11; cf. Mt. 20. 3, 5, 6, 9, 27. 46, Mk. 3. 8; 'satagebat circa frequens ministerium' Lk. 10. 40; 'languens circa quaestiones' I Tim. 6. 4; 'circa fidem naufragauerunt' I Tim. 1. 19; 'quae circa me (uos) sunt' = my (your) affairs, Eph. 6. 21 (τὰ κατ' ἐμέ), Phil. 1. 12, 2. 19 (τὰ περὶ ὑμῶν).

contra = against, opposite to, towards; cf. contrarius, § 84: 'contra meridiem' I Sam. (I Reg.) 27. 10, cf. Dt. 2. 3, Num. 24. 1, Dan. 6. 10; 'contra ipsam' Act. 27. 14;¹ in I Kgs. (III Reg.) 8. 44 the first contra = against, the others = towards; 'aspicere contra Deum' (to look upon God = ἐνώπιον LXX) Exod. 3. 6; 'iratusque est Dominus contra me' (in place of dat.) Deut. 4. 21, so Ital. adirato contro, and French se fâcher contre.

erga = towards, with a view to: 'quod non esset (facies Laban) erga se sicut heri' Gen. 31. 2, 5; 'erga meum obsequium (πρός) Phil. 2. 30; 'erga fratres tuos' (with regard to) Gen. 37. 14, I Sam. (I Reg.) 17. 22; frequent in II Macc.

extra = outside of: 'extra ciuitatem, portam, castra, etc. Gen. 19. 17, Exod. 29. 14, Ezek. 40, 44 etc.; 'extra corpus' I Cor. 6. 18, II Cor. 12. 3; 'extra flumen' (beyond the river) I Macc. 5. 41; 'extra disciplinam' (without; χωρίς) Hebr. 12. 8.

inter = between, among: 'inter duos milites' (μεταξύ) Act. 12. 6; 'iudicat diem inter diem' (esteemeth one day above another; κρίνει ἡμέραν παρ' ἡμέραν) Rom. 14. 5; 'turbatio inter milites' (among the soldiers; ἐν τοῖς στρατιώταις) Act 12. 18.

intra = within: intra portas, etc., as with extra, Exod. 20. 10 etc.; 'intra se' (ἐν ἑαυτῷ) Lc. 7. 39, cf. 49 etc., 'intra uos' Mt. 3. 9 etc.; 'intra te' (on this side of thee) I Sam. (I Reg.) 20. 22.

iuxta = near, but also in Vulg. = according to;² 'iuxta

¹ The Gk. is κατ' ἀντῆς, which the A.V. translates 'against it' (i. e. the ship = Vulg.), but the R.V. 'from it' (i. e. from Crete).

² Jerome himself was fond of iuxta, which often when quoting from memory he substitutes for the secundum of the Vulgate; thus for secundum conuallem Mambre' Gen. 13. 18 etc. 'iuxta genus suum' Gen. 1. 11 etc.; 'iuxta traditionem seniorum' Mk. 7. 5; 'iuxta quod' Num. 6. 21.

ob = on account of (= διά with Acc.): 'ob quam causam' II Tim. 1. 12, Tit. 1. 13.

penes = in the power of: usually penes me, penes te: 'penes te metipsum' (κατὰ σαυτόν) Rom. 14. 22; 'penes regem noli uelle uideri sapiens' (display not thy wisdom before the king; παρὰ βασιλεῖ) Ecclus. 7. 5.

per = through, by means of (διά with Gen.):

(1) Of place, especially in distributive sense, e. g. per loca, per ciuitatem; 'per ciuitates' Tit. 1. 5; 'per stadia duodecim milia' (ἐπὶ σταδίων δώδεκα χιλιάδων) Apoc. 21. 16; 'per praeceps' (κατὰ τοῦ κρημοῦ) Mt. 8. 32, Lk. 8. 33; 'per circuitum' (κύκλῳ) Rom. 15. 19.

(2) Of time, in answer to the question how long? per totam noctem, per multum tempus, etc.: 'per dies quadraginta' (δι' ἡμερῶν τεσσαρ. = at intervals during) Act. 1. 3; so implying repetition, 'per omnes annos' (= every year) Lk. 2. 41; 'per ter' Act. 10. 16; 'per partes (in turn; ἀνὰ μέρος) I Cor. 14. 27.

(3) = by means of: 'per fidem et non per speciem' II Cor. 5. 7; 'per chartam' II Joh. 13; 'per choros' (in dances) I Sam. (I Reg.) 21. 11.

(4) In oaths: 'per memetipsum iuravi' Gen. 22. 16; 'per caelum', 'per terram', etc. Mt. 5. 34, 36, 26. 63 etc.

post = after; sometimes of the pattern followed: 'unus post unum' Joh. 8. 9; 'post uelamentum . . . secundum' Hebr. 9. 3; 'requieuit post Dominum' I Sam. (I Reg.)

eundem spiritum (I Cor. 12. 8) of the Vulg. he quotes (V. 798) iuxta eundem spiritum; Ps. 119 (118), 25, 107 has secundum uerbum tuum in the Gallican Psalter, but iuxta uerbum tuum in the Psalt. iuxta Hebraeos; there are numerous other instances; see also Goelzer, Latinité de S. Jerome, p. 332.

7. 2 ('rested following the Lord' Douay; 'lamented after the Lord' E.V.); 'post carnem ambulans' II Pet. 2. 10 (ὀπίσω), cf. Jude 7.

praeter: (1) = except (πλήν): Mk. 12. 32, Act. 8. 1; 'praeter folia' (εἰ μὴ φύλλα) Mk. 11. 13; 'praeter eum' (ἐκτὸς τοῦ ὑποστ.) I Cor. 15. 27.

(2) = besides, in addition to: 'praeter illa' (χωρὶς τῶν παρ.) II Cor. 11. 28; 'altari praeter altare Domini' Jos. 22. 19, 29.

(3) = beyond: 'praeter omnes' (more than all; παρὰ πάντας) Lk. 13. 4; 'praeter doctrinam' (contrary to the doctrine; παρὰ τὴν διδασχὴν) Rom. 16. 17, 'praeter tempus aetatis' (past age; παρὰ καιρὸν ἡλικίας) Hebr. 11. 11.

prope = near to: 'prope fontem', etc. Gen. 24. 13, 30 etc.

*propter*¹ = on account of: 'propter nimiam caritatem suam' (διὰ τὴν πολλὴν ἀγάπην αὐτοῦ) Eph. 2. 4, cf. Phil. 1. 15; 'propter tempus' Hebr. 5. 12; 'propter peccatum . . . iustificationem' (διὰ with Acc.) Rom. 8. 10, but 'propter inhabitantem spiritum' 11 = διὰ with Gen.

In Pss. = ἔνεκα: e.g. 'proptēr inimicos tuos' Ps. 8. 2 (3) etc.: = εἰς (for the purpose of); 'propter euangelium' II Cor. 2. 12.

propter quod = διό (therefore) II Cor. 4. 13, 16.

retro: I Tim. 5. 15, see above § 95.

secundum (lit. 'following'): in Vulg. mainly = 'in accordance with' (κατά), 'after'; so 'secundum speciem suam' Gen. 1. 12, cf. Ps. 51. 1 (50. 3), 95 8 (94. 9); 'secundum uoluntatem eius' (= πρὸς τὸ θέλημα αὐτοῦ) Lk. 12. 47;

¹ Num. 24. 7 'tolletur propter Agag rex eius' is obscure; the Hebrew appears to mean 'his king (or kingdom) shall be higher than Agag', but a Lapidé (ad loc.) explains it, 'his king shall be taken away because of Agag', and the Douay Version renders 'For Agag his king shall be removed', where 'for' must = 'for the sake of'.

'secundum tempus' (κατὰ καιρόν) = 'at the appointed time' Rom. 5. 6; 'secundum Deum' = 'according to the will of God' Rom. 8. 27; 'secundum hominem' = 'according to the manner of men', from mere human motives (Plummer) I Cor. 15. 32; 'secundum ignobilitatem' = 'by way of disparagement' II Cor. 11. 21; 'secundum duos' (κατὰ δύο) = 'to the number of two' I Cor. 14. 27¹; 'secundum Salmonem' (κατὰ Σαλμώνην) = 'over against Salmone' Act. 27. 7; see also above, under iuxta.

secus: in Vulgate only as preposition, in classical Latin mainly as adverb; see above, § 95.

subtus: used as preposition in Vulgate, in classical Latin only as adverb; see above, § 95.

supra: frequently = super.

= above; 'supra id quod uidet me' II Cor. 12. 6, 'supra uirtutem' II Cor. 1. 8, 'supra modum' (καθ' ὑπερβολήν) = 'exceedingly' II Cor. 1. 8, 4. 17.

= upon; 'supra singulos' Act. 2. 3, cf. Hebr. 11. 13; 'supra sacrificium' (ἐπὶ τῆ θυσίᾳ) Phil. 2. 17.

= over: 'supra (super) omnia quae possidet' Lk. 12. 44. also as Adverb; Lk. 11. 44, Hebr. 4. 7.

trans = across: 'trans locum illum' I Sam. (I Reg.) 14. 1, cf. Mt. 14. 22, Joh. 6. 22: 'trans Iordanen' (beyond Jordan) Dt. 1. 1, 5, 3. 8, Num. 22. 1, Jos. 9. 1.

ultra = beyond: 'ultra te' I Sam. (I Reg.) 20. 22, 37, 'ultra uos' II Cor. 10. 16, 'ultra uires' Ex. 18. 18; in moral sense 'pessimo ultra omnem terram' Dan. 3. 32 (most wicked beyond all that are upon the earth).²

¹ i. e. at each service; not 'by twos', for they were to speak separately (per partes, ἀνὰ μέρος); see above, p. 86

² Cis and uersus do not occur in the Vulgate; infra only as adverb, Ex. 40. 18, Mt. 2. 16.

b. Prepositions taking Acc. and Abl. Their use with Acc.

in (eis) denotes motion into; action passing over to, towards, upon, against, any one; according to the context. Its use is frequent in the Pauline Epp., especially Eph. Its various usages—mainly parallel with the Greek—can scarcely be classified.

= upon: 'in discipulos' Lk. 6. 20, cf. Mk. 14. 6, Eph. 5. 6.

= unto: 'in adoptionem', etc., Eph. 1. 5, 3. 20, 4. 16.

= according to: 'in mensuram' Eph. 4. 16.

= against: 'in filium . . . in spiritum' Lk. 12. 10.

of time: 'in crastinum', etc., Mt. 6. 34, Phil. 1. 10, I Tim. 1. 17, Apoc. 9. 15.

of place (direction): 'in sua' Joh. 19. 27, cf. Act. 21. 6, Lk. 6. 48 (fodit in altum), 'in occursum' to meet, Gen. 14. 17 and frequently in Old Test.

of purpose (= the Hebr. לְ , see § 22) expressing what a thing is to be, or to be regarded as: 'in laudem', etc. Eph. 1. 12, 14, 2. 15, 21, 22, 'positus est in ruinam' Lk. 2. 34, cf. Act. 19. 27, Rom. 2. 26.

sub denotes motion under: 'ut intres sub tectum meum' Mt. 8. 8, 'gallina congregat pullos suos sub alas' Mt. 23. 37.

subter = under: fairly frequent in Old Test.; not found in New; sometimes used as adverb, Dt. 28. 13, Jud. 7. 8, Isa. 14. 9, Amos 2. 9.

super = over, upon (strictly of motion, but also of rest): 'super firmamentum' Gen. 1. 7, cf. Mt. 24. 2, Joh. 19. 19; very frequent. Expressing authority over: 'super omnem Isr.' I Kgs. (III Reg.) 4. 7. cf. 11. 28, Act. 6. 3, Phil. 2. 9, Hebr. 2. 7.

As Hebraism, of the emotions, after misereri, dolere, etc. 'plange quasi uirgo . . . super uirum' Joel 1. 8, cf. Jon.

3. 10, 4. 10; 'misereor super turbam' Mk. 8. 2, cf. Jon.

3. 10, II Macc. 11. 10, Mk. 6. 34.

= unto: 'testimōnium nostrum super uos' II Thess. 1. 10
(ἐφ' ὑμᾶς).

'non est super' (= 'non superest') Gen. 42. 13. Super
is a hard-worked preposition.

The Dative.

§ 112. Speaking generally, we may say that the Dative (usually = person) corresponds to the Noun, the Genitive (expressing quality) to the Adjective, the Ablative (denoting attendant circumstance) to the Adverb.

The Dative, on the whole, is used normally in the Vulgate as the indirect object of the Verb, the person in (or against) whose interest something is done; especially after verbs compounded with ad, ante, con, in, inter, ob, post, prae, sub, including the compounds of esse; also after esse itself, with a Predicative Noun or Adjective.

1. With verbs which have, or may have, a direct object: 'para mihi hospitium' Philem. 22.¹ This includes all words of giving in the widest sense (imparting, showing, speaking, etc.); so debere Rom. 13. 8, exhibere Rom. 6. 13, Mt. 26. 53 etc., praebere (frequent in Old Test.), metiri (quam mensus est nobis Deus II Cor. 10. 13).

2. With verbs which have no direct object: verbs denoting to please, obey (and their opposites), appear, pardon, hurt, and many others; so ministrare Mt. 4. 11, seruire Rom. 1. 9, apparere Act. 1. 3, praecipere 1. 2, uideri I Cor. 15. 5, 8, ignoscere with dat. of person Dt. 29. 20, II Kgs. (IV Reg.) 5. 18, of thing Jos. 24. 19, Wisd. (Sap.) 13. 8, Dan. 4. 24, nocere (but also accus., see Num. 5. 19, Lk. 4. 35, Act. 7. 26

¹ There are many datives in this short Epistle; see verses 1-4, 8 11, 13 16-19, 22; but 21 confidens is used with abl.

18. 10), nubere Lev. 21. 3 (used for marriage in general, e. g. Mt. 22. 30, I Cor. 7. 9, I Tim. 4. 3), studere Prov. 23. 30: expedit (frequently); ire obuiam (frequently).

3. Dative of interest, especially with esse or feri and a Predicative Noun, showing to or for whom something is predicated, or to whom it is (belongs): thus 'ignominia est illi . . . gloria est illi' I Cor. 11. 14, 15, 'inimicus uobis factus sum' Gal. 4. 16.

Hence the Dative after esse denotes the possessor: 'cui nomen erat Iohannes' (whose name was John) Joh. 1. 6, 'erit Sarrae filius' (Sarah shall have a son) Rom. 9. 9, cf. 3. 1.

In the predication just mentioned the Dative is used instead of the Nominative to denote what a person or thing is regarded as being or becoming: thus 'oneri esse' I Thess. 2. 7 'to be burdensome, cf. 'facti sumus despectui' Neh. (II Esdr.) 4. 4.¹

The same construction is found with the added Dative of the person interested; 'eritis odio omnibus' Mt. 10. 22, cf. 24. 9, Mk. 13. 13, Lk. 21. 17, Wisd. (Sap.) 14. 9, 'testimonio estis uobismet ipsis' Mt. 23. 31, 'est tibi curae' Lk. 10. 40, cf. Act. 18. 17.

4. Dative after adjectives, often as predicatives with esse: 'tolerabilius erit terrae Sodomorum' Mt. 10. 15, 'carissimum . . . mihi' Philem. 16, 'commodius tibi' I Kgs. (III Reg.) 21. 2, 'nihil mihi conscius sum' I Cor. 4. 4, 'nimium credulus uerbis coniugis' Gen. 39. 19,² 'inimica est Deo' Rom. 8. 7,³ 'uictui necessaria' Gen. 42. 7, 'paria Deo sentire'

¹ But this construction, which is classical, is frequently replaced by the Hebraism of esse in with Acc. or Abl.; see § 22.

² These words are an explicative addition to the text on the part of Jerome; there are others in this chapter.

³ So § C (inimicitia est in Deum Oxf. Ed.); but 'inimica est Dei' Jac. 4. 4.

II Macc. 9. 12, 'mihi propior est rex' II Sam. (II Reg.) 19. 42, 'his qui ei proximi sunt' Num. 27. 11, cf. Dt. 1. 7, Hebr. 6. 8, 'prope est Dominus omnibus inuocantibus eum' Ps. 145 (144). 18, cf. Jer. 12. 2; so similis¹ and dissimilis Wisd. (Sap.) 2. 15, Dan. 7. 7, utilis and inutilis Philem. 11; the adverb praesto may take a dative, 'multa similia praesto sunt ei' Job 23. 14, 'nullus altario praesto fuit' Hebr. 7. 13, 'cui enim non praesto sunt haec' II Pet. 1. 9 (these three are the only instances in the Vulgate).

5. Irregular constructions :

'Sacrificium Deo spiritus contribulatus' Ps. 51. 17 (50. 19) from the LXX τῷ Θεῷ; in the Psalt. iuxta Hebr. Jerome wrote Dei.

'comitetur ei' Tob. 5. 27.

'iudicauit mihi Dominus' Gen. 30. 6, cf. Lev. 19. 15, Ezr. (I Esdr.) 7. 25, Ps. 10. 20 (9. 43), 82 (81). 3, Isa. 1. 17, 23.

'iussit ministris ut' Gen. 42. 25 etc.

'permissum est Paulo manere sibimet' (καθ' εαυτόν) Act. 28. 16.

'principes non sunt timori boni operis' Rom. 13. 3.

'unde ergo nobis in deserto panes tantos' Mt. 15. 33 (πόθεν ἡμῶν ἐν ἐρημίᾳ ἄρτοι τοσοῦτοι).

'mihi uindictam' Rom. 12. 19 (ἐμοὶ ἐκδίκησις).

'non alligabis os boui trituranti' I Cor. 9. 9, I Tim. 5. 18,² cf. 'alligans sibi pedes et manus' Act. 21. 11.

¹ Similis in the Old Test. is often found with the Gen., mei, tui, especially when used of God; but in the Psalms it usually takes Dat. As we find 'adiutorium simile sibi' and 'adiutor similis eius', Gen. 2. 18, 20, it would seem impossible to make any distinction, e.g. as between external and internal likeness. In the New Test., from the influence of the Greek, the Dat. is regular, and even the 'caudas similes scorpionum' of Apoc. 9. 10 probably = 'tails like those of scorpions', while the 'cornua duo similia Agni' of Apoc. 13. 11 clearly = 'horns like those of a Lamb'.

² But Jerome when translating independently from the Hebr. (Dt. 25. 4) wrote 'non ligabis os bouis terentis in area fruges tuas'.

The Genitive.

§ 113. The chief use of the Genitive is to qualify another noun, and to denote quality, possession, or connexion. It is also used as the Object of certain verbs, and of nouns akin in meaning to a verb.

Adjectival Genitive. With this, as in classical Latin, nouns denoting kinship are generally understood (cf. 'Hectoris Andromache' Aen. 3. 319): so 'Iacobum Zebedaei' Mt. 4. 21, cf. Lk. 6. 16, 24. 10, Joh. 6. 71, 19. 25; in Mk. 5. 35 one MS. (V) has 'ab archisynagogi'; in I Cor. 1. 11 we have 'ab his qui sunt Chloes'.

Predicative Genitive, with esse, denotes possession, or mark: so 'qui sunt Christi', etc. Gal. 3. 29, 5. 24, cf. Lk. 2. 49; 'est consuetudinis' Gen. 29. 26, Hebr. 10. 25 (but elsewhere 'est consuetudo' II Macc. 13. 4, Joh. 18. 39, Act. 25. 16); 'non esse gaudii sed maeroris' Hebr. 12. 11; 'uestrum est scire iudicium' Mic. 3. 1.

Genitive of Quality: largely Hebraistic (see above, § 20). So 'passiones ignominiae' Rom. 1. 26 (πάθη ἀτιμίας); 'iustitiis carnis' Hebr. 9. 10; 'iudices cogitationum iniquarum' Jac. 2. 4 (διαλογισμῶν πονηρῶν); 'similis formae' I Petr. 3. 21; 'falsi nominis scientiae' I Tim. 6. 20.

Epexegetical or defining Genitive, used by way of Apposition, to express consisting of, or in: so 'de templo corporis sui' Joh. 2. 21; 'signum . . . circumcisionis' Rom. 4. 11; 'primitias Spiritus' Rom. 8. 23, cf. II Cor. 5. 5; 'domus huius habitationis' II Cor. 5. 1.

This Genitive is found with names of places, where, in classical usage, the second noun would be in the same case as the first: so 'de terra Aegypti' Gen. 21. 21 etc.; 'terram Aethiopiae' Gen. 2. 13; 'in monte Carmeli' I Kgs. (III Reg.) 18. 19; 'in montem . . . Oliueti' Lk. 19. 29, 37;

'Iordanis fluuium' Jos. 15. 5, cf. Jud. 7. 25 (but 'in Iordane flumine' is the right reading in Mk. 1. 5; also 'ab urbe Roma' I Macc. 7. 1, 15. 15).

So, too, the Genitive is used after medius, extremus, etc., which in classical Latin are treated as simple adjectives: so 'de medio ignis' Ezek. 1. 4; 'in noctis medio' Ex. 12. 29, but 'media nocte' 11. 4, cf. Act. 16. 25, 20. 7; 'extrema Iordanis' Jos. 15. 5; 'in extremis maris' Ps. 139. 8 (138. 9) etc., but the classical use is also frequently found.

Genitive of Partition—an Adjectival Genitive—denoting the whole, of which a part is mentioned (the part being taken from, or out of, the whole). Its use in the Vulgate is mostly normal; after quis (interrog.), nemo, unus, and other numbers, cardinal or ordinal, after superlatives (esp. minus), after pars, particeps, expers (Hebr. 5. 13) etc.: so Mt. 19. 16, Mk. 11. 2, Lk. 10. 36, Act. 5. 14, I Cor. 15. 9, Eph. 3. 8, Apoc. 8. 7.

With neuter: 'nihil . . . oneris' Act. 15. 28; 'nihil . . . mali' Act. 16. 28; 'id . . . tribulationis nostrae' II Cor. 4. 17; 'quod impossibile erat legis' Rom. 8. 3 (τὸ ἀδύνατον τοῦ νόμου); 'in incerto diuitiarum' I Tim. 6. 17.

In a more general sense = belonging to, forming part of: 'oues quae perierunt domus Israhel' Mt. 15. 24; 'electis aduenis dispersionis' I Pet. 1. 1.

Genitive of Origin. The Adjectival Genitive also expresses origin (= arising, springing from), like the Greek.

Arising, springing from: 'iustitiam fidei' Rom. 4. 13; 'consolationem scripturarum' Rom. 15. 4; 'periculis fluminum . . . latronum' II Cor. 11. 26; 'maledicto legis' Gal. 3. 13; 'scandalum crucis' Gal. 5. 11; 'crucis Christi persecutionem' Gal. 6. 12; 'operis fidei' etc. I Thess. 1. 3.

Genitive expressing general relation or connexion, scarcely falling under any particular head (this is classical): 'transmigratione Babylonis' Mt. 1. 11; 'famam Iesu' (concerning Jesus) Mt. 14. 1; 'baptismum paenitentiae' Mk. 1. 4; 'resurrectionem uitae', etc. Joh. 5. 29; 'dispersionem gentium' (among the Gentiles) Joh. 7. 35; 'iustificationem uitae' Rom. 5. 18; 'a lege uiri' (relating to a husband) Rom. 7. 2, cf. Lev. 7. 1; 'iuncturam subministrationis' Eph. 4. 16; 'intentator malorum' Jac. 1. 13; 'secundi locus' (place for a second) Hebr. 8. 7; 'Spiritus . . . blasphemia' (against the Spirit) Mt. 12. 31; 'residuum locustae' (what the locust leaves) Joel 1. 4.

§ 116. The Genitive as Object with Verbs signifying to remember, to forget, to pity, and with Nouns and Adjectives akin to Verbs, the reference being often to God or Christ: thus 'memorari testamenti tui'¹ Lk. 1. 72 etc.; 'ut obliuiscatur operis uestri' Hebr. 6. 10 etc.; 'miserere mei' Ps. 51 (50). 1 and often; 'auxiliatus sum tui' Isa. 49. 8 (but often with dat.); 'fidem Dei' Mk. 11. 22; 'oratione Dei' Lk. 6. 12; 'aemulationem Dei' (zeal for God) Rom. 10. 2; 'obsequium Christi' (obedience to Christ) II Cor. 10. 5²; 'conscientiam Dei' I Pet. 2. 19; 'zelus domus tuae' Joh. 2. 17; 'in benefacto hominis infirmi' Act. 4. 9; 'religione angelorum' Col. 2. 18 (cf. 3. 5); 'in prouocationem caritatis et bonorum operum' (to provoke unto love, etc.) Hebr. 10. 24; 'memoriam uestri facio' Rom. 1. 9; 'mei memores estis' I Cor. 11. 2 and often; 'plenus dierum' Gen. 25. 8 and often. Sometimes we have a succession of Genitives: 'quomodo ecclesiae Dei diligentiam habebit' I Tim. 3. 5;

¹ Memini, recordor, reminiscor, obliuiscor, are occasionally followed by the Accus.; see Eccclus. 41. 5, Isa. 46. 8, Ps. 42. 4 (41. 5), II Cor. 7. 15, Job 28. 4 etc.

² Deissmann calls this the 'mystic genitive', where 'of Christ' almost = 'in Christ'; see Plummer in Int. Crit. Comm., II Thess., p. 277 and n.

'ad inlumptionem scientiae claritatis Dei' II Cor. 4. 6 ;
 'O altitudo diuitiarum sapientiae et scientiae Dei' Rom.
 11. 33.

Genitive Absolute: see above, § 44.

The Ablative.

§ 115. The Ablative expresses circumstances which modify Predication, such as cause, instrument, manner, quality, price, matter, respect, time, place, comparison ; it is also the case of separation. The different divisions often run into one another, varying according to the Noun and the word (verb, adjective, or adverb) with which it is used. Examples are :

Ablative of Cause: 'non haesitauit diffidentia sed confortatus est fide' Rom. 4. 20 (Gk. τῆ ἀπιστίᾳ . . . τῆ πίστει).

Instrument: 'comburet igni' Mt. 3. 12; 'interficere gladio, fame, et morte' Apoc. 6. 8.

Manner and Means: 'gratia estis saluati' Eph. 2. 8; 'uocauit nos propria gloria et uirtute' II Pet. 1. 3; 'proposito cordis permanere in Domino' Act. 11. 23; 'reuelata facie gloriam Domini speculantes' II Cor. 3. 18; 'natura filii irae' Eph. 2. 3; 'quis militat suis stipendiis?' I Cor. 9. 7 (= condition, 'at his own cost').

Quality, with epithet: 'beati mundo corde' Mt. 5. 8.

Respect (= place where; often figuratively): 'infirmus pedibus' Act. 14. 7; 'pauperes spiritu' Mt. 5. 3, cf. I Cor. 7. 34, 14. 20; 'duri ceruice et incircumcisi cordibus' Act. 7. 51; 'prurientes auribus' II Tim. 4. 3; 'duplex animo' Jac. 1. 8, cf. 4. 8; 'numero quasi quinque milia' Joh. 6. 10.

Price: 'plus quam trecentis denariis' Mk. 14. 5, cf. Ioh. 12. 5; 'uenundari multo' Mt. 26. 9; 'multa summa ciuitatem hanc consecutus sum' Act. 22. 28 (Gk. πολλοῦ κεφαλαίου).

Time (including not only when, but also how long): thus of point of time, 'nocte', 'quarta uigilia noctis', etc. Gen. 14. 15, Mt. 2. 14, Mt. 14. 25, Lk. 12. 38 etc.; of duration, 'seruieruntque ei octo annis' Jud. 3. 8, cf. Gen. 7. 4, 12, 17; 'cum ieiunasset quadraginta diebus', etc. Mt. 4. 2 etc.; 'multo tempore' Dt. 4. 40; 'multis temporibus' Lk. 20. 9; 'mysterii temporibus aeternis taciti' Rom. 16. 25; in is sometimes added to explain the case, 'in anno primo', 'in illis diebus', etc., 'in hac die et in hoc tempore' I Kgs. (III Reg.) 14. 14 (= even now).

Comparison (a) = than: 'multis passeribus meliores estis' Mt. 10. 31; 'prior me erat' Joh. 1. 15; 'plus Salomone' Lk. 11. 31, cf. 32. For the Hebraism with ab see above, § 22.

(b) = by (measure of comparison): 'multo', 'eo', 'quanto', etc., 'decem partibus maior ego sum' II Sam. (II Reg.) 19. 43; also without comparative, 'altam quattuor digitis' Ex. 25. 25; 'ciuitas magna itinere trium dierum' Jon. 3. 3.

§ 116. The Ablative as Object, with Verbs and Adjectives of plenty and want, and with Verbs expressing use (from), or enjoyment (of), as frui, fungi, potiri, uti, uesci. In these cases the Ablative expresses the matter or thing (with what?): so 'esurientes inpleuit bonis' Lk. 1. 53; 'repleti fructibus' Phil. 1. 11; 'sustentate eum pane tribulationis' I Kgs. (III Reg.) 22. 27; 'si . . . culpa uacasset' Hebr. 8. 7; 'egemus testibus' Mt. 26. 65; 'qui cura indigebant' Lk. 9. 11; 'Dominus his opus habet' Mt. 21. 3.¹

It also expresses the place (where and from which); this ¹ These last three are renderings of the Greek χρείαν ἔχειν; we also have the Greek Genitive, 'nullius ego', Apoc. 3. 17, cf. I Cor. 12. 24, Ps. 16 (15). 2, and other renderings, 'debere', Mt. 3. 14, 'desiderare', Mk. 14. 63 (cf. 'operam desiderare' Lk. 19. 31) 'necesse habere', Mt. 14. 16 ('necessarium habere', Lk. 19. 34), 'necessitatem pati', Eph. 4. 28, 'necesse est', I Thess. 1. 8, cf. 'Domino necessarius est' (ὁ Κ. χρείαν αὐτοῦ ἔχει), Mk. 11. 3; also 'quibus opus sit uobis' (ὧν χρείαν ἔχετε), Mt. 6. 8, 'non oportet nos (οὐ χρείαν ἔχομεν ἡμεῖς) . . . respondere tibi', Dan. 3. 16.

Ablative is frequently supplemented by prepositions, especially before indeclinable place-nouns, e. g. 'in Bethania'; 'in Bethlehem'; 'de Bethel'; 'ex Niniue'; 'Hierosolymis' is found with in and ab, and also without preposition.

The Ablative Absolute is loosely used; see Graecisms, § 52.

It sometimes follows the principal clause, in which case it is equivalent to 'and'; e. g. 'profectusque est populus de Haseroth, fixis tentoriis in deserto Pharan' (= 'journeyed . . . and pitched their tents') Num. 12. 16 (13. 1 in Vg.); 'quem persecuti comprehenderunt caesis summitatibus manuum eius et pedum' (= they pursued after him and caught him, and cut off his thumbs and his great toes') Jud. 1. 6, cf. Esth. 9. 16.

It is used elliptically: 'audito quod Romani essent' Act. 16. 38; 'comperto quod homines essent sine litteris' Act. 4. 13.

Also irregularly: 'et sedente Lot' Gen. 19. 1.

§ 117. THE ABLATIVE WITH PREPOSITIONS.

A. Prepositions taking Ablative only.

A, ab (= from, on the side of; with agents, by): 'proice abs te' Mt. 18. 8, 9; 'alienati a uita Dei' Eph. 4. 18; 'desolati a uobis' (ἀπορφανισθέντες = bereaved of you) I Thess. 2. 17; 'peregrinamur a Domino' (ἀπό) II Cor. 5. 6; 'decidant a cogitationibus suis' ('let them fall by their own counsels' A. and R.V., 'from their counsels' mg.) Ps. 5. 10 (11); 'uexabantur a spiritibus immundis' Lk. 6. 18; 'labia nostra a nobis sunt' ('our lips are our own' A. and R.V., 'are with us' mg., and 'nobiscum sunt' Psalt. iuxta Hebr.) Ps. 12. 4 (11. 5); 'a uoce exprobantis' ('for the voice of the slanderer', i. e. arising from, because of) Ps. 44. 16 (43. 17).

absque = (1) sine, 'without': 'absque liberis', etc., 'absque noxa' (guiltless), 'absque retractatione' (assuredly) I Sam. (I Reg.) 14. 39.

(2) 'besides', 'in addition to': 'duxit uxorem absque iis quas prius habebat' Gen. 28. 9; 'nullus sermonis nostri testis est absque Deo' ('but God' Douay) Gen. 31. 50, cf. Isa. 45. 14, Cant. 4. 1, 3, 6. 6.

(3) 'outside of': 'absque synagogis facient uos' (ἀποσυναγωγῶν ποιήσουσιν ὑμᾶς) Joh. 16. 2.

coram = 'in the presence of', 'before (the face of)': 'coram me' Ex. 20. 3 etc.; very frequent in Old Test.; 'before' (as opposed to 'behind') Joel 2. 3.

cum = 'with', (1) of accompaniment: 'configere . . . David cum pariete' I Sam. (I Reg.) 18. 11 (= to smite David even to the wall).

(2) but also of manner (how): 'cum festinatione, lacrimis, impositione',¹ etc. This Ablative is sometimes found in classical Latin, as 'cum cruciatu necare', where the simple Abl. would be an epithet, as 'omnibus cruciatibus aliquem adficere'.

de = 'from', 'concerning', 'of' (partitive):

(1) 'from': 'de facie templi (from the forefront of the temple) et de', etc. II Kgs. (IV Reg.) 16. 14; 'non de errore neque de inmunditia' I Thess. 2. 3; 'de carne metet cōruptionem' Gal. 6. 8; 'conualuerunt de infirmitate' Hebr. 11. 34, cf. 35; 'mensus est ciuitatem de harundine' (with the reed) Apoc. 21. 16; 'de uobis negotiabuntur' (make merchandise of you) II Pet. 2. 3.

(2) 'concerning': 'de bono opere . . . de blasphemia' Joh.

¹ Cf. E. W. Watson, The Language and Style of St. Cyprian, p. 245 n. (in Studia Bibl. et Eccles., iv, Oxford 1896).

10. 33, cf. Mt. 20. 24, Rom. 8. 3, I Cor. 6. 2, Apoc. 19. 2 ;
 'de cetero' (finally) II Cor. 13. 11.

- (3) partitive (leading up to Ital. 'di', Fr. 'de'): 'effundam de spiritu meo' Act. 2. 17 ; 'de uno pane participamur' I Cor. 10. 17 ; 'de Caesaris domo' Phil. 4. 22 ; 'de nocte surrexit' (rose early) I Sam. (I Reg.) 15. 12 ; 'onus duorum burdonum de terra' (of earth) II Kgs. (IV Reg.) 5. 17 ; 'dabo de synagoga Satanae' (men of the synagogue of Satan ; a Hebraism) Apoc. 3. 9.

desuper = 'from off': 'desuper tunica' Mic. 2. 8 ; 'desuper eis . . . d. ossibus' 3. 2 ; 'castra posuit desuper Bethbessen' (over above) I Macc. 9. 64, cf. Ezek. 10. 4 ; elsewhere in the Vulgate it is adverbial, see § 95.

e, ex = 'out of', 'from'. As with ἀπό and ἐκ, it is often hard to see any distinction between the use of de and of ex ; e.g. 'os ex ossibus meis et caro de carne mea' Gen. 2. 23. Usually it is employed of the origin (springing from, or out of), or of position (from, or on ; = ab).

- (1) 'arising from': 'ex lege, fide, consensu, aequalitate, tristitia, necessitate', etc. II Cor. 9. 7 ; 'e contrario' I Pet. 3. 9 ; 'ex abundantia' II Cor. 9. 1 ; 'Balaam ex Bosor' (τοῦ = son of) II Pet. 2. 15.

- (2) of position: 'ex aduerso' (in front) II Sam. (II Reg.) 10. 9, cf. I Sam. (I Reg.) 26. 1 ; 'ex latere altaris ad aquilonem' (on the N. side of the altar) II Kgs. (IV Reg.) 16. 14.

- (3) The unusual 'conuentione facta . . . ex (ἐκ) denario diurno' Mt. 20. 2 should be noticed.

prae = 'in comparison with' ; and, with negative, 'for', 'owing to' : so 'differentius prae illis nomen' Hebr. 1. 4, cf. 3. 3, Ps. 45 (44). 3, II Cor. 12. 13 ; 'prae (ἀπό) gaudio non aperuit ianuam' Act. 12. 14.

pro = (1) 'in front of': 'pro tribunali' (ἐπὶ τοῦ βήματος) Act. 25. 6, cf. Mt. 27. 19.

(2) 'as', 'for': 'pro uelamine' I Cor. 11. 15; 'pro inuicem' I Cor. 12. 25; 'pro bona uoluntate' Phil. 2. 13.

(3) 'instead of': 'pro te' Philem. 13 etc.

sine = 'without': 'sine offendiculo' Act. 24. 16; 'sine sumptu' I Cor. 9. 18 etc.

B. Prepositions taking Accusative and Ablative.

In with Abl. = 'rest in' or 'on': constantly with Deo, Domino, Christo, Iesu, etc.

(1) of condition: 'in stupore mentis' Act. 22. 17; 'in obsequio' II. Kgs. (IV Reg.) 5. 2, 'in me' (in my case) Gal. 1. 24; 'in praeuaricatione' I Tim. 2. 14; 'in sermone adulationis' (found in, using) I Thess. 2. 5; 'in hoc' (on this condition) I Sam. (I Reg.) 11. 2, cf. Act. 21. 24 'in illis' (for them R.V.), I Tim. 4. 15, 16.

(2) of time and place, see above, § 116: also 'in breui' Eph. 3. 3; 'in circuitu' Exod. 38. 31 etc.

(3) instrumental, see Hebraisms, § 22: so 'in pythone' I Sam. (I Reg.) 28. 8.

(4) = 'in addition to': 'in his omnibus' (ἐν πᾶσι τούτοις) Lk. 16. 26.

(5) of manner: 'in abscondito' (in secret; ἐν τῷ κρυπτῷ) Mt. 6. 18; 'in occulto' (secretly; ἐν κρυπτῷ) Joh. 7. 4, 18. 20.

(6) constructio praegnans = 'into', 'so as to be in': 'in parapside' Mt. 26. 23; 'in monumento' Lk. 23. 53; 'in die irac' Rom. 2. 5; several uses of 'in' occur in Act. 17. 31.

(7) wrongly for eis, especially in relation to baptism; so Mt. 28. 19, Act. 19. 3, 4 etc.; also 'in inferno' Act.

2. 27, 31 (εἰς ἄδου), quoting Ps. 16 (15). 10 (where the LXX is εἰς ἄδην); 'in domo' (ἐπὶ τὸν οἶκον) Lk. 1. 33; 'in manu factis sanctis' (manufactura Sancta SC) Hebr. 9. 24 (εἰς χειροποίητα ἅγια).

(8) constantly for ἐπί with Dat., not only with the idea of 'rest in' or 'on', but also as = 'in that' when implying cause; thus ἐφ' ᾧ = 'in quo' not only Mk. 2. 4, Lk. 5. 25 ('in quo iacebat'), Act. 7. 33 ('in quo stas'), but also Rom. 5. 12 ('in quo omnes peccauerunt' = ἐφ' ᾧ πάντες ἡμαρτον, for that, because, all men sinned);¹ in II Cor. 5. 4 ἐφ' ᾧ οὐ θέλομεν ἐκδύσασθαι (not for that, because, we would be unclothed), though = 'eo quod uolumus expoliari' in the Vulgate, is rendered 'in quo' etc. in H der Hil. Aug.

sub with Abl. = 'under', 'about', 'in the time of': 'sub obtentu' Mk. 12. 40; 'sub Stephano' (ἐπὶ Στεφάνῳ) Act. 11. 19; 'sub Abiathar principe' (ἐπί with gen.), Mk. 2. 26, cf. Lk. 3. 1.

after verbs of motion: 'dedit . . . sub manu' Bar. 2. 4; 'ego sub nullius redigar potestate' I Cor. 6. 12, cf. II Macc. 3. 6.

super with Abl. = 'about', 'concerning', 'because of': 'super misericordia tua et ueritate' Ps. 115. 1 (113. 2 sec.) Jer. 31. 12.

after verbs expressing emotion (anger, pity, etc.): 'irasceris super hac re' II Sam. (II Reg.) 19. 42; 'misertus est Dominus super afflictione' II Sam. (II Reg.) 24. 16, cf. Am. 7. 3, 6, Jon. 4. 2, 6, 9, Jer. 31. 15.

subter not found with Abl. in the Vulgate.

¹ The Western theologians took 'in quo' more literally, and the Vulgate form of Rom. 5. 12 was not without its influence on the doctrine of Original Sin.

VII

SYNTACTICAL PECULIARITIES

(continued)

SYNTAX OF THE VERB

Indicative Mood.

§ 118. Indefinite subject. The 3rd Person Singular is used indefinitely, in the sense of 'one', 'they'; see Hebraisms, § 30. So 'canet' (σαλπίζει) = he (the trumpeter) shall sound, I Cor. 15. 52; also 'ait', 'dicit', 'inquit' = he (or the Scripture) saith (frequent in the Epp.).

§ 119. Present tense. The Historic Present is constantly employed, either independently or, more frequently, in imitation of the graphic Greek; thus in Mk. 5. 14-16 the Vulgate faithfully follows the varying tenses of the original, 'pascabant, ueniunt . . . uident, uexabatur . . . timuerunt', cf. Act. 12. 9. The Present is sometimes graphically used for the Future, so 'credimus' Mt. 27. 42, 'moritur' Joh. 21. 23; also for the Past, with 'iam', see Jer. 20. 8, Mk. 8. 2, Joh. 5. 6 'multum iam tempus habet (haberet ἔτι)', cf. II Sam. (II Reg.) 4. 2.

§ 120. Past imperfect. The Vulgate is far stricter than our own Auth. Version in the use of the Past Imperfect to denote (1) continued, (2) repeated, (3) contemplated, (4) potential, action.

So (1) Distinguished from the Aorist, 'accesserunt et ministrabant' Mt. 4. 11 'exierunt et ueniebant' Joh. 4. 30 etc.

(2) Repeated or customary action: 'dimittere solebat' (ἀπέλευεν) Mk. 15. 6; 'quem portabant cotidie' Act. 3. 2.

(3) Conative Imperfect (= sought to, began to): 'Iohannes . . . prohibebat eum' Mt. 3. 14, 'uocabant eum Zachariam' Lk. 1. 59, 'rumpebatur rete' (διερρήγνυτο) 5. 6.

(4) With verbs of wishing: 'uolebam et ipse hominem audire' Act. 25. 22; 'optabam . . . ipse ego anathema esse' (ἠὺχόμην) Rom. 9. 3.

§ 121. Future. Here, too, the Vulgate closely follows the Greek.

(1) Command and prohibition: 'uocabis nomen eius Iesum' Mt. 1. 21, cf. Lk. 1. 13, 31; 'non eritis ut hypocritae' Mt. 6. 5.

(2) Strong negation: = the Greek οὐ μή with (a) Future Indic., (b) Subjunct. (the reading in the Greek is sometimes uncertain or ambiguous, as in πιστεύσω Joh. 20. 25).

(a) 'non erit tibi hoc' (οὐ μὴ ἔσται σοι τοῦτο) Mt. 16. 22, 'non te negabo' (οὐ μὴ σε ἀπαρνήσομαι) Mk. 14. 31; 'non sitiet' (οὐ μὴ διψήσει) Joh. 4. 13.

(b) 'non intrabitis' (οὐ μὴ εἰσέλθητε) Mt. 5. 20, 'iam non bibam' (οὐ μὴ πίω) Mk. 14. 25, 'nihil uobis nocebit' (οὐ μὴ ἀδικήσῃ) Lk. 10. 19.

The Latin, however, misses something of the strength of the Greek; the English A.V. has sought to reproduce it by 'in no case', 'in no wise'.

(3) Periphrastic Future. The Greek μέλλειν (to be about to), which occurs frequently in the New Test., is carefully rendered by the Future Participle with esse, or (twice) by futurum est ut, and (once) by the Gerund Adj., 'filius hominis tradendus est' Mt. 17. 22; once the strong future is used, 'moriemini' Rom. 8. 13; in Act. 27. 10 we have

'uideo quoniam . . . incipit esse nauigatio' = 'is beginning (is about) to be' (θεωρῶ . . . μέλλειν ἔσσεσθαι).¹ The Vulgate is free from the ambiguous 'will' by which the A.V. sometimes renders the Greek θέλειν. There is no ambiguity about 'uultis facere' Joh. 8. 44, cf. 7. 17, 'nubere uolunt' I Tim. 5. 11, 'uolunt discere' I Cor. 14. 35.

§ 122. Perfect. The Latin Perfect includes both completed and momentary action in the past, answering to both Perfect and Aorist in the Greek. The confusion between these two tenses in the A.V. may be partly due to reminiscence of the Vulgate amongst the translators. The R.V. may have gone to excess in its correction of this confusion, but the distinction itself is of the utmost importance.

§ 123. Past Perfect. This tense is not of very frequent occurrence: 'decreueram' Num. 24. 11, 'fundata erat' Mt. 7. 25, 'perierat', 18. 11; in Act. 14. 23 the Perfect 'crediderunt' stands for the Past Perfect in the Greek (πεπιστεύκεισαν). The Past Perfect is found, but only in the Old Test., in conjunction with iamque, e.g. 'iamque aduenerat uigilia matutina' Ex. 14. 24, cf. 19. 16, etc.

§ 124. Future Perfect. Most frequent in the dependent clause of a complex sentence, when the verb of the main clause is in the Future, or in the Imperative: 'hodie, si uocem eius audieritis, nolite' = if ye shall (not will) hear his voice, etc. Ps. 95 (94). 8 = Hebr. 3. 7.

¹ Compare v. 2 of the same chapter 'ascendentes autem nauem hadrumetinam incipientem nauigare' (ἐπιβάντες δὲ πλοῖον Ἀδραμυττηνῶ μέλλοντι πλεῖν); there can be no doubt that 'incipientem' (not '-tes') is the right reading = the ship was about to sail. Other instances are 'incipiebat enim mori', Joh. 4. 47, 'incipientes introire in templum', Act. 3. 3, cf. 19. 27, 28. 27, 27. 30, 33, Jac. 2. 12; notice especially 'incipiam te euomere ex ore meo' (μέλλω σε ἐμέσαι ἐκ τοῦ στόματός μου), Apoc. 3. 16 = I am going to spue thee out of my mouth.

The English idiom often requires the Future Perfect to be translated by the Present: 'quod fecero sectamini' (as I do so shall ye do) Jud. 7. 17; 'nihil me habere puto quamdiu uidero' (I think I have nothing so long as I see) Esth. 5. 13 etc.

The Future Perfect is sometimes used as an Imperative: 'uos ipsi uideritis' (see to it yourselves) Act. 18. 15.

Imperative Mood.

§ 125. A prohibition is usually expressed by noli with infin.: 'nolite iudicare' Mt. 7. 1, 'nolite timere' Joh. 6. 20. The distinction drawn in Greek between a continued and a momentary action—the Present Imperative or Aorist Subjunctive—cannot be maintained in Latin.

Subjunctive Mood.

§ 126. In simple sentences this expresses:

(1) In 1st or 3rd persons a Hortatory Imperative: 'non scindamus eam sed sortiamini de illa' Joh. 19. 24; 'pacem habeamus ad Deum' (ἔχωμεν) Rom. 5. 1, cf. I Cor. 15. 32 etc.

(2) Doubt or uncertainty: as in 'quare ieiunem' (why should I fast?) II Sam. (II Reg.) 12. 23; 'quis audeat mori' (one might possibly dare to die) Rom. 5. 7.

But in the Vulgate this idea seems usually to be expressed in other ways, generally by the Future Indicative, e. g. 'quid faciemus?' Act. 2. 37.¹

(3) A wish (= the Greek Optative): 'non illis reputetur' II Tim. 4. 16, cf. Act. 7. 60, 'ego te fruar in Domino' Philem. 20, cf. II Pet. 1. 2. The Greek Optative with ἄν is sometimes translated by the Indicative, 'et quomodo possum?' (= πῶς γὰρ ἂν δυναίμην) Act. 8. 31, 'opto apud Deum' (= εὐξάίμην ἂν τῷ Θεῷ) Act. 26. 29 'I could wish to God'.

¹ But here, as in Act. 4. 16, the Greek text varies between ποιήσωμεν NAB, etc., and ποιήσομεν D rell.

(4) A prohibition. Ne with the Perfect Subjunctive; 'ne credideris illis' (do not believe them) Act. 23. 21, cf. 16. 28.

(5) Elliptical: 'non quod exciderit uerbum Dei' Rom. 9. 6.

Infinitive Mood.

§ 127. The infinitive is a Verbal Noun, and stands as the Subject or Object (usually the latter) of the sentence. The other oblique Cases, which in Greek are expressed by a Preposition, plus the Article, plus the Infinitive,¹ are expressed in Latin by the Gerund or Gerund Adjective with a Preposition, or by ut with the Subjunctive. Still more frequently the Subject or Object is expressed by the ordinary construction of the Accusative with Infinitive, used with verbs which could not take an Infinitive alone.

(1) Infinitive as Subject: 'bonum tibi est . . . ingredi' Mt. 18. 8, 'uelle adiacet mihi' Rom. 7. 18, cf. II Cor. 1. 8, Gal. 6. 14, Phil. 1. 21, 24.

(2) Infinitive in Apposition to the Subject: 'hoc ipsum, secundum Deum contristari uos' II Cor. 7. 11, cf. Eph. 3. 8, Phil. 1. 22.

(3) Infinitive as Object: 'perficere . . . non inuenio' Rom. 7. 18.

(4) Infinitive with Double Object: 'fecerimus hunc ambulare' Act. 3. 12.

¹ See under 'Articular Infinitive' in any Grammar of New Testament Greek.

(5) Infinitive with Verbs of preventing (instead of ne with the Subjunctive): 'impediebar . . . uenire' Rom. 15. 22, 'prohiberentur permanere' Hebr. 7. 23, cf. I Tim. 4. 3.

(6) Infinitive with Verbs of hoping, fearing, promising, swearing (instead of Accusative and Infinitive, or ut or ne with the Subjunctive): 'speratis accipere' Lk. 6. 34, cf. 23. 8, Act. 26. 7, III Joh. 14 etc. (but such Verbs are also used with quod, quia, and the Subjunctive, Rom. 15. 24 etc.). For timeo with Infinitive, see Gen. 19. 30, Mt. 1. 20 etc.; but this is also classical. Polliceor is found with simple Infinitive in Mt. 14. 7 ('pollicitus est ei dare'), but also with ut and Subjunctive, 'pollicitus sum ut non facerem' Jud. 2. 1, cf. II Chron. 6. 1, 20, and more often absolutely or with Accusative of the Relative. Similar is the use of promitto, see Tob. 7. 10, Judith 9. 11, II Kgs. (IV Reg.) 8. 19, II Chron. 21. 7. Iuro is found with the Infinitive in Hebr. 3. 18 (iuravit non introire), but also with ut, ne, quod, and the Subjunctive, or absolutely or with Accusative of the Relative.

(7) The Infinitive of purpose, and the Infinitive after Adjectives, have been noted under GRAECISMS (see above § 50) since, though they occur in Latin poetry, they are replaced in classical prose by other constructions, and their use in the Vulgate is mainly due to the original Greek.

(8) So is the use of the Infinitive in an Imperative sense, e. g. 'gaudere cum gaudentibus, flere cum flentibus' Rom. 12. 15,¹ though in Phil. 3. 16, τῷ αὐτῷ στοιχεῖν is rendered 'in eadem permaneamus regula'.

The Participle.

§ 128. (1) The Participle is used, instead of the Infinitive, after Verbs denoting completion, and Verbs of sense.

¹ See Blass, 'Grammar of N.T. Greek' (Engl. Transl.), § 69. 1.

This is partly a Graecism (see above § 51); but it is also found in Latin poetry, as 'medios sensit delapsus in hostes' Aen. ii. 377. Thus we have 'ne uidearis hominibus ieiunans (νηστεύων) Mt. 6. 17, 'inuenta est . . . habens (ἔχουσα) Mt. 1. 18.

(2) The Participle as a Predicative Adjective occurs, especially after Verbs of perceiving: thus 'audiuimus eum dicentem', etc. frequently, 'uiderunt barbari pendentem bestiam' Act. 28. 4, 'uideritis adpropinquantem diem' Hebr. 10. 25.

(3) It is sometimes equal to an Adverb, or to a condensed adjectival or adverbial clause:

(a) used adverbially: 'uisus est eis quasi ludens loqui' (jestingly) Gen. 19. 14, 'seruiamus placentes Deo' (acceptably) Hebr. 12. 28, 'latet eos hoc uolentes' (θέλοντας = this they wilfully forget) II Pet. 3. 5, cf. I Tim. 1. 13.

(b) as a 'qui' clause: 'dormientibus' (those who sleep) I Thess. 4. 13, 'laborantem agricolam' (the husbandman that laboureth) II Tim. 2. 6. It is also incorrectly used to translate the Greek Article with Participle, as 'accipientes' (οἱ λαμβάνοντες, those who receive) Rom. 5. 17.

(c) as an adverbial clause, denoting time, cause, concession, etc.: 'orantes' (when ye pray) Mt. 6. 9, cf. 'manens' Act. 5. 4, 'moriens' Hebr. 11. 21, 'non inuenientes' (since they could not find) Act. 4. 21, 'legem consummans' (if it fulfil the law) Rom. 2. 27, 'et quidem scientes' (though ye know) II Pet. 1. 12; a succession of such Participles occurs in I Pet. 2. 18-3. 12.

(4) Periphrastic or Analytical use of the Present Participle. In classical Latin the Present Participle (in the Nominative) can be used with esse only when it has become an Adjective, as diligens, sapiens, etc.; in popular speech it came to be freely employed to form a finite Tense: thus 'stellae erunt decedentes' Mk. 13. 25, 'erat expectans' Mk. 15. 43, Lk. 1. 21, cf. 20, 22, 5. 10; 'quae sunt rationem . . . habentia' Col. 2. 23; 'est descendens' Jac. 3. 15. This analytical use, though it is universal in English, is impossible in French except where the Participle has become a simple Adjective.

(5) Adjectival use. The Participle is often simply an Adjective: thus 'morientes homines' (mortal men) Hebr. 7. 8, 'manentem substantiam' Hebr. 10. 34, cf. 13. 14, 'argumentum non parentum' (a proof of things invisible) Hebr. 11. 1.

So with the Perfect Participle Passive, 'remissas manus et soluta genua' Hebr. 12. 12, 'destinatam uoluntatem' II Cor. 8. 19, cf. 9. 5, Eph. 1. 19, Phil. 3. 8, and see above § 77.

When so used, the Participle admits of comparison: thus 'amantissimus Domini' Dt. 33. 12,¹ cf. Amos 5. 11, and in Neut. plur. Isa. 44. 9, Hos. 9. 16, 'fratres mei desideratissimi' (ἐπιπόθητοι) Phil. 4. 1; ἀγαπητός is rendered 'dilectissimus' Rom. 16. 8, Hebr. 6. 9, Jac. 1. 16, 2. 5 (but not 1. 19 in the Oxford edition), 'nominatissimus' I Chron. 11. 24, cf. pp. 67, 68; Comparatives are 'eminentior' Judith 13. 16, 'excellenter' I Cor. 12. 31, 'honoratior' Lk. 14. 8.

(6) By the omission of its Noun the Participle itself becomes a Noun: thus 'uinctus' = a prisoner Eph. 3. 1 (but not 4. 1) Hebr. 13. 3; 'credentes' = believers, Act. 4. 32 etc.; 'discentes' = disciples Lk. 19. 37 (but 'descendentium' codd. plur. §, 'discipulorum' V^C), Joh. 21. 12 (but 'discumbentium' codd. plur. §^C; this is also found in the Old Latin MSS., e. g. Joh. 6. 66, 21. 2 d, Lk. 6. 1 e, 12. 1 a. See above § 66.

¹ Compare 'seruantissimus aequi', Verg. Aen., ii. 427.

(7) The Participle retains the power of governing a case; thus 'scire . . . supereminentem scientiae caritatem Christi' Eph. 3. 19, 'desiderantium uos' II Cor. 9. 14, cf. I Tim. 5. 10.

(8) The Present Participle Active is sometimes incorrectly used to translate the Greek Aorist Participle, which has no equivalent in Latin: thus 'clamans . . . emisit spiritum' (κράξας . . . ἀφῆκε τὸ πνεῦμα) Mt. 27. 50, 'egredientes . . . uenerunt' (ἐξελλθόντες ἦλθον) Mk. 1. 29 etc. In Mt. 27. 49 'liberans' = the Greek future Participle (σώσων).¹ In Act. 20. 11 there is a mixture of Present and Past Participles, 'ascendens . . . frangens . . . allocutus' (the Greek has aorists throughout); English admits of this loose usage, but not French or Italian. In many cases the Greek aorist is rendered into Latin by cum with the Past Perfect Subjunctive (making the sentence complex) or, where possible, by the Ablative Absolute; in this case the inaccurate Present Participle is avoided.

The want of a Past Participle Active is often supplied, as in ordinary Latin, by the use of a Deponent Verb, where the Past Participle has an active meaning; some of the commonest instances are: 'adsecuto' Lk. 1. 3, 'complexus' (συμπεριλαβών) Act. 20. 10, 'uoce delapsa' (φωνῆς ἐνεχθείσης) II Pet. 1. 17, 'dominatus' (κατακυριεύσας) Act. 19. 16, 'exhortatus' (παρακαλέσας) Act. 20. 1 etc.; this use is very frequent, and in almost every case the Greek is an Aorist or Perfect Participle.

(9) The Participle as Verbal. The Perfect Participle Passive is sometimes used in the sense of the Greek Verbal in -τός; thus 'canticum pro dilecto' (ᾠδὴ . . . ὑπὲρ τοῦ ἀγαπητοῦ) Ps. 45 title (44. 1), 'inter natos' (ἐν γεννητοῖς)

¹ So 'liberans' *f*₁ *g*₁; but f has 'saluare', d 'et liuerat', l 'et liberet', and a b c q 'et liberauit (or -bit)', r 'et saluabit'.

Mt. 11. 11. 'incorruptam coronam' (ἀφθαρτὸν στέφανον) I Cor. 9. 25, cf. 15. 53, Wisd. (Sap.) 18. 4.

This Participle is also used analytically, especially with habere and facere: thus 'exosam habuerint disciplinam' Prov. 1. 29, cf. Hos. 9. 15, 'auditum habebant' (ἀκούοντες ἦσαν) Gal. 1. 23; 'auditum facere', 'notum facere' are frequent in the Old Test., see Num. 16. 5, Ecclus. 45. 11, 46. 20 etc., Ps. 39. 4 (38. 5) etc.

The Gerund.

§ 129. The Gerund is an Active Verb-noun, answering to the English Verb-noun in -ing; it is very common in the Vulgate, chiefly in Accusative, Genitive, and Ablative.

(1) The Greek Infinitive of purpose is usually rendered by the Accusative of the Gerund with ad: 'ad perdendum eum' (τοῦ ἀπολέσαι αὐτό) Mt. 2. 13, 'ad deludendum' (εἰς τὸ ἐμπαῖξαι) Mt. 20. 19; similarly εἰς with Noun, 'ad manducandum' (εἰς βρῶσιν) II Cor. 9. 10; also after utilis, e.g. 'utilis ad docendum' (ὠφέλιμος πρὸς διδασκαλίαν) II Tim. 3. 16, cf. I Tim. 6. 17.

(2) The dependent or qualifying Infinitive (with or without τοῦ) is expressed by the Genitive of the Gerund: e.g. 'aures audiendi' (ὅσα ἀκούειν) Mt. 13. 9, 'potestatem calcandi' (ἐξουσίαν τοῦ πατεῖν) Lk. 10. 19 etc.; 'cor . . . discedendi' Hebr. 3. 12 = καρδία . . . ἐν τῷ ἀποστῆναι.

(3) The Ablative of the Gerund is sometimes used in place of the Present Participle, as a rendering of the Present Participle in the Greek: thus 'bene faciendo et sanando' (εὐεργετῶν καὶ ἰώμενος) Act. 10. 38, cf. 33, 'laboret operando' (κοπιᾶτω ἐργαζόμενος) Eph. 4. 28, cf. Col. 1. 29, 'in David dicendo' (ἐν Δ. λέγων) Hebr. 4. 7, 'dando' (διδούς) Hebr. 8. 10, 10. 16; Aorist Participle 'in casulis habitando' (ἐν σκηναῖς κατοικήσας) Hebr. 11. 9, cf. Col. 1. 29, I Tim. 5. 21.

Conversely the Present Participle is used in place of the Gerund 'quis uestrum cogitans potest adicere' Mt. 6. 27, probably because the Greek has μεριμνῶν.

(4) The Gerund is sometimes found with an Object in the Accusative, a usage which is generally avoided in classical prose: 'tempus requirendi Dominum' Hos. 10. 12, 'ad sepeliendum me fecit' πρὸς τὸ ἐνταφιάσαι με ἐποίησεν) Mt. 26. 12, 'ad sanandum eos' (εἰς τὸ ἰᾶσθαι αὐτούς) Lk. 5. 17, cf. Mt. 2. 13 above (1).

§ 130. The Gerund Adjective (or Gerundive) is a Passive Verb-Adjective, denoting what will be done, or is to be done; it is used in two ways.

(1) With 'to be', either personally or impersonally, to express futurity, and obligation or necessity; hence it is sometimes equivalent to a Future Participle.

(a) Personally: 'cum . . . benedicendae sint in illo omnes nationes terrae' Gen. 18. 18, 'ipsum quod faciendum est' (the thing that will be) Eccl. 1. 9, 'existimabant eum in tumorem conuertendum et subito casurum' (= they were expecting that he would swell, προσεδόκων αὐτὸν μέλλειν πίμπρασθαι) Act. 28. 6, 'nihil reiendum' (οὐδὲν ἀπόβλητον) I Tim. 4. 4 = nothing is to be rejected.

(b) Impersonally: 'qui praedicas non furandum furaris' Rom. 2. 21, 'quia non dixerit, cauendum' Mt. 16. 12; 'uinum nouum in utres nouos mittendum est', Lk. 5. 38, should almost certainly be placed under this head ('there must be a putting of new wine into new wine-skins'), as from the analogy of the Greek *οἶνον νέον εἰς ἀσκοὺς καινοὺς βλητέον*¹ it is clear that uinum is Accusative, not Nominative.

¹ See Moulton, Introd. to the Study of N.T. Greek, p. 200 (4th ed., 1914); all the English versions from the Greek, however, translate 'new wine

(2) As Attribute to a Noun. Here it loses its sense of obligation, and becomes equivalent to a Present Participle Passive: 'ad manifestandam sollicitudinem nostram' (ἐνεκεν τοῦ φανερωθῆναι τὴν σπουδὴν ὑμῶν) II Cor. 7. 12, cf. I Thess. 3. 5, II Tim. 2. 25, 'sperandorum substantia' (ἐλπιζομένων ὑπόστασις) Hebr. 11. 1. In Mt. 17. 22 'filius hominis tradendus est' the Greek expresses simple futurity (μέλλει ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου παραδίδοσθαι), but doubtless the Christian translator had in mind the underlying necessity. In Prov. 22. 13 'dicit piger; leo est foris, in medio platearum occidendus sum' (I shall be slain in the streets), the Gerund Adjective is simply equivalent to a Future (futurum est ut occidar), but with the added idea that the future is inevitable (I am sure to be slain); 'uenies in locum ubi celandus es' = the place where you must (are to) hide, I Sam. (I Reg.) 20. 19, but the LXX and the A. and R.V. translate 'where thou didst hide thyself'.

The Supines.

§ 131. (1) The Supine in -um is the Accusative of a Verb-noun of the 4th Declension, used to express the object of motion towards, and hence the purpose or end in view. There are so many other ways in ordinary Latin of expressing this idea, besides the later extended use of the Infinitive and of Prepositions, that the Supine rarely occurs in the Vulgate.

We have, however, 'prius autem quam irent cubitum' (before they went to lie down) Gen. 19. 4,¹ though on the other hand 'dum autem irent emere' Mt. 25. 10, and 'properat tibi in occursum' (he is hastening to meet thee) Gen. 32. 6; must be put into fresh wineskins' (or equivalent); Luther was more exact: 'Sondern den Most soll man in neue Schläuche fassen'.

¹ This is found in Plautus, Cicero, Juvenal, etc.

this last construction is akin to the Hebraism of esse, fieri, habere, haberi, etc., followed by in with the Accus. (see above, § 22); 'esse . . . in derisum' is common in Jeremiah; and so with another Hebraism, the cognate Accus., as 'auditum audiui a Domino' Jer. 49. 14; thus we have the simple Verb-noun rather than the Supine. In the frequent phrase 'potum dare', potum is not a supine but a noun, as is shown by its being paralleled with cibum, escam, etc., and by its use with other Cases both Singular and Plural, and with other Verbs, as 'potum sitiēti auferat' Isa. 32. 6. The 'quicumque potum dederit uni ex minimis istis calicem aquae' of Mt. 10. 42 (cf. Mk. 9. 40), though it is translated 'whosoever shall give to drink' in both Authorized and Revised Versions,¹ can hardly be regarded as a real exception; in 'potum uenient . . . iuueni' (the steers will come to drink) of Vergil, Ecl. 7. 11, the supine follows a Verb of motion; and as a rule it only follows such verbs (motion expressed or implied).

(2) The Supine in -u is also of rare occurrence; indeed very few verbs possess it. The chief are verbs of perception (including saying and doing); thus 'non saturatur oculus uisu, nec auris auditu impletur' Eccl. 1. 8, cf. 'aspectu, uisu, pulcher', etc., I Sam. (I Reg.) 16. 12, 17. 42, Gen. 2. 9, Isa. 2. 16, 'accessu difficile' II Macc. 12. 21, 'difficiliora intellectu' II Pet. 3. 16. Here we are again on the borderland between the Supine and the simple Noun; if these words are Verbs they are truly called supine, i. e. lying on their back, out of action.² It is doubtful whether we should include the Hebraism 'auditū audietis' Mt. 13. 14 (see above, § 26. ii); we have auditus preceded by various prepositions, ex, in, pro, super; in Gal. 3. 2, 3, ('ex auditu fidei' = from the hearing of faith) it cannot possibly be a supine.

¹ Both Moffatt and the Twentieth Century N.T. omit to drink.

² Sonnenschein, New Latin Grammar, p. 234 n.

We have an exactly similar use of the Dative: 'nubentes et nuptui tradentes' (ἐκγαμίζοντες) Mt. 24. 38,¹ 'quis credit auditui nostro?' (who believed the report which we heard?) Isa. 53. 1, and such phrases as 'haberi contemptui, despectui', etc., Gen. 29. 33, 16. 5; so Livy has 'Macedonia diuisui facilis est' (is easy to partition) xlv. 30. 2.²

¹ So Σ and Ϟ; but the Oxford Ed. of the Vulgate reads nuptum with the majority of MS. authorities; cf. 'propinquas suas nuptum in alias ciuitates conlocasse', Caes. B. G. i. 18, where nuptum is a Supine.

² Sonnenschein, New Lat. Gram., p. 235.

VIII

DOUBLE AND COMPLEX SENTENCES

§ 132. The Double Sentence, connected by vav, and constantly found in the Hebrew of the Old Testament, is as a rule skilfully woven into a Complex Sentence of the well-known classical type. Sometimes, however, the Hebrew co-ordinate form is retained, while the meaning expresses subordination.

Thus 'sol egressus est super terram et Lot ingressus est Segor' (was risen upon the earth when Lot entered Zoar) Gen. 19. 23; 'gentes quas dimisit Iosue et mortuus est' (which J. left when he died) Jud. 2. 21; so constantly 'ecce dies uenient et', e. g. 'ecce dies uenient et auferentur omnia' (= the days will come when everything shall be carried away) II Kgs. (IV Reg.) 20. 17, Isa. 39. 6; cf. Jer. 7. 32, 31. 31, Amos 4. 2, Lk. 19. 43, Hebr. 8. 8;¹ other examples are 'incipiam et complebo' (when I begin I will also make an end A.V., from beginning to end R.V.) I Sam. (I Reg.) 3. 12, 'quid faciemus tibi, et cessabit mare a nobis? quia mare ibat et intumescibat' (what shall we do to thee in order that the sea may be calm unto us? for the sea grew more and more tempestuous) Jon. 1. 11, 'adferam pauxillum aquae et lauate pedes uestros' (a little water for you to wash) Gen. 18. 4; in proverbial sayings, 'homo nascitur ad laborem et ¹ But 'uenient autem dies cum auferetur', etc., Mt. 9. 15, Mk. 2. 20, cf. Lk. 5. 35, 17. 22 (from the Greek).

avis ad uolatum (as the bird for flight) Job 5. 7. Occasionally in the New Testament, as 'erat hora tertia, et crucifixerunt eum (when they crucified him) Mk. 15. 25 'quid uultis mihi dare, et ego eum uobis tradam' (if I betray him to you) Mt. 26. 15; see also Lk. 19. 43, Hebr. 8. 8 noted above. Et is sometimes redundant, especially after factum est (ἐγένετο); 'factum est . . . cum ambularet . . . et discipuli eius coeperunt' Mk. 2. 23, 'factum est cum esset . . . et ecce uir' Lk. 5. 12, recalling the Hebrew וַיְהִי . . . וַיֵּלֶךְ; factum est . . . et ipse stabat' Lk. 5. 1, cf. 8. 1, 22, 10. 38, 14. 1, Act. 5. 7.

§ 133. The Complex Sentence consists of a Main Clause preceded or followed by a Subordinate Clause containing a predication. The latter may be connected with the main clause in various ways; it may be

- (a) a Noun-Clause, serving as Subject or Object, or in apposition;
- (b) an Adjective- or Relative-Clause, qualifying a Noun;
- (c) an Adverb-Clause, introducing attendant circumstances.

§ 134. (a) The Noun-Clause: (i) as Subject, attached to the main sentence by ut or quod. In English the Subject is expressed provisionally by 'it', and the clause containing the logical Subject is introduced by 'that'. It follows Verbs used impersonally, as est, factum est, absit, accidit, paenitet, etc., and the Subordinate Verb is in the Subjunctive: thus 'mihi pro minimo est ut a uobis iudicer' I Cor. 4. 3, 'manifestum . . . quod ex Iuda ortus sit Dominus' Hebr. 7. 14, 'nuntiatum est quod' Jud. 4. 12, 'nuntiatum est Samueli eo quod' I Sam. (I Reg.) 15. 12, 'factum est . . . ut intraret' (ἐγένετο . . . εἰσελθεῖν αὐτόν) Lk. 6. 6, 'absit hoc scelus, hoc peccatum . . . ut' Jos. 22. 29, I Sam. (I Reg.) 12. 23; double construction (infin., and ut) 'absit istam rem facere ut fugiamus' I Macc. 9. 10; 'accidit ut' common in Old Test. (as in Gen. 37. 5), but in New Test. only Lk. 10. 31 ('contigit ut' does not occur); 'decet ut' only Hebr. 7. 26 ('talīs enim decebat ut nobis esset pontifex'); 'oportet' takes Accus. with Infin.; 'paenitet me quod constituerim' I Sam. (I Reg.) 15. 11, 35, cf. Gen. 6. 6, I Macc. 11. 10; 'nec latuit filios Benjamin quod ascendissent filii Israel' Jud. 20. 3, 'sorte exiit ut incensum poneret' Lk. 1. 9.

Frequently in the narrative portions of the New Test., especially when a cum clause intervenes, the connecting conjunction is omitted after factum est, and the Verb is in the Indicative; sometimes this arises from the Greek: thus 'factum est, cum consummasset Iesus parabolās istas, transiit inde' Mt. 13. 53, cf. Lk. 1. 8, 6. 1, 12, 7. 11, 8. 40 etc.; we also have et added; 'factum est iterum cum sabbatis ambularet per sata, et discipuli eius coeperunt praegredi' Mk. 2. 23; cf. § 132.

In the Old Test. 'factum est autem post haec, aegrotavit filius mulieris' I Kgs. (III Reg.) 17. 17, 'factum est autem, cum audisset Iezabel lapidatum Naboth et mortuum, locuta est ad Achab' ib. 21. 15.

(ii) as Object, in the Subordinate Clause of a Sentence expressing a Dependent Statement, Question, Exclamation, or Desire—this last class including a command, request, entreaty, or wish.

(a) Dependent Statement: either (1) reported speech, or (2) after verbs of seeing and knowing.

(1) Reported speech in the New Test. is, from the influence of the Greek, introduced by quod, quia, or quoniam (all = ὅτι that, not because); frequently such quotation is direct, the conjunction, like ὅτι recitantis, answering to our quotation marks (""): thus 'tunc confitebor illis quia numquam noui uos' Mt. 7. 23, cf. 26. 72, 74; 'dicens ei quia mortua est filia tua' Lk. 8. 49; 'si quis dixerit quoniam diligo Deum' I Joh. 4. 20. In the Old Testament the speech is usually direct, without a connecting conjunction.

So with verbs of promising, threatening, etc. we have, instead of the classical construction, 'pollicitus sum ut non facerem inritum pactum meum' Jud. 2. 1; 'promiserat ei ut daret' II Kgs. (IV Reg.) 8. 19, cf. II Chron. 6. 1; 'Esau frater tuus minatur' ut occidat te' Gen. 27. 42; 'iurauit ut non transirem Iordanem' Dt. 4. 21, cf. I Sam. (I Reg.) 3. 14.

(2) After Verbs denoting some activity of the senses or mind—seeing, hearing, knowing (Verba sentiendi): thus 'uidentes quod Naas . . . uenisset' I Sam. (I Reg.) 12. 12; 'audierat enim quod recessisset' II Kgs. (IV Reg.) 19. 8; 'intellexit ergo Heli quia Dominus uocaret puerum' I Sam. (I Reg.) 3. 9, cf. Ps. 73. (72). 16, Jud. 15. 2, I Sam. (I Reg.) 18. 11, II Kgs. (IV Reg.) 5. 11, Job 14. 14; 'scitote quod Dominus Deus uester non eas deleat' Jos. 23. 13, cf. II Kgs. (IV Reg.) 5. 15. Sometimes the Subject of the Subordinate Clause is expressed in the main sentence, which has thus a twofold Object: 'hoc praecauete, ut diligatis' Jos. 23. 11; 'uidit Deus lucem quod esset bona' Gen. 1. 4; 'praedicabat Iesum quoniam hic est filius Dei' Act. 9. 20, cf. 3. 10, 4. 13. In these sentences, so far as a distinction can be drawn, the Indicative Mood lays stress on the fact, the Subjunctive denotes a thought or mental concept. The Old Testament, as may be seen from the instances above, prefers the Subjunctive.

The Indicative is especially used with respect to God, whose existence is presupposed: 'ut sciat omnis terra quia est Deus in Israhel' I Sam. (I Reg.) 17. 46; contrast 'uere scio quod non sit alius Deus in uniuersa terra' II Kgs.

(IV Reg.) 5. 15. In the New Testament 'credere enim oportet accedentem ad Deum quia est, et inquirentibus se remunerator fit (sit § C)' Hebr. 11. 6 (cf. Act. 9. 20, 22, supra).

In other statements: 'memento quia uentus est uita mea' Job 7. 7; 'audio quod tradita est septem uiris' Tob. 6. 14; 'ut nuntietis ei quia amore languet' Cant. 5. 8; 'existimasti inique¹ quod ero tui similis' Ps. 50 (49). 21; 'nolite putare quoniam ueni' Mt. 5. 17; so with putasne? used parenthetically Gen. 17. 17, Job 17. 16, Ezek. 37. 3; notice its curious use in Dan. 6. 20; 'Daniel serue Dei uiuentis, Deus tuus cui tu seruis semper, putasne ualuit te liberare a leonibus?'

The Subjunctive. To the instances given above may be added: 'audierant quia comesturi essent panem' Gen. 43. 25; 'pollicitus est quod non occiderentur' Jos. 9. 15; 'nuntiare ei quod mortuus esset paruulus' II Sam. (II Reg.) 12. 18; 'concede mihi ut tollam' II Kgs. (IV Reg.) 5. 17; 'animaduerti quod hoc quoque esset uanitas' Eccl. 2. 15.

On the other hand the classical construction of Accusative with Infinitive is sometimes, though rarely, found; e.g. twice in II Kgs. (IV Reg.) 5. 8, after audisset and sciat, after audio Gen. 41. 15, uideo Gen. 44. 31, Ex. 2. 12, II Kgs. (IV Reg.) 6. 20, Lk. 21. 20, scio Lev. 13. 53, II Sam. (II Reg.) 11. 16, I Kgs. (III Reg.) 2. 42, Lk. 4. 41, I Joh. 5. 16, existimo I Mac. 5. 61, II Mac. 5. 21, 7. 19, and about 14 times in the New Test., puto Gen. 41. 1, 42. 30, Jos. 8. 6, 22. 19, Jud. 19. 28, 20. 32, Lk. 8. 18, Joh. 5. 39, Jac. 1. 26; but, as we have said, the almost universal use is with the simple Accusative, or with the Subordinate Clause, as above.

§ 135. (β) Dependent Question. The dependent question

¹ This word ('wickedly' in Pr. Bk. version) is not in the Hebrew.

is introduced by an Interrogative Pronoun, or Subordinating Conjunction.¹

Regular instances occur (though not frequently) in the Vulgate, and especially in the Old Testament; but the questions are usually direct: thus we have 'interrogavit quid quaereret' Gen. 37. 15; 'interroga tu cuius filius sit iste puer' I Sam. (I Reg.) 17. 56; 'uide quem respondeam ei, qui misit, sermonem' II Sam. (II Reg.) 24. 13; 'coeperunt quaerere inter se quis esset ex eis' Lk. 22. 23, cf. Act. 21. 33, 23. 34; 'quaesivitque Dauid quam recte ageret Ioab et populus, et quomodo administraretur bellum' II Sam. (II Reg.) 11. 7, cf. Jud. 17. 9, Mk. 13. 35.

Alternative Questions: 'uide utrum tunica filii tui sit, an non' Gen. 37. 32; 'donec probentur quae dixistis utrum uera an falsa sint' Gen. 42. 16; 'uidete an mentiar' Job 6. 28; 'uideamus an ueniat Helias' Mt. 27. 49. But in the New Testament, from the influence of the Greek, we often have si (εἰ)² instead of num or utrum, and from the same cause the Indicative is found instead of the Subjunctive.

Indicative: 'interroga et discite quis sum ego' I Mac. 10. 72; 'euntes discite quid est' Mt. 9. 13; 'quo ego uado scitis' Joh. 14. 4.

With si: 'interrogo uos si licet' Lk. 6. 9; 'si peccator est nescio' Joh. 9. 25; 'si iustum est . . . iudicate' Act. 4. 19.

Subjunctive: found sometimes even when the Greek is in the Indicative, e.g. 'mirabatur si iam obisset (τέθνηκε)'

¹ Such clauses must be distinguished from the Relative Clause (see below): 'tell me what (quid) you have found', 'give me what (id quod, or simply quod) you have found'. In the former case the verb in the principal clause must denote some activity of the mind; in the latter case any verb may be used.

² This si ('whether'), used as = 'if' in colloquial English, must not be confounded with the use of sive . . . sive (in an adverbial clause), where there is no alternative, and the consequence is the same in either case; this latter construction is very common in the Vulgate.

Mk. 15. 44; 'interrogabat si homo Galilaeus esset (ἔστι)' Lk. 23. 6; 'interrogabant si Simon . . . illic haberet hospitium (ξενίζεται) Act. 10. 18; cf. in the Old Test. I Sam. (I Reg.) 17. 22, II Sam. (II Reg.) 12. 22.

In the Tense the Vulgate sometimes adheres to the correct consecution, where the Greek after a Past Tense has the graphic Subjunctive instead of the Optative: 'non inueniebant quid facerent (ποιήσωσιν)' Lk. 19. 48; 'diuiserunt . . . quis quid tollerent (τίς τί ἄρη)' Mk. 15. 24; but in Act. 17. 27 'quaerere Deum si forte adtractent eum, aut inueniant' the Vulgate has the Present Subjunctive against the Greek Optative (ζητεῖν τὸν Θεόν, εἰ ἄρα γε ψηλαφήσειαν αὐτὸν καὶ εὔροιεν).

The Dependent Question is also introduced by the connecting Pronominal Adjectives, quantus, qualis, quot.

Quantus: 'tu nosti quanta fecerit Saul et quo modo eraserit magos' I Sam. (I Reg.) 28. 9; 'narrabo quanta fecit (Deus) animae meae' Ps. 66. 14 (65. 15); 'an non uides quanta comedat et bibat (Bel) cotidie?' Dan. 14. 5; 'non audis quanta aduersum te dicant testimonia?' Mt. 27. 13, cf. Mk. 15. 4 (Indic.); also Lk. 19. 15, Hebr. 7. 4 (Subj.), II Tim. 1. 18 (Indic.).

Qualis: 'dicite mihi . . . quae, et quales, et quantae sint ciuitates eorum' Judith 5. 3; 'hic . . . sciret quae et qualis mulier' Lk. 7. 39; 'quales . . . fuerint, nihil mea interest' Gal. 2. 6; 'scrutantes in quod uel quale tempus significaret in eis Spiritus Christi' I Pet. 1. 11.

Quot (subordinate) only Act. 21. 20 'uides . . . quot milia sunt' in the New Test.

§ 136. (γ) Dependent Exclamations. Closely allied to Dependent Questions on matters of fact are Dependent Exclamations, introduced in Latin by the same Adjectives as those just given, or by ut, and in English by what or how: thus 'aspice quales lapides et quales structurae!' ('behold, what manner of stones and what manner of buildings!') Mk. 13. 1; 'uidete qualibus litteris scripsi uobis' Gal. 6. 11, cf. I Joh. 3. 1. With ecce only: 'ecce quantus ignis quam magnam siluam incendit' Jac. 3. 5.

Thus, with some exceptions, the Vulgate, where it is free from the influence of colloquial Greek, presents the correct classical form.

§ 137. (δ) Dependent Desire (request, wish, command).

(1) The Subjunctive with ut or ne, after such verbs as peto, rogo, deprecor, hortor, obsecro; impero, praecipio. (2) The Subjunctive with ne, after caue, uide, attendite. The original construction was the simple Subjunctive without a Conjunction, as in our own 'take care you do not fall'; it is the Subjunctive which has brought in the ut, not ut which takes the Subjunctive.

(1) The regular construction is found in the Vulgate, but not with great frequency; some of the verbs given above are of rare occurrence, and others are used for the most part in other constructions.

Rogo with ut: 'rogauerunt autem eum ut consuleret Dominum, ut scire possent', etc. Jud. 18. 5, cf. I Sam. (I Reg.) 20. 6, Jer. 38. 4, Mt. 8. 34, 9. 38, Mk. 8. 22, Act. 16. 39: with ne: 'rogauit eunuchorum praepositum ne contaminaretur' Dan. 1. 8, cf. II Mac. 8. 16, Lk. 8. 31, Act. 19. 31, II Cor. 10. 2.

Peto: 'peto ut uenias' I Kgs. (III Reg.) 15. 19; 'petiuit animae suae ut moreretur' ib. 19. 4, cf. II Sam. (II Reg.) 12. 20, Tob. 3. 15, 4. 20, 9. 1, 12. 4, Judith 12. 5, Jon. 4. 8, Act. 7. 46, 13. 28; with ne: 'peto ne irascaris' Tob. 5. 19.

Obsecro: 'obsecro ut obliuiscaris sceleris fratrum tuorum' Gen. 50. 17; 'obsecro . . . ut exhibeatis' Rom. 12. 1, and frequently; with ne, 'obsecro, inquit, ne irascaris' Gen. 18. 32, cf. Num. 12. 11, and 'obsecro te ne me torqueas' Lk. 8. 28; simply, 'obsecro, patienter me audias' Act. 26. 3 and frequently.

Deprecor: 'deprecabantur eum ut uel fimbriam uestimenti eius tangerent' Mc. 6. 56, cf. 5. 18, and frequently in the Old Test.; with ne, 'deprecabar ne deleret uos' Dt. 9. 25, cf. Mk. 5. 10.

Precor: 'precorque ut impleat Dominus uerbum suum' I Sam. (I Reg.) 1. 23, cf. II Sam. (II Reg.) 24. 10, I Kgs. (III Reg.) 2. 17, II Kgs. (IV Reg.) 18. 26, Act. 8. 24; with ne, 'petitionem unam precor a te, ne confundas faciem meam' I Kgs. (III Reg.) 2. 16.

Persuadeo (rare): 'persuasitque illi ut ascenderet' II Chron. 18. 2; 'persuaserunt populis ut peterent Barabban' Mt. 27. 20.

Suadeo: 'suade ei ut indicet' Jud. 14. 15; 'suadebant eis ut permanerent' Act. 13. 43; Jos. 15. 18.

Hortor: 'hortatusque est eos ut ministrarent' II Chron. 35. 2, cf. II Mac. 13. 12; 'iuuenes similiter hortare ut sobrii sint' Tit. 2. 6; with ne: 'hortabatur ne legem amouerent a corde suo' II Mac. 2. 3, cf. 15. 8.

Exhortor: 'exhortatus suos ut fortiter dimicarent' II Mac. 13. 14; 'exhortantesque ut permanerent in fide' Act. 14. 22; with ne: 'exhortamur ne in uacuum gratiam Dei recipiatis' II Cor. 6. 1.

Impero (rare): 'imperauit eis ut dicerent' Jud. 11. 14, cf. Esth. 8. 11.

Postulo: 'postulas ut demus' Jud. 8. 6, cf. I Mac. 11. 28, II Mac. 11. 17, 12. 24; 'uocibus magnis postulantes ut crucifigeretur' Lk. 23. 23, cf. Col. 1. 9.

Praecipio: 'Cur praecepit vobis Deus ut non comederetis?'

Gen. 3. 1 and frequently, especially in the Hexateuch; with ne 'praecepit nobis Deus ne comederemus' Gen. 3. 3, occasionally in the Old Test., more frequently in the New; see Mt. 12. 16, Mk. 6. 8, Lk. 8. 56, Act. 1. 4 etc.

Mando: 'mandavit filiis Isr. ut offerrent' Lev. 7. 38, cf. Dt. 4. 14, 6. 1, 7. 11 etc.

Quaero: 'quaerite ut abundetis' I Cor. 14. 12.

Other constructions are: the direct Imperative, 'obsecro te, respice in filium meum' Lk. 9. 38; 'rogo te, permitte mihi loqui' Act. 21. 39 etc.; the Infinitive, 'rogavit eum a terra reducere' Lk. 5. 3; 'suadeo tibi emere a me' Apoc. 3. 18; in Passive, 'rogati sumus manere' Act. 28. 14.

(2) Subjunctive with ne. Cave ne is especially found in Deut.; vide ne is more usual in the New Testament; also attendite ne, Mt. 6. 1.

Verbs of hindering are occasionally found with ne: 'custodiui te ne peccares in me, et non dimisi ut tangeres eam' Gen. 20. 6; 'prohibuit te ne uenires' I Sam. (I Reg.) 25. 26, cf. 33, 34.

Verbs of fearing: timeo is usually constructed either absolutely ('noli timere', etc.), with Accusative ('timere Dominum', etc.), or with Infinitive; but we also have 'timui ne morerer' Gen. 26. 9 etc.; 'timebant enim populum ne lapidarentur' Act. 5. 26 etc.; 'uereor ut (ne)' does not occur in the Vulgate.

Dico in commands (to command that) is sometimes followed by ut, as 'dic ut panes isti lapides fiant' Mt. 4. 3, cf. Mk. 3. 9; 'uis dicimus ut ignis descendat' Lk. 9. 54 (Gr. θέλεις εἰπόμεν; note the Indicative after uis, even against the Greek); 'uis imus et colligimus ea' Mt. 13. 28 (Gr. θέλεις ἀπέλθοντες συλλέξωμεν); but the Infinitive also occurs, 'dico uobis non resistere malo' Mt. 5. 39; 'dixit dari illi manducare' Mk. 5. 43, cf. Rom. 12. 3.

§ 138. (b) The Adjective-Clause. These are chiefly Relative or 'qui' clauses. Qui, when used as a simple Relative, denoting one or more actual persons or things, takes the Indicative; when it expresses or implies purpose (= ut) or character (is . . . qui, sunt . . . qui; = so . . . as to) it takes the Subjunctive; e.g. 'hic est locus quem tenes' = 'this the place which you are occupying'; but 'hic est locus quem teneas' = 'this is the place which you are to occupy (for you to occupy).' In the Vulgate, and especially in the Old Test., qui is constantly used as a connecting link between two sentences (= and, but, he or they did this, etc.); so 'serpens erat callidior cunctis animalibus . . . qui dixit ad mulierem' Gen. 3. 1 etc.

(i) With the Indicative: this ordinary construction scarcely needs illustration; 'fuit homo . . . cui nomen erat Iohannes' Joh. 1. 6; 'illa hora erat in qua dixit ei Iesus' 4. 53; so preceded by idem: 'in hora eadem qua dixerat Eliseus' II Kgs. (IV Reg.) 4. 17, cf. II Mac. 4. 38; 'idem uero Deus qui operatur' I Cor. 12. 6. Sunt qui is found with the Indicative: 'sunt eunuchi, qui . . . nati sunt', etc. Mt. 19. 12 (Gr. οἷτινες with Indic.); 'est qui quaerit et iudicat'¹ Joh. 8. 50; but in 12. 48 we have the Subjunctive, 'qui spernit me . . . habet qui iudicet' (ἔχει τὸν κρίνοντα αὐτόν), for here the sense is indefinite and is only determined by what follows; similarly, to include other cases, 'sunt qui dicantur dii' I Cor. 8. 5 (εἰσὶ λεγόμενοι θεοί).

Quicumque occurs frequently: 'omnia quaecumque habet Pater, mea sunt' Joh. 16. 15 etc. Talis . . . qualis is also frequent: 'erunt enim dies illi tribulationes tales, quales non fuerunt' Mk. 13. 19 etc.; 'idem certamen habentes, quale et uidistis in me' Phil. 1. 30; 'terrae motus factus est magnus, qualis numquam fuit', etc. Apoc. 16. 18. Tantus . . . quantus: 'tantaeque fuit magnitudinis, quanta ante numquam apparuit' Ex. 9. 24, cf. Apoc. 21. 16; without antecedent expressed, 'adaugeat Dominus Deus tuus ad populum tuum, quantus nunc est' II Sam. (II Reg.) 24. 3, cf. 'quanto digna est' I Kgs. (III Reg.) 21. 2; 'quanta audiuius et cognouimus ea' Ps. 78 (77). 3, cf. 5; 'quanto tempore' (= as long as) Mk. 2. 19, Rom. 7. 1 etc. Quotquot = 'as many as' with Plural; the Verb usually precedes the main sentence: 'quotquot receperunt eum, dedit eis potestatem filios Dei fieri' Joh. 1. 12, cf. 10. 8, Mk. 6. 56, Act. 4. 34, 5. 37.

¹ So the Oxford edition; but SC 'quaerat et iudicet'; in the Greek it is ἔστιν ὁ ζητῶν καὶ κρίνων.

(ii) With the Subjunctive: 'neque in quo haurias habes' (nothing to draw with) Joh. 4. 11; 'summiserunt uiros qui dicerent' Act. 6. 11; 'de quo quid certum scribam domino non habeo' 25. 26 (but this may be a 'dependent question'); 'quis est qui condemnet?' (who is mighty enough to condemn?) Rom. 8. 34, cf. 9. 20, II Cor. 2. 2, Hebr. 4. 15, 5. 2, 7, 8. 4, 13, 21.

§ 139. (c) The Adverb-Clause. The simple adverb and the adverbial conjunction (like the Ablative Case) denote circumstances accompanying predication. Hence the Adverb-Clause is introduced by subordinating conjunctions expressing various ideas—time, place, cause, purpose, result, condition, concession, comparison. The same conjunction may express different ideas.

As a general rule the Indicative lays stress on the fact, the Subjunctive on the idea or thought; also (though with exceptions) the Indicative is used with the primary, the Subjunctive with the historic Tenses.

The Indicative is usually found with most conjunctions simply denoting time, as ubi, ut, donec, dum, quoad (while), antequam, priusquam, postquam, simul, quotiens; also with some causal conjunctions, such as quod, quia, quoniam; and with quamquam.

The Subjunctive usually follows conjunctions of the other classes, as cum (since, though); dum, dummodo; licet, quamvis; quasi, tamquam si; all these are found in the Vulgate.

To consider these conjunctions separately:

§ 140.

si: the conditional si takes the Indicative when the case is left open, the Subjunctive when it is regarded as a mere supposition; thus:

- (i) Indicative: 'si est corpus animale' I Cor. 15. 44, cf. 4. 7, 8. 13, 9. 12, 17 etc.; with Future perfect, 'si euangelizauero' I Cor. 9. 16, cf. 13. 2 etc.; with Perfect, 'si tamen audistis' Eph. 3. 2, 4. 21; in these cases the fact is assumed.
- (ii) Subjunctive: with Present, 'nam si orem lingua' I Cor. 14. 14, 23, 24, II Cor. 5. 1, 3, Jac. 2. 15, 17 etc.; as concessive (= though), 'si decem milia pedagogorum habeatis' I Cor. 4. 15, 13. 1; with Imperfect, 'si nosmetipsos diiudicemus' I Cor. 11. 31, cf. Gal. 1. 10.

§ 141.

cum: as temporal (= when, while) usually takes the Indicative in the Present and Future, the Subjunctive in Past time; as causal or concessive, it takes the Subjunctive in both Present and Past.

- (i) Indicative: Present, 'cum conuenitis' I Cor. 14. 26; Perfect, 'cum placuit ei' Gal. 1. 15; Future perfect, 'cum dixerint' I Thess. 5. 3; cum = while, 'cum quis dicit' (ὅταν . . . λέγη) I Cor. 3. 4.

- (ii) Subjunctive: Present, 'cum . . . sit . . . zelus' (Gr. ὅπου with Verb understood; R. V. 'whereas') I Cor. 3. 3; 'cum autem dicat' (ὅταν δὲ εἴπη; 'when', but causal rather than temporal) I Cor. 15. 27; Imperfect, 'cum iter faceret' ('as he journeyed') Act. 9. 3, cf. 23; = since, though, and often best translated by 'being', e. g. 'propheta cum esset et sciret' Act. 2. 30, cf. 7. 55; 'cum esset diues' II Cor. 8. 9, cf. Phil. 2. 6, Gal. 2. 3; Past Perfect, 'quam cum legissent, gauisi sunt' (i. e. the letter was the cause of their joy) Act. 15. 31.

§ 142.

dum = while, usque dum = until.

- (i) Indicative: Present, 'dum iudicamur' (= κρινόμενοι) I Cor. 11. 32; Future perfect, = cum, when, 'dum uicerit filios Israhel' Judith 6. 13, cf. 6.
- (ii) Subjunctive (irregularly), 'dum irent emere' Mt. 25. 10, cf. Lk. 24. 15, Act. 8. 36, 10. 17; = dummodo (πλὴν ὅτι, only that), 'dum . . . Christus adnuntiatur' Phil. 1. 18.

usque dum.

- (i) Indicative of past event: 'usque dum eiectionis sunt' Ecclus. 48. 16, cf. 50. 21.
- (ii) Subjunctive of result: 'usque dum ueniens staret' Mt. 2. 9; 'usque dum dicam tibi' ib. 13.

§ 143. Other Conjunctions.

donec = until.

- (i) Indicative of Past event: 'non cognouerunt, donec uenit diluuium et tulit omnes' Mt. 24. 39, cf. 1. 25, Joh. 9. 4, 18; very rare in the Old Testament, but 'donec putabam' (as long as I thought) Job 32. 12, cf. Ezek. 28. 15, Dan. 2. 34, 4. 5.

- (ii) Subjunctive of Future and Contingent event : so almost always, 'donec ueniat', 'donec ponat' I Cor. 11. 26, 15. 25 ; constantly in Old Testament.

et si = although, is used :

- (i) with Indicative : only once in the Old Test., 'et si ignorauit, mecum erit ignorantia' Job 19. 4 ; six times in the New, Lk. 18. 4, I Cor. 8. 5, II Cor. 7. 8, 12, 13. 4, Col. 2. 5.
- (ii) with Subjunctive : 'et si paeniteret' II Cor. 7. 8.
- (iii) without a Verb expressed : 'et si inperitus sermone' II Cor. 11. 6.

All three constructions are found in II Cor. 7. 8 'et si contristauit uos in epistula, non me paenitet ; et si paeniteret, uidens quod epistula illa, et si ad horam, uos contristauit' (the last 'et si' only modifies 'ad horam').¹

licet = although.

- (i) Indicative when expressing a fact : 'licet is qui foris est noster homo corrumpitur (corrumpatur § C)' II Cor. 4. 16 ; elsewhere
- (ii) Subjunctive, as 'licet haec feceritis' Jud. 15. 7 etc.

nisi = unless.

- (i) Indicative : most frequently Future perfect, with Future in apodosis, as 'nisi abundauerit iustitia uestra . . . non intrabitis' Mt. 5. 20.
- (ii) Subjunctive : 'nisi forte nos eamus et emamus' (= unless we were to go) Lk. 9. 13; in Past perfect, 'nisi asina declinasset de uia' Num. 22. 33, cf. Isa. 1. 9.

¹ The question of reading here is interesting ; the Vulgate MSS. are practically unanimous for 'non me paenitet ; et si paeniteret, uidens quod epistula illa et si ad horam uos contristauit nunc gaudeo' ; this must reproduce a Greek οὐ μεταμέλομαι· εἰ καὶ μετεμελόμην, βλέπων ὅτι ἡ ἐπιστολὴ ἐκείνη εἰ καὶ πρὸς ὥραν ἐλίπησεν ὑμᾶς τῶν χαίρων ; and Hort (Notes on Select Readings, p. 120) maintains that this is the true reading, the βλέπω γάρ of the current Greek text having been caused (a) by βλέπω being transcribed as βλέπω, and (b) by γάρ being then inserted to ease the construction.

nisi = only: I Cor. 7. 17 'nisi unicuique sicut diuisit Dominus'.

= surely: Hebr. 6. 14 'nisi benedicens benedicam te'; see above, § 31.

quamdiu = as long as.

Indicative: 'quamdiu in mundo sum' (ὅταν ἐν τῷ κόσμῳ ᾶ) Joh. 9. 5; 'quamdiu fecistis' (ἐφ' ὅσον ἐποιήσατε) Mt. 25. 40.

quamuis = although: with Subjunctive, 'quamuis non longe sit ab unoquoque nostrum' Act. 17. 27; 'quamuis esset ei suspectus' II Mac. 4. 34; not with Verb, 'dimittas populo tuo, quamuis peccatori' II Chron. 6. 39; these are the only places in which the word occurs in the Vulgate.

quasi = as if: especially in an accusation, and then with Subjunctive, 'non quasi non habuerimus potestatem' II Thess. 3. 9; 'non quasi nos dilexerimus Deum' I Joh. 4. 10, cf. Act. 3. 12; 'diffamatus est . . . quasi dissipasset bona ipsius' Lk. 16. 1; also (adverbially) without a Verb, as 'ecce Adam quasi unus ex nobis factus est' Gen. 3. 22, cf. Jer. 6. 9.

quin occurs only in the Old Testament, and there chiefly in the phrase 'quin potius' (so Lev. 7. 18 etc.), but also 'quin et', Ezek. 21. 17, and 'quin imo' I Sam. (I Reg.) 20. 3, Jer. 8. 12 (with negative); but note use with the Subjunctive, 'nullus te prohibere potuit quin . . . sepelias' Gen. 23. 6; 'nec distulit . . . quin . . . expleret' 34. 19 etc.

quoad usque = until.

(i) Indicative of past event: 'quoad usque surrexit alius rex' Act. 7. 18, cf. I Mac. 14. 10; otherwise quod: 'non quod' with Subjunctive, 'non quod exciderit uerbum Dei' Rom. 9. 6, cf. II Cor. 3. 5, Phil. 3. 12.

(ii) Subjunctive: as 'quoad usque redderet uniuersum debitum' Mt. 18. 34; 'quoad usque iustitia conuertatur in iudicium' Ps. 94 (93). 15 etc.

quominus: 'nihil subtraxerim utilium quominus adnuntia-rem' Act. 20. 20; 'si quominus' = if not, Joh. 14. 2, Apoc. 2. 16.

tamquam = as, as if: 'tamquam sit Deus' II Thess. 2. 4; 'tamquam si nutrix foueat filios suos' I Thess. 2. 7, cf. I Cor. 9. 21.

ut with negative: 'ut ne quis gloriatur' Eph. 2. 9; 'ut non dicam' (= to say nothing of) Philem. 19, cf. II Cor. 9. 4; 'tantum ut' = only that; 'tantum ut qui tenet nunc teneat' II Thess. 2. 7.

utinam always with Subjunctive.

utrumnam = whether: 'consuluerunt post haec Dominum utrumnam uenturus esset illuc' I Sam. (I Reg.) 10. 22.¹

ubi with Indicative = when: 'ubi uenit plenitudo temporis (ὄρε)' Gal. 4. 4.

§ 144. Instances of Subjunctive in place of the more usual Indicative.

antequam and priusquam: invariably constructed with Subjunctive in both Present and Past tenses; 'omne uirgultum agri antequam oriretur in terra, omnemque herbam regionis priusquam germinaret' Gen. 2. 5, cf. 13. 10, 36. 31; 'priusquam te Philippus uocaret' Joh. 1. 48, cf. 8. 58.

eo quod = because: 'eo quod nudus essem' Gen. 3. 10, cf. II Kgs. (IV Reg.) 17. 26; 'eo quod non cognoueris' Lk.

¹ At the end of the verse note the addition 'absconditus est domi' where the domi is without support from either Hebr. or LXX.

19. 44. So quod = that: 'scitis quod docuerim uos' Dt. 4. 5; but also with Indicative, 'scietis quod ego sum Dominus Deus uester' Ex. 6. 7, see above, § 134.

postquam = after: 'postquam autem mortuus esset iudex, reuertebantur (the death of the judge was the cause of their turning back)' Jud. 2. 19, cf. Apoc. 22. 8; 'signum autem dederant . . . ut postquam urbem cepissent ignem accenderent' (dependent on a Subj. clause) Jud. 20. 38; 'postquam omnia consummasset' Lk. 15. 14. But usually with the Indicative: 'postquam consummati sunt dies octo' Lk. 2. 21 f.; 'postquam genuit' Gen. 5. 4 etc.

quamquam = although: quamquam, like quamuis (see above, § 143), is very rare in the Vulgate, and occurs only four times, and always with the Subjunctive: 'quamquam Iesus non baptizaret' Joh. 4. 2; 'quamquam ego habeam confidentiam (καίπερ ἐγὼ ἔχων πεποιθήσω)' Phil. 3. 4; 'quamquam et ipsi exierint' (Gr. again participle) Hebr. 7. 5; 'quamquam cum lacrymis inquisisset eam' (Gr. participle) Hebr. 12. 17.

Succession of Subjunctives: we may have a succession of Subjunctives, as 'cumque uidisset Balaam quod placeret Domino ut benediceret Israhel' Num. 24. 1; here the two last are Noun-Clauses.

Thus the classical use of the Moods has largely broken down, and the main distinction is between fact and idea. In the general construction of the sentence, especially in the case of reported speech, we have an approximation to modern practice.

CONCLUSION

It is impossible to exaggerate the debt which the whole Western Church owes to the Vulgate, the version which 'lived and reigned a thousand years'; which, amid the common ignorance of Greek, and in the absence of the buried Greek original text, represented and preserved the sacred Scriptures.¹

To speak only of the debt which England owes; the earliest versions, such as those of Wyclif,² Hereford, and Purvey, were entirely dependent on the Vulgate; it is still the Bible of all English Roman Catholics.³ At one time pulpit quotations were exclusively drawn from it; and still from Sunday to Sunday, from tens of thousands of pulpits, the magnalia Dei, the wonderful works of God, are set forth in words derived directly or indirectly from its pages; its echoes reach us from the altar,¹ the font, the prayer-desk, the hymn-book, the pages of every theological treatise, and are heard less consciously in our secular literature and everyday speech. With the spread of the English-speaking race the words of the Psalmist are daily fulfilled, 'their sound is gone out into all lands, and their words into the ends of the world; there is neither speech nor language, but their voices are heard among them'.

¹ Curiously enough, it is exactly 1134 years from the traditional date of the foundation of Rome (753 B.C.) to the commencement of Jerome's New Testament in A. D. 382 (from 1 B. C. to A. D. 1 is one year, not two), and again 1134 years from 382 to 1516 A. D., the year in which Erasmus published his Greek Testament. The completion of Jerome's Old Testament in 410 coincides with the fall of the Roman Empire, which is the point of transition between ancient and medieval history. Hence the reign of the Vulgate equals in duration that of the Roman Republic and Empire; and the Vulgate is the great legacy of the old world to the middle ages, of the dying Empire of Rome to the ever-living Kingdom of Christ.

² Wyclif gives Jerome's Prefaces.

³ The Rhemish New Testament retains its very words: azymes, evangelise, parasceue, pascha, prevarication (= transgression), refectory (Mk. 14. 14), bread of proposition (= shewbread), society of his passions (Phil. 3. 10), to exhaust the sins of many (Hebr. 9. 28), etc. It is closer to the Vulgate than any other version.

But while England owes much to the Vulgate, the Vulgate owes much to England and Ireland. Alike in purity of text and beauty of handwriting the English and Irish MSS. stand supreme; and it is a noticeable fact that these two features nearly always go together—the best types of text are preserved in the finest MSS. The Codex Amiatinus,² that monarch amongst Latin MSS., whose history reads like a romance, was written in Northumbria; so were the wonderful Lindisfarne Gospels,³ and the exquisite Stonyhurst St. John⁴; the Cathedral Libraries at Durham and ¹ The 'Comfortable words' in our Prayer Book are not according to the Authorized Version, but are in all probability a translation by Cranmer from the Latin (see Westcott, The English Bible, 3rd ed., p. 279); this fact may account for 'I will refresh you' (= ego reficiam uos) against 'I will give you rest' of the A.V.; but on the other hand 'This is a true saying and worthy of all men to be received' is not so near the Vulgate as is the A.V. 'This is a faithful saying and worthy of all acceptance' = fidelis sermo et omni acceptione dignus.

² See 'the Codex Amiatinus and its birthplace' in Studia Biblica et Ecclesiastica, ii, p. 273 (Oxford, 1890).

³ Now in the British Museum (MS. Cotton Nero D. 1v); the handwriting is beautiful, and the illuminated pages, with their delicate and intricate interlaced patterns, unsurpassed. Some of the pages show water stains, and there is a legend that the monks who guarded both St. Cuthbert's body and the MS. tried at one time to sail to Ireland in order to escape the Danish invaders; a storm arose in which the precious volume was lost overboard; the monks put back, and the book was found on the shore.

⁴ A minute but exquisitely written copy of the Gospel, found in the coffin of St. Cuthbert; now in the Jesuit College at Stonyhurst.

Lichfield preserve Gospels attributed respectively to Bede and St. Chad. Of Irish MSS. we have only to mention the Book of Kells, perhaps the most perfect specimen of Irish writing and illumination in existence; the Book of Armagh, with its extraordinarily interesting text; the Book of Durrow and the Book of Moling; all these are inmates of the Library of Trinity College, Dublin.

Then not only in the copying of MSS. but in the scientific study of the text, Britain has been in the foremost rank. Alcuin of York,¹ 'Minister of Education' to Charles the Great, Lanfranc, and Stephen Langton, Archbishops of Canterbury, Stephen Harding² of Sherborne, second Abbot of Cîteaux, all laboured at this work; Roger Bacon³ wrote to Pope Clement IV, urging on him the duty of revising the corrupt text. Brian Walton's famous London Polyglot enshrines valuable lists of MS. variations given by the Louvain divines in their edition of the Vulgate: John Mill, Fellow of Queen's College, perceived before other students the importance of the Old Latin and the Vulgate in settling the Greek text; and the great Bentley, with his assistant, John Walker, laboured at the task of combining the oldest Greek and Vulgate MSS. and thus producing the text of the fourth century 'so that there shall not be twenty words, or even particles, difference.' The dream was grand, but, as succeeding scholars have learnt, the problem harder and more complicated than they dreamed.

To come to our own times, it is to the labours of English

¹ A good specimen of the Alcuinian revision of the Vulgate text is found in the MS. Addit. 10546 in the British Museum (quoted as K in the Oxford edition of the Vulgate N.T.).

² His corrected Bible in four volumes is preserved in the Public Library at Dijon (9 bis).

³ His trenchant criticisms of the current Vulgate text are given in Hody, De Bibliorum textibus, p. 419 ff. (Oxon. 1705).

scholars, headed by the learned Bishop John Wordsworth¹ of Salisbury, that the Oxford critical edition of the Vulgate New Testament is due, though they would be the first to acknowledge their great debt to the brilliant work of Samuel Berger.²

These later workers have all lived and died outside the communion of that Church which claims the Vulgate as its Authorized Version; but the Church of Rome itself has now definitely launched the scheme of a scientific revision of the whole Biblical text, and in 1907 the mighty task was by the desire of Pope Pius X committed to the Benedictine Order. Here again we may feel pardonable pride in noting that the President of the Commission is Cardinal Gasquet, an Englishman; whilst another Englishman, Dom John Chapman, is amongst the most learned Vulgate scholars and critics belonging to the Order.

Pius labor, sed periculosa praesumptio, wrote Jerome to Pope Damasus; the work of emendation and reconstruction has always had its dangers, but it also has its rewards. The workers have handed on the torch of truth and learning from one to the other, and though many of them have rested from their labours their works do follow them.

¹ Bishop John Wordsworth died in 1911, just eight days before the appearance of the editio minor of the Vulgate New Testament, to the preparation of which he had devoted much loving care.

² The author of many treatises—all of them valuable—on the MSS. of the Vulgate, the editor of some important Old-Latin Biblical texts; and also the author of the famous 'Histoire de la Vulgate pendant les premiers siècles du moyen âge' (Paris, 1893), a work indispensable to all serious students of the subject.

I. INDEX OF SUBJECTS

- ablative 96-102, 112
absolute 39, 98
in comparison 21, 97
as object 97
with prepositions 98 ff.
abstracts as concrete 18 accusative 81-90
with verbs usually intrans. 81 cognate 82 Greek 33-4, 82
of respect 35 with infinitive 82
with prepositions 83 ff.
adjective 48, 49, 57, 67.
as noun 47
comparison (irregular) 35, 67 adjective clause 127-8 adverb 60-2
use of 68
adverb clause 128-34 Africanisms 3 agreement ad sensum 75 Amiatinus, Codex 33, 43, 136
apposition 93 article, want of 76
substitutes for 78 f. indefinite 79 Asiatic style 3 assimilation 44 attraction 76
Augustine 10 n, 54 n, 65
- Bentley, R., 137
Berger, S., 138
betacism 43 n.
Beza, Th., 71 n.
Blass 108 n.
Boernerianus, Codex 33 n.
Burkitt, F. C., 3, 69 n.
- Charles, R. H., 22 n.
Cicero 9 n, 32
- collective nouns 75 complex sentence 118-34 compound verbs 50
conditional clause 129
conjugation, irregular 66
conjunction 62-4
subordinating 129 ff.
copula omitted 30
- dative 90-2
after adjectives 91
of interest 91 irregular 92
declension, irregular 65
Deissmann 95 n. demonstrative 72
redundant 21, 40 dependent clause 119-26
statement 119 question 122 exclamation 123 command 124-6
deponents 59 f., 111
diminutives 46
Douay Version 77 f., 87 n.
- ellipse 30
emphasis 26
English Version 4 n, 103, 104-5
Eusebius 2 n.
- feminine for neuter 18
-ficare, verbs in 52
Fuldensis, Codex 43
- Gasquet, Cardinal 138 genitive 93-6
absolute 35
with comparative 35
as object 95
partitive 94
qualitative 19, 93

- gerund noun 112
 „ adjective 113
- Graecisms 28-40
 inflexional 33
 lexical 31 f.
 syntactical 34-40
 (verbal constructions 36; infinitive 38; participle 39)
- Greek, spread of 1 f., 28
- habere with infin. as future 38
- Harnack, A., 78 n.
- Hebraisms 11-27
 alphabet 11-14; proper names 14;
 common nouns 15-18; time 17; number 18; case 19-21;
 adjective 21; pronoun 21; verb 22-6; repetition 27
- Hort 131 n.
- imperative 106
- impersonal verbs 80 f.
- indefinite subject 26, 103
- indicative 103-6
- infinitive 107 f.
 absolute 23; Greek influence 38
- inflexion 65-7
- Irish MSS. 137
- Itala 3
- Jerome
 Epistles quoted 1 n, 11 n.
 Other quotations 2 n, 6, 7 n, 13 n.
 O.T. 19, 73 n, 85 n, 91 n.
- Lindisfarne Gospels 136 n.
- Massoretic text 12
 meanings, new 64
 nouns 54-7; adjectives 57; verbs 57-60 modified 58-60
- Moulton, J. H., 113 n.
- nominative 80
 loose 19; suspended 80
- noun-clause 118-26 (see dependent)
- numeral 21
- Old Latin 3, 5, 65, 67
- order of words 29
- orthography 43
- participle 108-12
 Graecism 39; as adjective 50 and n, 108 f.; periphrastic use 109; as noun 110; incorrect use 111
- particles 62
- passive, freer use 37
- periphrastic conjugation 104 f., 109
- Plautine words 47
- plurals
 of abstract nouns 18; verb with collective noun 75
- prepositions
 taking accus. only 83-8 „ ablat. „ 98-101
 „ accus. and ablat. 89, 101 f.
- prohibition 106, 107
- pronouns 69-74
 personal 69; possessive 71; demonstrative 72; interrogative and indefinite 73; relative (syntax) 127 f.
- Psalterium iuxta Hebr.* 15 n, 16 n,
 26, 86 n, 98
- relative clause 127-8
- reflexives pronoun 69; verbs 60
- repeated action 17, 23 imperfect expressing 104
- repetition (Hebr.) 27
- Rhemish New Testament 77 n,
 135 n.
- Roensch, H., 42 n.
- Romance languages 5
- Scriptures, spread of 1-4
- sentence, syntax of simple 75-116; double 117; complex 118-34
- Septuagint 1, 6, 12 f.
- sequence of tenses 123
- subjunctive
 in simple sentences 106
 in dependent clauses 119, 121 ff.
 replaces accus. with infin. ib.
- superlative 67
 of participles 110
- supines 114-16

- tenses (indicative) present, historic 103; past imperfect (meanings) 103-4; future 104; perfect 105; past and future perfect ib.
- terminations masculine 44; feminine 45; neuter 46
- Tertullian 32 n.
- Tischendorf 43
- Trench, Archbp. 9 n.
- verbals 111
- verb
 Hebraisms in meaning 22, 24;
 infinitive absolute 23; causative 23; construction 25; Greek 33; constructions 36; infinitive 38f.; compound 50-2; meaning 57-60; irregular conjugation 66f.; impersonal 80f.; of knowing 120
- Vulgate
 Jerome's share in 5, 6, 41; Old Test. 7, 92 n; influence of 135; Oxford Edition 43, 52 n, 63, 116 n.
- Watson, E. W., 99 n.
- Westcott, Bp., 136 n.
- Wordsworth, Bp. J., 138

II. INDEX OF GREEK WORDS

- ἀγάπη 4 n.
 ἀγάπητος 26, 68, 110, 111 ἀγωνίζεσθαι 33
 ἀδύνατος 94
 ἀκατάπαντος 48
 ἀκοή 55
 ἀκρινώητος 48
 ἀλλὰ μενούγγε 64
 ἀμύρατος 48
 ἄν 61, 106, 107
 ἀνά 86, 88 ἀνεξιχνίαστος 48
 ἀντιλέγειν 37
 ἀπαράβατος 78
 ἀπὸ τοῦ νῦν (= ex hoc nunc) 79
 ἀπύβλητος 113
 ἀπορφανίζεσθαι 98
 ἀποσυνάγωγος 99
 ἄρα 63
 ἀστυεύς 21
 ἀτιμία 93
 αὐτός 71 and n. ἀφθαρτος 48, 112
 ἄχαρις 32

 βέβηλος 32
 βλητέον 113
 γεννητός 111
 γυρωτός 33

 δὲ . . . δέ 64
 διά, with Acc. 86, 87;
 with Gen. 86, 87
 διαλογισμός 93
 διέρχεσθαι 17
 διό 87
 διότι 63

 εἰ καὶ . . . ἀλλά 63
 εἰ μὴ 87
 εἰρημικός 68
 εἰς 89, 102
 εἰς = propter 87
 ἐκγαμίζειν 116
 ἐκδίκησις 92
 ἐν 20, 85, 101
 ἐναντίον 84
 ἐνδέχεται 39
 ἔνεκα 87
- ἔνεκεν (οὖ) 63
 ἐνταφιάζειν 113
 ἐνώπιον 85
 ἐξέδρα 32 ἔπειτα 61
 ἐπί, with Acc. 90; with
 Gen. 86, 102; with Dat. 88, 102
 ἐπιμένειν 39
 ἐπιπόθητος 110
 εὐαγγελίζειν 37
 εὐγνωστος 48
 εὐλαβής 48

 ἱλεώς σοι 4 n. ἵνατί 73

 καθότι 63
 κατά 84, 85 n, 86, 87, 88
 κατακυριεύειν 36, 111
 καταρτίζειν 15 n.
 κατεγνωσμένος 48
 κενός 57
 κίδαρις 32
 κομψότερον ἔσχε 68
 κόσμος (ὁ) 79
 κράβαττον 32
 κράτιστος 68
 κρίνειν 25, 38, 85, 127, 130
 κτίσις 54 n.
 κτίσμα 54 n.
 κύκλος 86

 λυτρωτής 10 n.

 μαρτυρεῖν 60
 μέλλειν 38, 104, 105 n, 113, 114
 μέν . . . δέ 63
 μενούγγε (ἀλλὰ μεν.) 64
 μεταξύ 85
 μομφή 55 n.

 ὀπίσω 87
 ὅτι 63, 119
 οὐ μὴ 104

 παιδεύειν 50 n, 58
 παρά, with acc. 85, 87;
 with dat. 84, 86
- παρακαλεῖν 111
 παραπικρασμός, 79
 πηραφρονῶν 67
 πᾶς with and without
 art. 77
 περί 85
 πιστεύειν 37
 πλείων = superlative 68
 πλὴν 87
 πλὴν ὅτι 130
 ποίμνη 4 n.
 πολὺς 78
 πονηρός 68, 93
 ποτέ 61
 πρό 72, 84
 προέχειν 38
 πρὸς 85, 87
 προσκυνεῖν 37, 71

 σαλπίζειν 103
 σιμικίνθιον 47
 σκανδαλίζειν 38
 σκευὸς ἐκλογῆς 20
 σπιρίς 32
 στοιχεῖν 108
 στάχυς 13 n. συμπεριλαμβάνειν 111
 σύνθημα 13 n.
 σωτήρ 9

 τάχιστα (ὡς ταχ.) 67 τελειοῦν 62
 τελώνης 4 n.
 τότε 62
 τρίστεγα 32
 τυχεῖν, εἰ τύχοι 63

 ὑπόστασις 114
 φθαρτός 48

 χαραδρύς 34
 χάρις 32 n.
 χάρισμα 32 n.
 χρεῖαν ἔχειν 97 n.
 χρηματίζειν 37
 Χριστός 10 n. χωρίς 85, 87

 ὡς 62
 ὥσπερ 63

III. INDEX OF LATIN WORDS

- ab 27, 98
 abhorrescere 51
 abicere 43
 abire 57
 ablactare 51
 abnegare 57
 absconsio 45
 absconsus 66, 67
 absit a te 4 n.
 absque 99
 abyssus 31
 accensibilis 48
 acceptor 45
 accersire 66
 accipere 57
 accubitus 45, 56
 acharis 32
 ad 83
 adaquare 51
 adbreuiatio 45 addecimare 51
 addere 23, 24
 adeps 17
 adeptus 47
 adhaerere 25, 57
 adhuc 60
 adicere 23
 adimplere 51
 adiuramentum 46 adiutorium 46
 adleuiare 51
 administratorius 49
 admirari 25, 59
 adnuntiator 45 adorare 37
 adpetitor 45
 adponere 23
 adpreiare 51
 adpropriare 51
 adproximare 51
 aduersum 84
 adulescens 43
 adunare 51
 aedificare 53, 57
 aemulari 25 57
 aera 34
 aerius 57
 aeruginare 50
 aestimare 25
 aethera 34
 afflictio 44
 agon 31, 33 n. agonizari 33
 alba 47 albor 45
 alioquin 61
 aliquando 61
 aliquis (for quis) 73
 alius 68, 71, 73
 alligatura 46
 allocutio 54
 alloqui 44
 altare 66
 alter 66, 68, 71, 73
 alterutrum 70
 altitia 47
 altitudines (= peaks) 18
 amantissimus 110
 amaricare 50
 ambitio 54
 amplius 61
 anathema 32
 anathematizare 33 ancora 28
 angulus 17 angustiare 50 anima 16
 animaequus 49
 animositas 54
 anni (= long period of time) 17
 annus 20
 ante 61, 84
 antequam 129, 133
 anxari 50 apostata 32
 apostatare 33
 apostolatus 45
 apparere 44, 90
 apud 84
 aratiuncula 46
 arcarius 49
 argumentum 54
 ariopagus 43
 arrhabo 31 articulus 54
 ascella 47
 ascensor 44
 aspicere 44
 aspicere (in) 25
 assatura 46
 assiduus 44 assistrix 45 atramentarium 46
 attendere 25, 44, 126
 attondere 66
 auertere 16, 58
 auricula 46
 auricularius 49
 auris 15
 azyma 32
 baiulare 50 baptisma 32
 baptizare 33
 beatificare 53
 belligerator 44
 benedicere 36
 benedicere (= to curse) 22
 benedictiones 18
 benedictus 50 beneplacitus 50 bimatus 45
 blasphemare (in) 25
 botrus 32
 brabium 43
 brachium 15, 19
 breuiare 50
 buccella 47
 buccinare 50

- bullire 50
 burdo 47
 byssinum 47

 cadere 22
 caelum 43
 caelum caeli 20
 caementarius 49
 caena 43
 calciamentum 43
 caluaria 4 n.
 camus 47
 capere 39, 59
 capillatura 46
 capsella 47
 captiuare 50
 captiuitas 56 character 29, 44
 carissimus (= ἀγαπητός) 67, 68
 caritas 4 n.
 castificare 53
 casula 46
 cata 84
 cataclysmus 32 cataplasmare 33
 cataractae 32
 catechizare 33 cathedra 32
 catta 47
 cauere 126
 cauma 32 causa 54
 celare 82
 cellarium 46
 cenaculum 43
 certari 59
 ceruicatus 48 ceruix 15
 cete 34
 chaos 44
 charadrius 34
 charisma 32, 44
 cidaris 32
 cinctorium 46
 circa, circum, circiter 84
 circumaedificare 51
 circumcingere 51
 circumdatio 45
 circumfodere 51
 circumfulgere 51
 circumlegere 51

 circumornatus 50
 circumspicere 44
 circumuallare 51
 circumuentio 45
 clamys 44
 clarificare 53
 clodus 43
 coadunare 51
 coaequalis 49
 coagulare 51
 coambulare 51
 coangustare 51
 coaptare 51
 cochlea 47
 cohabitare 51
 colaphizare 33
 colaphus 32
 collecta 47
 colligere 44, 57
 collyridam (acc.) 65
 combustura 46 commemorari 36
 commendaticius 49
 communicare 57
 commutare 44
 compassio 9 n.
 compedire 50
 compeditus 48
 complacere 59
 complacitus 49, 66
 compositus 50
 comprehendere 44
 compungere 57
 concorporalis 49
 concupiscentia 46
 concutere 57
 condere 54 n.
 condignus 48, 49
 conditio 54
 conducticius 49
 conelectus 50 confessio 54
 confidere (super) 25
 configuratus 49
 conflatile 47
 conflatio 45
 conformis 49
 confundere (faciem) 16
 confundi 36, 60
 confusio 54
 coniugalis 49
 conlaborare 51

 conlactaneus 47
 conluctari 51
 consanguinare 51 conmandare 51
 conmanducare 51 conpati 51
 conplattare 51
 conquisitio 55
 conregnare 51
 conresuscitare 51
 consanguineus 49
 consenior 48
 consolari 59
 conspersio 43
 conspicer 44
 consummatio 55
 consummator 45
 contentibilis 48
 contra 85
 contrarius 57
 contritio 45 conuersatio 55
 conuertere 58
 conuesci 51
 conuiuificare 53
 cor 15
 coram 99
 cordatus 48
 cornu 15
 correptio 55
 corripere 44
 corrumpere 44
 corruptibilis 48
 cotidie 43
 crapulari 50
 crapulatus 48
 crater 32, 65
 creare 54 n.
 creatura 46
 credentibus 110
 cremium 46
 crypta 32
 cucumerarium 46
 cudere 50
 cum 99, 129, 130 custoditio 45

 damula 46
 dare 23
 de 99
 deambulacrum 46
 debere 22, 90, 97 n.

- decaluate 51
 decantare 51
 decertare 33 n, 51
 decet 81
 decimare 50
 decipula 46
 decollare 51
 deferre 58
 deferuere 51
 deficere (in) 25
 defraudare 51 defunctio 45
 deglutire 51
 dehonestare 51
 deinde 61
 deitas 9 n. delatura 46
 delibatio 45
 deliramentum 46, 47
 dementare 50 deminoratio 45
 demoliri 59
 demoratio 45 denigrare 51
 deorsum 68, 69
 depositio 55
 deprecabilis 48
 deprecari 125
 desiderare 23, 97 n. desideratissimus 110
 desiderium 23, 56
 desperabilis 48
 despoliatio 47
 desponsatio 45
 despumare 51
 desternere 51
 desuper 69, 100 detractio 55
 deuiare 51
 deuitare 51
 diabolicus 32
 diabolus 32
 diaconus 65
 dicere 37, 126
 didragma 44
 dies 17
 diffamare 51
 diffidentia 55
 diffugere 51
 dilectissimus 68, 110
 dimittere 58
 dionisius 43
- discalceatus 50
 discentes 110
 disceptare 51
 disciplinatus 48
 discolus 32 discooperire 51 discretio 45 discretor 45
 discriminare 51
 discubitus 45, 56
 disertitudo 46
 dissimulare 58
 dithalassus 32
 diuinitas 9 n. docibilis 35, 48
 doctrix 45 dominari 36
 donec 129, 130
 dormire 58
 dormitatio 45 ducatus 45
 dulcor 45 dulcorare 50
 dum 129, 130
 dummodo 62, 129
- ecce 30, 124
 effugere 51
 egere 97 n.
 eicere 43
 electrix 45 eleuator 44
 elongare 51, 59
 eloquium 55, 57
 elucescere 51
 elucidare 51
 emanare 59
 emendare 58 eminentior 110
 empticus 49
 emunctorium 46
 encenia 32
 enim 62
 eo quod 133
 epinicion 34
 epistula 43
 erga 85
 ergo 62
 eructare 22, 58
 erugo 43
 et 62
 etenim 62
- ethnicus 32
 etiam 63
 etsi 131
 euacuare 58
 euangelizare 33
 euasio 45
 eucharis 32
 ex 100
 exasperare (os Domini) 16 exasperatrix 45 exauditio 45 excellentior 110 excerebrare 51
 excolare 51
 excoriare 51
 exedra 32
 exhibere 90 exhortari 125
 exire 66
 exossare 50
 expedit 91
 expensa 47
 expers 94
 expertus 47
 expoliari 35
 exporrigerere 51
 exprobrare 21
 exsecrumentum 46
 exsufflare 51
 exsuperare 44
 exsurgere 44
 extasis 32 extollentia 46
 extra 85
 extremus 94
- facere 22, 23 facies 16 facula 47
 falsiloquus 50
 festinare 58
 fiala 29, 44
 ficulnea 47
 figmentum 46
 filius 20
 fixura 46
 focarius 49
 fodere (aures) 15 n.
 foras 69
 foris 69
 formidare 25

- forsitan 61
 forte 61
 framea 47
 fraudulentia 46 frigus 67
 fructificare 53
 frui 97
 fundibulum 46 fungi 97
 funiculus 18, 55
 funis 18, 55

 galliculae 34
 gaudimonium 46
 gazophylacium 32
 geniculum 47
 genimen 46
 germinare 59
 gigas 32
 gignere 54 n. glorificare 53
 glorificari 60
 grabattum 32, 44
 gratificare 53, 59, 64
 gratus 21
 grossitudo 46 grossus 47
 gyrare 33

 habere with inf. 38
 arena 44
 harundo 44
 hant 44
 hebdomas 65
 helias 44
 helladam (acc.) 65
 hereditare 50
 hic 61, 72, 78, 79
 hiems 43
 hieremias 44
 hiericho 44
 hierusalem 44
 holus 44
 honestas 55 honoratior 110
 honorificare 53
 honorificentia 46
 horologium 32 hortari 125
 hortulanus 49
 huiusmodi 73
 humerulus 46

 humiliare 50
 humilitas 9 n, 45
 hybernalis 48
 hydria 32

 iam nunc 61
 iamque 105
 ibi 61
 idcirco 61
 idem 72
 idolothytus 32 ieiunare 50
 ieiunatio 45
 igitur 61
 ignitus 48
 ignoscere 90
 ille 72, 78, 79
 illic 61
 immolare 44
 immutare (os) 16
 impedimentum 44 imperare 125
 implere 37
 implere (manum) 16
 improprium 46
 in 89, 101, 102
 inaccessibilis 48
 inaquosus 49
 inargentatus 50
 incessabilis 35, 48
 incipere 105
 incola 55
 incolatus 45
 inconfusibilis 48
 incommunicabilis 48
 inconsummatio 45, 48
 inconsummatus 49
 incorruptibilis 48
 increassare 51
 incredibilis 48
 incredulitas 45 increpatio 45
 indeclinabilis 48
 indeficiens 49
 indictio 56
 indigens (corde) 15
 indisciplinatus 49
 indumentum 46
 indurare (cruicem) 15
 inebriari 51
 inexterminabilis 48
 inextinguibilis 48

 infatuare 51
 infidelis 66
 inflatio 55
 ingemescere 43
 inhonorare 51
 ininterpretabilis 48
 inlamentatus 49
 inlucescere 51 inluminare 23, 36
 inmarcescibilis 48
 inmemoratio 48
 inminuere 51
 inoboedientia 46
 inordinatio 48
 inpaenitens 49
 inportabilis 48
 inproperare 51
 inquietare 50
 inquietudo 46
 inquinamentum 46
 inrationabilis 48
 inreprehensibilis 48 iritatrix 45
 inscrutabilis 48
 insensatus 49, 50
 inspiratio 45
 institor 44
 insufflare 51
 intellegere 43
 intendere 58
 intentator 45, 95
 intentio 55
 inter 70, 85 interest 81
 interpretari 60
 intingere 43
 intonare 80
 intra 85
 intus 69
 inuestigabilis 48
 inueterare 22
 inuicem 70
 iohannes 44
 ipse 72, 79
 is 72 Israhel 44
 iste 72
 ita 61
 itaque 61
 iubilum 55
 iudaizare 33
 iudicare (de) 25

- iudicium 55, 57
 iurare 108
 iussio 45 iustificare 53
 iustificatio 57
 iustitia 55, 57
 iuuenula 47
 iuxta 85
- lacrima 43
 iacus 55
 laesura 46
 laetificare 53
 laguncula 47
 laicus 32
 lamentare 59
 lambere 66
 lamia 47
 lampas 65
 latomus 32 laudari 60 lepusculus 46
 leuare 22
 leunculus 46 libatorium 46
 libet 81
 libum 55
 licet 81, 129, 131
 liciatorium 46
 ligatura 46 lignum 55
 linguatus 48
 linguosus 49
 linire 66
 linteamen 46
 lithostrotus 32
 littera 44
 litus 44
 longaeuus 50
 longanimitas 50
 longanimitas 9 n, 45
 loquella 44
 loqui (ad cor) 15
 loqui (with dat.) 37
 lucusta 43
 luter 32
 lux 76
 lyra 29
- machina 28
 maerere 43
- magnalia 47
 magnificare 24, 53
 magnificari 60
 maledicere 36
 maleficus 55
 malignare 50 malitia 64
 malleator 45
 mamilla 47
 mancipatus 45
 mandare 126
 mane 61
 manicare 51
 manus 16
 mare (= the West, and possibly the South) 18 mare (abl.) 66
 margaritum 65
 maturitas 45
 mediare 50, 59
 medietas 55
 meditari 58
 medius 94
 melota 32
 memorari 95
 inensurabilis 48 mensurare 50
 mentiri (= to submit) 22
 mercennarius 44
 meridiare 50 messio 45
 mctibor 67
 metiri 60, 90
 meus (voc.) 66
 milia 44
 mina 28
 minare 50
 ministrare 90
 minorare 51
 mirificare 53
 miseratio 57
 misereri 25
 misericordia 18, 57
 mitra 32
 mittere 58
 modicus 57
 montes Dei (= goodly mountains) 20 morticinus 49
 mortificare 53
 mortificatus 20
 mortuos saeculi (= those who have been long dead) 19
 motabilis 48
 multiloquium 21, 47
 multiplicare 21, 24
 multitudo 75
 multus esse 24
 muratus 48
 murmurari 59
 murra 43
 murratus 48
 muscipula 48
 mutatorium 46
 mutuo 70
 mysterium 9 n.
- natale 47
 nathanahel 44
 natio 75
 natiuitas 45
 nauclerius 32
 naufragare 50 ne 124, 125
 necessarius 66
 necessarius 97 n.
 necesse 97 n.
 necessitas 97 n.
 necnon 61
 negligere 43
 nemo 73, 94
 ne omnino 61
 neophytus 32
 nequissimus (= πονηρός) 68
 ne ultra 61
 nigredo 46
 nimietas 45
 nimis ualde 61
 nisi 27, 131, 132
 nocere 36, 90 nominatissimus 110
 nomisma 32
 non 27, 63
 non . . . neque 61
 nubere 58, 91
 nullus 73
 numquid 63, 106
 nuptus 45
 nusquam 63
- ob 86
 obductus 45

- obdulcare 52
 obdurare 52
 obfirmare 52
 obligatio 56
 obmutescere 52
 oboeditio 45
 obrizum 47
 obscurari 59
 obsecrare 125
 obstupescere 52
 obtenebrare 52
 obturare 52
 obuiam (ire) 91
 obuiare 50
 obumbrare 52
 oculus 16
 odi 66
 odibilis 48
 odoramentum 46
 olfactorium 47
 omnimodus 50
 onustare 51
 operator 44 operimentum 46 opertorium 46
 opinio 55
 oportet 81, 97 n.
 oportunus 44
 opponere 58
 optuli 43
 opus 97
 oratio 55
 orditus 67 orfanus 44
 originalis 48
 ornatus 45
 os 16, 65
 osanna 44
 ossum 65
 ouile 4 n.

 pacatissimum (= εἰρηνικόν) 68
 pacificare 53
 pacificus 57
 paenitentia 43
 paenitere 59, 80 palatha 32
 papilio 47
 papyrio 32 paracletus 32
 paradisisus 9 n.

 parapsis 32, 43
 parascene 32
 paratura 46
 pariter 70
 parochus 29 pars 94
 particeps 94 participatio 21
 paruus 57
 paschualis 48
 passibilis 48
 passio 9 n. paternitas 45
 pauere 26
 paulominus 61 pauus 65
 pedagogus 43
 pelliceus 49
 penes 86
 penetrabilis 48 pentecoste 32 per 86
 perantiquus 49
 percussura 46
 perefluere 52
 peregrinari 58
 perficere (aures) 15 n.
 pergrandis 49
 percipissima 32
 perire 58
 perisclidas 34 perlinire 52
 perlucidus 49
 permagnificus 49
 permodicus 49
 permundare 52
 perpaucus 49
 persenilis 49
 perstillare 52
 persuadere 125 persuasibilis 48
 pertinere (de) 26
 pertransire 52
 perualidus 49
 perurgere 52
 pes 16
 pessinare 51
 petere 36, 124
 phalanx 32
 philosophia 28
 philosophus 29
 phylacterium 32

 piget 81
 pignus 32
 pigredo 46
 pigritari 51
 pinguedo 46
 pinguis 57
 pinnaculum 46
 pisticus 32
 placitus 50
 placor 45
 plagare 50 plagiarius 49
 plasmare 33
 plicare 50
 pluere 59, 80
 polliceri 108
 pollinctor 45
 ponere (cor) 15 populus 75, 77
 possidere 58
 post 86
 postquam 129, 134
 postulare 125
 potare 59
 potens 21
 potiri 97
 potum dare 115 prae 100
 praebere 90
 praecellere 38, 52
 praecessor 45
 praecipere 90, 126
 praeclearus 49
 praecogitare 52
 praedestinare 52
 praefectus 47 praefinire 52 praefignas 44
 praegrans 49
 praecoccupare 64
 praecordinare 52
 praesagus 49
 praesepe 65
 praestabilis 49
 praestolatio 45
 praeter 87
 praeterfluere 52
 praetergredi 52
 praeterire 58
 praetermittere 52
 praeualidus 49
 praeuaticatio 55

- precari 125
 prendiderunt 67
 pressura 46
 primitivus 49
 primogenitus 50
 primus (first of two) 68
 principalis 48
 principari 51
 priusquam 129, 133
 pro 101
 probatica 32
 proelior 44
 proelium 43
 prolongare 52 promereri 60 promittere 108
 promptuarium 22
 propalare 52
 prope 87
 propheticus 22
 prophetizare 33
 propitiari 50, 52
 propitiatorium 46
 propter 87
 propurgare 52
 proscindere 52
 proselytus 32
 prospector 45
 prosperare 59
 protestari 52
 prout 61
 proximare 50
 ptisane 32
 publicanus 4 n.
 pudet 81
 pulmentarium 46
 pupillus 64
 purpura 28
 pusillanimitas 49
 pusillus 57
 puta, putas, etc. 63
 putredo 46
 pytho 32
 pythonicus 32
 pythonissa 32

 quadrivianus 49
 quaerere 126
 qualis 123, 127
 quam 30 quamdiu 132
 quamquam 129, 134

 quamvis 129, 132
 quantus 123, 128
 quasi 129, 132
 quaternio 47
 quattuor 44
 quemadmodum 62
 querella 55
 querulosus 49 qui 73, 76, 127
 quia 119, 120, 121, 129
 quicumque 127
 quid (interrog.) 73
 quidam 68
 quidem 63
 quidnam 63
 quin 132
 quis 74, 94
 quoad 129, 132
 quod 63, 118, 119, 120, 121, 129, 133, 134
 quominus 133
 quomodo 62
 quoniam 63, 119, 120, 121, 129
 quot 123
 quotiens 44, 129
 quotquot 128
 quousque 62

 rationabilis 48
 reaedificare 52
 reclinare 59
 reclinatorium 46
 recordari 59
 recubitus 45, 56
 redditor 44
 redemptor 10 n, 56
 reditus 56
 reexpectare 52
 refectio 56 refigurare 52
 refocillare 52
 refrigerium 46, 47
 regenerare 52
 regeneratio 9 n.
 regnare 37, 58
 regulus 46
 reinuitare 52
 religiositas 45
 remandare 52
 remunerator 45

 renunculus 46
 reprehensibilis 48
 reprobus 49
 repromissor 45
 repropitiare 52
 respiscentia 9 n.
 respisco 9 n.
 resolutio 45
 respergere 52
 respicere (ad) 26
 retardare 59
 retiaculum 46
 retinere 58
 retro 69, 87
 retrudere 52
 reuelare (aurem) 15
 rhetor 29
 rogare 124
 rubricatus 48
 rudis 57

 sabbatizare 33
 sacramentum 9 n. sacrificare 53
 saecularis 57
 saeculum 19, 20, 56
 sagena 32
 saginare 50 sagittare 50
 salsugo 46
 saltem 63
 saluari 60
 saluator 9 saluificare 53
 salutare 47 salutes 18 sanctificare 53
 sanctificatio 56
 sacrificium 46
 sanctuarium 47
 sanguisuga 48
 sarabala 47
 sarra 44
 satrapa 32
 scabillum 43
 scala 66
 scandalizare 33, 64
 scenofactorius 49
 scenopegia 32
 schisma 32
 scopare 50
 scrutantes scrutinio 20

- secundoprimus 49
 secundum 87
 secus 69, 88
 sed 63
 seductor 45
 semicinctum 47
 semita 18
 sensatus 50 separator 45
 sepulchrum 44
 sermo (= thing, matter) 18 serotinus 49
 sertum 66
 seruire 90
 sescenti 44
 si 27, 122, 123, 129 sic 62
 sicera 32
 sicut . . . et 62
 significare 53
 silere 58
 similari 51
 similis 92 n.
 similitudo 56
 simul 62, 129
 simulacrum 43, 44
 sindon 32 sine 101
 singularis 57
 siquidem 63
 situla 47
 soliloquium 9 n. sollicitus 44
 somniator 45
 sorbitiuncula 47
 spiraculum 46
 spiramentum 46
 spiritalis 43
 sponsare 50
 sporta 32
 stabilimentum 47
 stabularius 49
 stabulum 56
 stratorium 46
 studere 91
 stultiloquium 47
 suadere 36, 125
 suadibilis 48
 sub 89, 102
 subcinericius 49
 subinferre 52
 subintrare 52
 subiuugalis 48
 sublimare 52
 subministratio 45, 95
 subnauigare 52
 subneruare 52
 subsannare 52
 subsannator 45
 subsilire 52
 substantia 56
 subter 89, 102
 subtus 69, 88
 sufferentia 46
 sufficientia 46
 sufflatorium 46
 summitas 98
 super 89, 90, 102
 superabundare 52
 superadultus 50
 superaedificare 52
 supercrescere 52
 superextendere 52
 supergaudere 52
 supergloriosus 49
 superinduere 52
 superinpendere 52
 superlaudabilis 49
 superlucrari 52
 superordinare 52
 superseminare 52
 supersubstantialis 49 superuacuus 49
 superuestire 52
 supra 88 suprasedere 52
 sursum 69
 susceptor 44, 56
 sustinentia 46
 sustinere 58
 susurrator 45
 suus 71
 symphonia 32
 tabita 44
 taedere 59, 81
 talentum 28
 talis 127
 tamquam 129, 133
 tantus 128
 telonium 32
 temporaneus 49
 tentare and tempt. 43, 44 testamentum 56
 testificare 53, 60
 testimonium 56, 57
 tharsus 44
 theatrum 28
 thesaurizare 33 thesaurus 29
 timere 26, 108, 126
 timoratus 48, 50
 titulus 56
 tonitrus 66 topazion 34
 tornatilis 48
 torrens 8 n.
 tractabilis 48
 traducere 82
 traductio 56 trans 88
 transfigurare 52
 transmigrare 59
 transmigratio 56
 transnauigare 52
 transplantare 52
 transuadari 52
 transuertere 52
 tremebundus 49
 tremere 59
 trepidare 20
 tribula 65
 tribulare 50
 tribus uicibus (= often) 17 tricare 50
 trieris 32 tristari 51 tristega 32
 triturare 50 triumphare 36
 tunc 62
 turba 75
 turibulum 44
 tus 44
 tutamentum 46 typhonicus 32
 uacuitas 56
 uacuus 57
 ualefacere 52
 uaniloquium 47
 uaniloquus 48

uas electionis 20	uir 16, 18, 74	usque 27, 62, 83
ubi 61, 129, 133	uiratus 48	usquedum 130
uelle 26, 58, 126	uirga 19, 56	usquequaque 62
uenerabilis 48	uiros 45	usquequo 62
uerbum (= thing, mat- ter) 18	uirtus 56	ut 118, 119, 120, 121, 124, 125, 129, 133
uero 64	uisitatio 56	uterque 74
uersipellis 48	uitulamen 46	uti 97
uerumtamen 64	uiuere 23	utinam 133
uesci 97	uiuificare 53	utique 63
uestibulum 46	ultra 88	utrumnam 133
uctare 66	umerus 44
ueterare 51	unanimis 50	zelare 33, 36
uia 18	ungentum 43	zelotypia 32
uidere 58, 126	unicolor 50	zelus 32
uideri 90	unicornis 50	zizanium 32
uilicatio 45	unigenitus 50	zmaragdus 44
uilicus 44	unoculus 50	zmyrna 44
uinctus 110	unus 66, 68, 73, 79, 94	zona 29
	unusquisque 74

IV. INDEX OF PASSAGES OF SCRIPTURE

GEN.	PAGE	GEN.	PAGE	GEN.	PAGE
1. 2	16	4. 4	26	19. 30	108
4	120	22	45	21. 21	93
5	21	5. 4	134	22. 16	86
7	89	6. 6	119	17	23
8	68	7. 7	27	23. 6	73, 132
11	59, 86	7. 4, 12, 17	56, 97	24. 7	37
12	87	8. 11	63	13	87
14	20	9. 2	72	24	79
15	36	11. 8	39	30	37, 38
21	48	12. 14	67	32	51
26-7	83	13. 10	133	25. 8	95
2. 5'	80, 133	18	86	26. 9	126
9	115	16. 5	116	27. 42	120
13	93	6	81	28. 9	99
18-20	92 n.	17. 17	121	29. 2	51
20	14	18. 4	117	26	93
23	100	18	113	33	116
24	20	32	125	30. 6	92
3. 1	126	19. 1	77, 98	32	33
3	126	4	114	35	50
10	63, 133	14	109	38	84
16	36	17	85	31. 2	17
18	59	23	117	2-5	85
4. 1	58	24	80	47	8 n.

Index of Passages of Scripture

GEN.	PAGE	EXOD.	PAGE	DEUT.	PAGE
31. 50 99	25. 25 97	1. 1-5 88
32. 6 114	26. 4 70	2. 7 92
35. 8 77	24 68	3. 3 85
36. 31 133	27. 14 66	3. 1 83
37. 5 119	29. 14 85	8 88
14 85	32. 1 19 n.	4. 5 134
15 122	23 19 n.	14 126
19 45, 70	33. 11 83	21 85, 125
32 122	34. 11 84	40 97
38. 17-18 31	36. 30 62	42 84
39. 19 91	32 51	5. 4 83
41. 1 121	38. 31 101	29 22
10 52	LEV.
11 49	4. 11 18	6. 1 26
15 121	7. 1 95	7. 11 126
35 61	18 132	22 26
42. 7 91	27 16	9. 25 125
13 90	38 126	14. 18 34
16 122	11. 19 34	15. 6 37
21 70	13. 16, 25, 39 45	20. 9 83
25 92	28 46	24. 6 58
30 121	53 121	25. 4 92 n.
33 58	14. 42 66	26. 10 37
43. 25 121	16. 27 69	28. 13 89
44. 31 121	19. 15 92	50 58
46. 7 62	20. 27 32	29. 20 90
47. 31 12 n.	21. 3 91	31. 20 58
50. 17 125
EXOD.		NUM.
2. 12 121	5. 19 90	JOSHUA.
14 18	6. 21 86	8. 6 121
3. 6 85	12. 8 83	9. 1 88
8. 13 14	11 125	5 49
9. 18-23 59	16 (13. 1) 98	15 121
23 80	13. 20 48	10. 28 63
24 128	21 57	14. 11 83
11. 2 16	14. 2 59	15. 5 94
4 94	4 71	18 125
12. 29 94	16. 5 112	17. 5 18
14. 4, 17, 18 60	13 37	22. 19, 29 87
20 70	21. 4 81	19 121
24 105	22. 1 88	29 118
15. 1 44	33 132	23. 1 49
16. 8 59	23. 10 16	11 120
18. 18 88	24. 1 85, 134	13 120
19. 16 105	9 73	24. 19 90
20. 3 99	11 105	26 49
10 85	27. 11 92
21. 17 23	31. 50 34

Index of Passages of Scripture

I KINGS (III REG.)	PAGE	II CHRON.	PAGE	ESTHER	PAGE
19. 2	24	18. 19	73	2. 18	49
20. 28	79	33	79	5. 13	106
21. 2	91, 128	20. 33	60	8. 11	125
10, 13	22	21. 7	108	9. 16	98
15	119	24. 24	49	16. 14	34
22. 6	22	35. 2	125
20	73	9	61	JOB
25	27			2. 9	22
27	97	EZRA (I ESDR.)		5. 7	118
		7. 25	92	6. 28	122
II KINGS (IV REG.)				7. 7	121
3. 23	70	NEH. (II ESDR.)		10. 1	81
4. 17	127	4. 4	91	14. 14	120
5. 2	101	14	26	16. 9	50
8	121	13. 9	61	17. 15	45
11	120	20	69	16	121
13	16	29	59	19. 4	131
15	120, 121	TOB.		23. 14	92
17	47, 100, 121	1. 19	61	24. 11	50
18	90	3. 15	124	26. 4	46
6. 20	121	4. 20	124	28. 4	95 n.
8. 19	108, 120	5. 19	124	8	45
9. 26	27	27	92	30. 30	32
10. 21	16	6. 14	121	32. 12	130
32	59, 81	7. 10	108	33. 29	17
12. 1	58	8. 15	70	36. 3	44
8	39	9. 1	124	41. 15	45
16. 14	83, 99, 100	5	46	PSALMS
17. 26	133	8	76	1. 1	30
19. 8	120	11. 6	68	2. 11	21
20. 17	117	12. 4	124	3. 4 (5)	83
21. 16	16	JUDITH		4. 7 (8)	21
23. 4	69	5. 3	123	5. 10 (11)	98
6	69	15	52	8. 2 (3)	87
I CHRON.		6. 6	130	5 (6)	21
1. 22	61	11. 18	71	9. 4	40
11. 24	110	12. 5	124	10. 3 (Hebr.)	60
16. 3	67	8	71	20 (Hebr.)	92
20. 3	65	10	36	11. 4 (10, 5)	19
21. 23	65	13. 12	33	12. 2 (11, 3)	27
II CHRON.		15. 7	51	4 (11, 5)	24, 98
5. 5	46	10	46	14 (13). 5	20
6. 1	120	ESTHER		(13). 7	22
1, 20	108	1. 6	57	16 (15). 6	18
39	132	7	73	(15). 10	23, 102
18. 1	67	2. 1	51	18. 2 (17, 3)	15
2	125	17	23	13 (17, 14)	80
				30 (17, 31)	19
				44 (17, 46)	22

Index of Passages of Scripture

155

PSALMS	PAGE	PSALMS	PAGE	PSALMS	PAGE
18. 50 (17. 51)	. . . 24	67. 1 (66. 2)	. . . 23	119 (118). 56 . . .	19
19. 3 (18. 4)	. . . 21, 40	68. 12 (67. 13)	. . . 26	81, 82 . . .	25
20. 5 (19. 6)	. . . 60	15 (67. 16)	. . . 57	87 . . .	61
22. 20 (21. 21)	. . . 16	71. 19 (70. 21)	. . . 24	92 . . .	61
23 (22). 6 . . .	17	73 (72). 3 . . .	33	120 . . .	26
27 (26). 4 . . .	19	(72). 16 . . .	120	123 . . .	25
29 (28). 3 . . .	80	(72). 25 . . .	21	132 . . .	25
32 (31). 6 . . .	19	74 (73). 17 . . .	33	120. 4 (119. 5)	45
33 (32). 12 . . .	21, 40	77. 2 (76. 3)	. . . 59	121 (120). 8 . . .	79
34. 2 (33. 3)	. . . 60	7 (76. 8)	49, 66	122 (121). 3 . . .	21, 72
35 (34). 14 . . .	59	78 (77). 12, 43 . . .	34	126 (125). 1 . . .	40
36. 6 (35. 7)	. . . 20	18 (77. 17)	23, 24	(125). 1-2 . . .	29
7 (35. 8)	. . . 24	(77). 65 . . .	50	3-4 (125. 2-3)	24
8 (35. 9)	. . . 59	79 (78). 11 . . .	20	131 (130). 3 . . .	79
37 (36). 1 . . .	36	80. 5 (79. 6)	. . . 17	132 (131). 3-4 . . .	27
(36). 1-7 . . .	25	10 (79. 11)	. . . 20	135 (134). 8 . . .	27
(36). 25 . . .	62	81. 3 (80. 4)	. . . 50	139. 8 (138. 9)	94
40. 4 (39. 5)	. . . 40	14 (80. 15)	. . . 61	11 (138. 12)	59
6 (39. 7)	. . . 15 n.	16 (80. 16)	. . . 22	142 (141). 4 . . .	40
16 (39. 14)	. . . 59	16 (80. 17)	. . . 17	143. 4 (142. 3)	20
41. 9 (40. 10)	. . . 24	82 (81). 3 . . .	92	144 (143). 6 . . .	80
42. 4 (41. 5)	. . . 95 n.	84. 3 (83. 4)	. . . 62	12 . . .	50
6 (41. 7)	. . . 84	87 (86). 5 . . .	26	13 . . .	22
44. 8 (43. 9)	. . . 60	89. 10 (88. 11)	. . . 19	15 . . .	40
16 (43. 17)	. . . 98	34 (88. 35)	. . . 27	145 (144). 4 . . .	27
(43). 22 . . .	25	45 (88. 47)	. . . 58	18 . . .	92
45. Title (45. 1)	. . . 111	91 (90). 16 . . .	17	146. 4 (145. 5)	40
1 (44. 2)	. . . 37	92. 13 (91. 15)	. . . 60	147. 14 . . .	17, 23
2 (44. 3)	. . . 100	94 (93). 15 . . .	133
6 (44. 7)	. . . 19	(93). 17 . . .	61	Prov.
13 (44. 14)	. . . 68	95 (94). 4 . . .	18	1. 22 . . .	66
46. 2 (45. 3)	. . . 15	8 (94. 9)	. . . 87	29 . . .	112
48. 13 (47. 14)	. . . 15	(94). 10 . . .	72	3. 2 . . .	17
49. 15 (48. 16)	. . . 16	102. 3 (101. 4)	. . . 46	5. 6 . . .	48
50 (49). 21 . . .	121	22 (101. 23)	40	8. 26 . . .	60
51. 1 (50. 3)	. . . 87, 95	103 (102). 8 . . .	67	9. 18 . . .	32
4 (50. 6)	. . . 38	105 (104). 3 . . .	60	11. 12 . . .	15
16 (50. 18)	. . . 63	(104). 18 . . .	16	13. 17 . . .	12 n.
17 (50. 19)	. . . 92	106 (105). 5 . . .	60	22. 2 . . .	44
53. 5 (52. 6)	. . . 20	(105). 13 . . .	22	13 . . .	114
8 (52. 7)	. . . 22	(105). 29 . . .	24	23. 30 . . .	91
55. 7 (54. 8)	. . . 59	107 (106). 3 . . .	18	25. 8 . . .	51
58. 1 (57. 2)	. . . 63	110 (109). 1 . . .	37	12 . . .	65
61. 6 (60. 7)	. . . 17	112 (111). 1 . . .	26, 58	26. 2 . . .	81
63. 8 (62. 9)	. . . 25	115. 1 (113. 2 sec.)	102	27. 9 . . .	50
10 (62. 11)	. . . 16	(113). 18 . . .	79	30. 10 . . .	84
11 (62. 12)	. . . 60	116 (114). 2 . . .	17	14 . . .	51
64. 6 (63. 7)	. . . 20	118 (117). 8, 9 . . .	35	15 . . .	48
10 (63. 11)	. . . 60	(117). 22 . . .	17, 76
66. 2 (65. 3)	. . . 22	(117). 25 . . .	59	Eccl.
14 (65. 16)	. . . 123	119 (118). 50 . . .	19	1. 8 . . .	115

Index of Passages of Scripture

ECCL.	PAGE	ECCLUS.	PAGE	ISA.	PAGE
1. 9	113	7. 5	86	2. 16	115
2. 15	121	12	44	3. 5	16
17	81	33	52	20	47
3. 9	61	39	81	5. 1	15
7. 17	67	9. 16	36	9	27
		10. 14	33	6. 3	71
		11. 3	45	7. 4	25
		9	59	10	23
CANT.		14	55	8. 18	80
4. 1-3	99	32	45	10. 18	27
5. 8	121	14. 13	51	13. 5	68
6. 6	99	19	73	14. 9	89
		15. 13	46	18	16
		16. 4	35	15. 5	26
		11	48	6	45
WISD.		14	59	17. 14	68
2. 14	56	22	67	18. 4	83
15	92	17. 11	25	19. 11-13	34
3. 8	37	19. 2	33	21. 16	83
12	68	20. 1	35	22. 24	65
16	45	21	32	25. 7	67
18	54	21. 30	36	26. 3	26
4. 3	46	22. 3	45	28. 10-13	52
4	45	23. 5	46	16	17
5	49	12 (15)	57	24	52
5. 11	54	24. 3	59	29. 2	51
8. 8	54	6	49	6	66
9	54	31	51	22	83
10	84	26. 12	46	30. 14	49
11. 14	36	27. 19	67	31. 1	25, 49
13. 8	90	28. 19	48	4	25
13	56	29. 21-2	45	32. 6	115
14 . 9	52	25	33	10	17
21	91	32. 15	50	33. 19	46
24	48	33. 6	52	34. 13	51
15. 8	71	21	21	35. 7	45
18. 4	61	36. 19	44	36. 6	25
19. 6	112	39. 23	45	38. 21	33
12	52	40. 23	74	39. 6	117
20	54	41. 5	95 n.	40. 2	15
	51	42. 13	33	41. 7	50
		44. 19	84	22	15
ECCLUS.		45. 9	34	42. 13	44
ProL	70	11	112	44. 9	110
1. 17, 18, 26	45	46. 20	80, 112	45. 14	99
39	67	48. 16	130	23	23
3. 34	45	50. 21	130	46. 8	95 n.
4. 13	45	51. 25	51	49. 6	20
21	67	32	59	8	95
33	33 n.	1. 9	132	53. 1	116
5. 4	44	17-23	92	11-12	63
17	45

Index of Passages of Scripture

157

ISA.	PAGE	BARUCH	PAGE	DAN.	PAGE
54. 4	81	4. 28	58	14. 5	123
5	37		46	8	25
55. 7	24	6. 7	50	Hos.
56. 5	21	21	47	2. 14	15
59. 7	45	EZEK.		3. 5	26
65. 17	15	1. 3	83	9. 15	112
22	22	4	94	16	110
66. 2	59	13	65	10. 12	113
3	51	3. 11-15	56	JOEL
11	50	6. 1	83	1. 3	66
23	27	6	59	4	95
JER.		9. 9	61	7	20
1. 13	16	10. 4	100	8	89
17	25	13. 11	49	17	59
6. 9	132	11, 15	66	20	63
7. 32	117	14. 4, 7	26	2. 3	99
8. 12	132	21. 17	132	8	59
11. 19	55	24. 6	26	13	49
12. 2	92	21	26	21	24
12	21	28. 15	54, 130	27	61
13. 3	83	22	60	AMOS.
17. 5	15	32. 10	25	2. 9	89
20. 8	103	35. 8	37	3. 4	73
21. 13	45	37. 3	121	4. 2	117
22. 27	22	10	61	5. 11	110
26. 11	55	38. 23	60	7. 3, 6	25, 102
31. 12, 15	102	39. 15	45	17	60
31	117	40. 44	32, 85	OBAD. (ABD.)
32	37	44. 20	66	1. 12	24
34	16	46. 14, 15	26, 84	JON.
33. 22	60	47. 5	52	1. 3	35
36. 7	22	DAN.		11	117
38. 4	124	1. 8	124	3. 3	97
43. 9	32	2. 34	130	10	25, 90
49. 14	115	3. 32	88	4. 2	35
20	27	53	49	2, 6, 9	102
50. 17	50	94	47	8	124
51. 17	45	4. 5	130	10	90
52. 21	46	24	90	MIC.
LAM.		6. 10	85	2. 5	18
1. 2	23	17	79	8	100
3. 7	51	20	121	12	23
4. 22	59	22	63	3. 1	93
BARUCH		7. 3	70	2	100
2. 4	103	7	92	3	51
3. 23	36	10. 2	65
		11. 36	60
		13. 12	71

Index of Passages of Scripture

NAH.	PAGE	II MACC.	PAGE	MATTHEW	PAGE
1. 12	66	4. 38	127	5. 26	66
15	23	5. 10	49	28	83
2. 10	46	21	121	34, 36	86
HAG.		6. 12	51	39	127
2. 10	67	29	61	6. 1	61, 126
ZECH. (ZACH.)		7. 19	121	5	104
1. 14	36	8. 16	124	7	21
3. 10	16	9. 10	61	8	97 n.
8. 2	36	12	92	9	109
9. 6	45	11. 4	63	10	62
13. 6	50	10	90	11	49
14. 13	16	17	125	12	58
MAL.		12. 21	115	17	109
1. 6	72	24	125	18	101
2. 5	26	13. 4	93	26	67
I MACC.		12	125	27	113
1. 21	58	14	125	34	89
23	46	15. 8	125	7. 1	106
2. 54	36	MATTHEW		2	60
3. 3	34	1. 11	95	9	82
14	60	17	83	15	25
52	84	18	109	23	120
5. 41	85	19	56	25	105
61	121	20	108	8. 8	89
6. 51	46	21	104	19	79
29	49	23	77	20	59
7. 1	94	25	130	23	39
8. 9	65	2. 2	38	32	86
9. 10	119	6	66	34	34, 124
37	54	9	130	9. 5	74
64	100	13	112, 113, 130	6	39
10. 72	122	14	97	13	122
78, 87	35	16	45, 88 n.	15	117 n.
11. 10	119	3. 9	85	16	57
28	125	10	83	28	64
13. 20	33	12	52, 96	36	25
14. 9	34	14	97 n, 104	38	124
10	132	15	58	10. 15	91
15. 13	44	17	80	22	91
15	94	4. 2	97	31	97
16. 4	44	3	126	32	19
II MACC.		11	90, 104	42	115
2. 3	125	21	93	11. 1	39
5	61	24	55	11	67, 111
3. 6	102	5. 3	96	17	59
30	61	6	81	23	61
4. 34	132	8	30, 96	26	84
		17	121	12. 1	57
		20	104, 131	12	61
		22	37	16	126
				23	63

Index of Passages of Scripture

159

MATTHEW	PAGE	MATTHEW	PAGE	MARK	PAGE
12. 3195	22. 1358	1. 15	59, 81
4466	3091	16	66, 69
4637	23. 214	2770
13. 9	112	2451	29	111
2552	2669	3568
2762	3191	2. 261
28	126	3789	4	102
3268	24. 289	1039
3558	655	20117 n.
5163	991	23	118, 119
53	119	1278	26	102
14. 195	2221	3. 9	126
7	108	2361	19	128
16	97 n.	3558	2061
2288	38	116	2925
2597	39	130	4. 484
15. 423	40	68, 73	1057
1445	25. 10	114, 130	1584
2494	20	52, 130	2460
3275	35 f.57	3361
3392	40	132	4070
16. 12	113	26. 8, 1073	5. 10	125
2170	996	1366
22	104	12	113	14	103
17. 572	15	118	18	105
1537	23	101	2668
22	104, 114	4234	3593
18. 163	5390	43	127
8	98, 107	5462	6. 8	126
9	35, 50, 98	5583	1676
1058	6386	34	25, 90
11	105	65	60, 97	5167
2162	6980	56	125, 128
34	133	72	120	7. 586
19. 883	27. 13	123	2368
12	127	1483	8. 2	25, 90, 103
1694	19	101	22	124
20. 2	100	38	68, 73	3369
3, 5, 6, 984	42	103	38	36, 60
673	4358	9. 768
19	112	4472	2973
24	100	46	73, 84	3470
2536	49	111, 122	40	115
21. 397	50	111	10. 3270
723	5169	4251
875	28. 19	101	11. 2	60, 94
1980			3	97 n.
3174	MARK		1166
4276	1. 495	1387
22. 447	594	1825
1037	740	2295

Index of Passages of Scripture

MARK	PAGE	LUKE	PAGE	LUKE	PAGE
12. I 55	2. 12 65	9. 13 132
31 35	13 75	19 79
32 87	16 65	38 126
40 102	25 48	54 126
42 80	29 58	10. I 38
13. I 124	41 86	13 81
11 52	49 93	19 104, 112
13 91	3. I 102	21 63, 84
19 128	14 57	29 119
25 110	19 76	31 58, 119
35 122	4. 13 78, 83	34 56
14. 5 96	18 63	36 94
6 89	35 36, 90	38 118
14 56	41 121	40 84, 91
21 29	5. I 118	11. 11 36
25 104	3 126	28 63
27 38	6 104	31-2 97
33 59, 81	10 110	44 88
43 55	12 118	49 62
48 55	24 39	51 61
54 68	25 102	12. I 110
63 60, 97 n.	38 113	5 61
15. 4 123	6. I 50, 110, 119	10 89
6 104	6 118	32 59
24 123	12 95, 119	38 97
25 118	16 93	41 62
34 73	18 98	44 88
43 110	20 89	47 87
44 123	33 63	48 76
16. 18 36	34 108	50 62
		38 60	18. 4 87
		39 85	9 30
		48 89	15 65
		7. 11 119	33 39, 59
LUKE		32 59	14. I 118
1. I 63	39 85, 123	8 110
3 68, 111	42 74	12 52
6 55	49 85	14 38
8 119	8. I 118	15. 7 67
9 119	5 69	19 56
13 104	18 121	14 134
15 60	22 118	16. I 132
21 110, 134	28 125	26 101
25 38	31 124	17. 2 67
31 104	33 86	4 80
33 102	40 119	22 117 n.
42 21	43 56	29 59, 80
51 71	47 62	18. 4 131
53 97	49 120	10 73
59 104	56 73, 126	12 58
72 95	9. 11 97	19. 15 123
2. 6 82
7 59, 65
10 77

Index of Passages of Scripture

161

LUKE	PAGE	JOHN	PAGE	JOHN	PAGE
19. 29	93	5. 6	103	18. 39	93
31. 34	97 n.	39	121	19. 19	89
37	93, 110	6. 10	96	24	106
43	117, 118	20	106	25	93
44	134	22	88	27	89
48	123	43	70	32	68
20. 11	23	66	110	20. 3-4	79
13	23	71	93	12	47
20	82	7. 4	101	15	49
21. 14	62	14	50, 59	25	104
17	91	17	105	21. 2	110
20	121	24	82	3, 10	38, 67
38	36, 51	35	95	12	110
22. 4	62	49	76	23	103
15	23	8. 9	86
19	72	23	69	Acts
23	70, 122	28	72	1. 2	90
25	36	44	105	3	86, 90
49	21	50	127	4	51, 126
23. 6	123	58	133	8	35
8	108	9. 4	130	24	74
12	83	5	132	2. 3	88
16	58	18	130	17	100
23	125	25	122	24	63
33	4 n.	39	79	27	23, 102
53	101	10. 8	128	30	130
55	62	16	4 n.	31	102
56	58	22	32	37	57, 106
24. 10	93	33	100	40	60
15	130	11. 39	49	41	16
22	63	12. 5	96	42	77
23	82	29	37	45	61
		48	127	46	84
JOHN		18. 5	77	47	72
1. 1	78	13	62	3. 2	104
6	91, 127	27	67	3	105 n.
12	128	14. 2	133	11	73
15	97	4	122	12	107, 132
17	95	22	79	15	64
21	63	24	76	19	81
27	21	26	82	4. 9	95
48	133	15. 17	70, 72	13	98, 120
2. 21	93	16. 2	99	16	106 n.
4. 2	134	12	38	17	61
11	128	13	77	18	61
13	104	15	127	19	122
15	83	17	70	21	109
30	104	19	70	32	110
47	105 n.	18. 1	8 n.	34	128
52	68	20	101	5. 4	109
53	127	37	62	7	118

Index of Passages of Scripture

163

ROMANS	PAGE	I COR.	PAGE	I COR.	PAGE
4. 20	55, 96	1. 1	78	12. 6	127
5. 1	106	11	93	13	67
6	88	29	21	22	66
7	106	2. 8	73 n.	25	72, 101
12	102	9	15	31	57, 60, 110
15, 19	78	3, 3, 4	68, 130	13. 1, 2	129
17	109	4. 3	118	1 ff.	4 n.
18	95	4	91	12	83
6. 5	51	7	129	14. 1	57
13	90	5. 10	61, 64	10	63
7. 1	128	11	61	12	126
2	95	6. 1	84	14	129
18	107	2	100	20	96
8. 3	94, 100	3	57	23-4	129
7	91	11	72	26	129
10	87	12	102	27	86, 88
11	87	16	20	35	105
13	104	18	85	39	57
23	93	19	76	15. 5-8	90
27	88	7. 5	72	9	94
29	49	7	62	15	84
33	84	9	91	25	131
34	128	10	82	27	87, 130
9. 3	104	14	61	29-30	73
6	107, 133	17	132	32	88, 106
9	91	34	96	37	63
20	63, 128	36	50	44	129
10. 2	95	39	58	46	61
18	62	8. 5	63, 127, 131	52	103
11. 31	72	13	129	53	112
33	48, 96	9. 7	96	16. 2	84
12. 1	125	9	14, 92	12	57
15	108	12	129	21	72
16	70, 72 bis, 84	16	129
19	92	17	129	II COR.
18. 3	92	18	101	1. 8	81, 88, 107
8	90	21	133	18	63
14. 5	85	25	112	2. 2	128
11	23	10. 13	77	12	87
22	86	16	76	17	78
15. 1	67	17	100	3. 1	49
4	72, 94	29	73	5	133
5	70	11. 2	95	18	96
19	86	14	91	4. 6	96
22	108	15	91, 101	13	87
24	108	20	39	16	71, 87, 131
27	62	22	63	17	88, 94
16. 8	68, 110	25	72	5. 1	93, 129
16	70	26	131	2	52
17	87	31	129	4	52, 102
25	97	32	130	5	93

Index of Passages of Scripture

II COR.		PAGE	GAL.		PAGE	PHIL.		PAGE
5.	6	. 98	3.	15	. 52	1.	12	. 85
	7	. 86		16	. 76		15	. 87
	16	. 63		19	. 61		18	62, 130
	19	. 63		21	. 62		21	. 107
	20	. 39	4.	4	. 133		22	. 107
6.	1	. 57		16	. 91		23	. 67
	15	. 66	5.	11	. 94		24	. 107
7.	8	80, 131 bis		24	. 93		30	. 128
	11	63, 107	6.	1	. 64	2.	6	. 130
	12	114, 131		11	. 124		9	. 89
8.	9	. 130		12	. 94		12	. 69
	19	. 110		14	. 107		17	. 88
	24	. 16					19	. 85
9.	1	. 100					30	. 85
	4	. 133	EPH.
	5	. 110	1.	5	. 89	3.	4	. 134
	7	. 100		6	59, 64		8	64, 110
	10	. 112		15	39, 81		13	. 82
	14	. 111		19	. 110		16	. 108
10.	2	. 124		21	. 56	4.	1	. 110
	4	. 21	2.	2	19, 55		10	. 61
	5	. 95		3	. 96		22	. 100
	13	. 90		4	. 87	COL.
	16	. 88		8	. 96	1.	4	. 81
11.	6	131	3.	1	. 110		9	39, 125
	21	. 88		2	. 129		29	. 112
	23	. 67		3	. 101	2.	5	. 131
	26	. 94		6	. 49		15	. 56
	28	. 87		8	48, 94, 107		18	. 95
12.	2	. 84		15	. 78		23	83, 110
	3	. 85		19	. 111	3.	5	. 95
	6	. 68		20	. 89	4.	18	. 72
	13	. 100	4.	1	. 110	I THESS.
	15	. 52		8	56, 82	1.	3	. 94
	20	. 55		12	. 83		8	97 n.
18.	3	19, 76		16	89 bis , 95	2.	3	. 99
	4	131		18	. 98		5	. 101
	11	. 100		21	. 129		7	91, 98, 133
				28	97 n., 112	3.	5	. 114
GAL.			5.	6	55, 89		13	. 84
1.	10	. 129	6.	3	. 68	4.	13	. 109
	15	. 129		6	. 83		17	. 61
	17	. 72		12	. 84	5.	3	. 130
	23	. 112		16	. 68		14	. 83
2.	2	. 57		17	. 76	II THESS.
	3	. 130		21	. 85	1.	10	. 90
	5	. 61	PHIL.			2.	4	. 133
	6	81, 123	1.	1	. 65		5	. 58
	13	. 79		10	. 89		7	. 133
	16	. 21		11	. 97
3.	13	55, 94

Index of Passages of Scripture

165

II THESS.	PAGE	HEBREWS	PAGE	HEBREWS	PAGE
3. 9	72, 132	1. 4	100	11. 1	110, 114
17	72	8	19	4	68
I TIM.
1. 10	49	2. 1	52	6	121
13	109	7	21, 89	7	60
17	89	13	80	9	112
19	50, 84	16	63	11	87
2. 8	82	17	51	13	88
14	101	18	71	21	12 n, 71 n, 109
3. 5	95	3. 3	100	27	54
12	65	12	112	34	99
4. 3	91, 108	15	79	12. 2	54
15-16	101	18	108	8	62, 85
5. 11	105	4. 3	39	11	68, 93
15	69, 87	6	62	12	110
18	92	7	88, 112	17	134
23	60	11	58, 72	18	48
6. 2	82	12	55	28	109
4	84	15	128	13. 3	110
17	94, 112	5. 2	128	8	72
20	93	7	128	14	110
II TIM.
1. 9	57	12	87	16	60
12	39, 86	12	92	21	128
2. 6	109	14	118	21	92
12	51	15	60	8. 4	128
26	9 n.	21	80	7	95, 97
3. 16	112	23	108	8	117, 118
4. 1	82	8. 4	128	13	51
3	96	7	95, 97	9. 1	57
4	63	8	117, 118	3	86
16	106	13	51	8	52
TITUS
1. 2	57	9. 1	57	10	93
5	86	3	86	17	61
13	86	8	52	24	102
2. 6	125	10	93	26	71
3. 10	53	17	61	10. 5	15 n.
PHILEMON.
I-25	90 n.	24	102	9	68
5	81	26	71	10	69
11	92	10. 5	15 n.	16	112
16	91	9	68	22	82
19	133	10	69	16	95
20	61, 106	16	112	24	95
22	90	17	61	25	93, 109
JAMES 1. 8 96
13 95
16 68, 110
19 110
26 121
2. 4 93
5 68, 110
12 105 n.
15 129
17 129
3. 5 124
10 72
11 59
15 110
4. 8 96
5. 11 81
12 63
14 73
16 70
17 80
I PETER 1. 1 94
3 52
11 123
2. 1 55

Index of Passages of Scripture

I PETER	PAGE	I JOHN	PAGE	APOC.	PAGE
2. 7	76	2. 3	73	4. 11	39
12	56	17	76	5. 2	39
18 ff.	109	3. 1	124	6. 4	19, 22
19	95	8	73	8	19, 22, 96
3. 3	46	16	73	7. 4-5	19
9	100	4. 10	132	8. 7	94
21	55, 93	19	62	9	19
22	56	20	120	9. 10	92 n.
4. 12	58	5. 16	121	13	80
14	21			15	89
16	72	II JOHN		10. 9	50
5. 1	48	13	83, 86	11. 1	19
6	56			2	69
13	50	III JOHN		6	80
II PETER		4	72	13. 10	61
1. 2	106	14	83, 108	11	92 n.
3	62, 96	JUDE		14. 6-7	19
5	52	13	51, 54	8	59
9	92	APOC.		19	55
14	55	1. 4	16	16. 10	51
12	109	13	83	18	128
21	61	2. 13	19	19. 2	100
2. 3	99	16	133	6	66
5	68	21	59, 81	8	76
10	87	3. 9	23, 100	10	72
14	48	12	19, 22	17	80
15	100	17	97 n.	21. 16	86, 99, 128
22	79	18	126	17	60
3. 5	109	4. 6	61	27	73
6	62			22. 8	134
16	115			11	60
				20	63, 72

Corrigenda

- Page 30, l. 16, for Matt. 5, 6 read Matt. 5, 8.
Page 47, l. 3, for bucella read buccella.
Page 59, l. 11, after Apoc. 14, 8 add (some MSS.).
Page 80, l. 6 from bottom, for 9 read 6.

Printed in England
At the OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS
By John Johnson Printer to the University